U.S. Is Trying To Peddle 'New Town'

WASHINGTON (AP) — Six years after it began pouring money into planned communities, the federal government is giving up on the nearly bankrupt "new town" of Gananda, near Rochester, N.Y. The Department of Housing and Urban Development announced Friday it will acquire the assets of the town and will try to peddle it to a private real estate developer. Tim O'Brien, attorney for the Gananda Development Corp., said more than $22 million in private and federal money has been invested in the community for a school, a sewage treatment plant, 7 miles of roads and 700 lots ready for building.

James Dausch, head of HUD's New Community Development Corp., said it "is no secret" that most of the 14 government-backed communities are in financial trouble and that his agency has been trying to help them weather the problems of recession, inflation and high interest rates. In the case of Gananda, which has three model houses but no residents, the developer simply run out of money, was deeply in debt and had little prospect of being able to raise private financing, Dausch said. He blamed the problems of Gananda, which in the Seneca Indian language means "new settlement," on the economy and poor planning and management. He said HUD also had "to share some of the blame" for accepting over-optimistic projections of the town's development.

Federal participation in planned communities began in 1970 as a means to end uncontrolled suburban sprawl, patterning them after such established, privately backed new towns as Reston, Va., and Columbia, Md. But after becoming involved as a sponsor of 14 new towns, the government stopped accepting new applications last year. Additional funding had been cut back by the Nixon administration in 1973. HUD decided to acquire Gananda's assets to protect $22 million in federally guaranteed loans after the new town defaulted on its interest payments last summer, Dausch said. Dausch said the government probably will restructure the new community's debts and find a new developer to complete a much smaller town than the 5,800-acre, 55,000-population community originally envisioned.

Mellon Heir Abducts Two Daughters In Custody Battle With Former Wife

By SAMUEL MAULL

NEW YORK (AP) — The district attorney says he will decide next week whether to file charges against anyone in the custody battle abduction of two young daughters of Seward Prosser Mellon, heir to and controller of one of America's great family fortunes.

The girls — Catherine, 7, and Elizabeth, 5 — were with their father and were safe and well, police and Mellon's personal attorney said. But nobody was saying where.

"My husband has stolen my children," Mellon's former wife said Friday after they were whisked away in a smoothly efficient operation that featured speeding cars and private airplanes. "I'm afraid that I won't see my children again because of the power my husband has in Pennsylvania."

Mellon's attorney, Albert M. Wiggins Jr., had said originally the girls were with their father in Pennsylvania. But contacted later in Pittsburgh, center of the Mellon family's interests, he said, "I have no idea where they are."

The girls have been caught in a two-state battle between their 33-year-old father, who won custody two years ago in a Pennsylvania court, and his former wife, Karen Boyd Mellon, 32, who was awarded custody last month in New York State Supreme Court. They were divorced in 1974.

Mrs. Mellon, using an assumed name, Roberts, had been living with the girls in a middle class Brooklyn neighborhood since fleeing with the children when they came to visit her three months ago in North Carolina.

Catherine, the older girl, was crying Friday morning as she and her sister were seized while on the way to school. Police said three men, posing as FBI agents, disarmed the girls' bodyguard outside the unpretentious home in which they had been living.

The bodyguard, Lester Carew, 69, a retired subway policeman, told police that one of the men said to him, "I KNOW YOU HAVE A GUN. I have one too. Let's have yours." As the man spoke, he pointed his coat pocket at Carew as if a gun were inside.

Protest Renews Faith In People, Kennedy Says

LANSING — State Rep. Bela Kennedy, R-Bangor, said Thursday's protest in Lansing by several thousand garage workers and owners, including some 200 from Berrien and Van Buren counties, impressed legislators and renewed his faith in the people of Michigan.

Kennedy termed the protest of the mechanics licensing act, "probably one of the most orderly and best organized protest groups we have ever witnessed at the capitol.

"They made a great impression on practically everyone here and I'm sure impressed those legislators who voted this monstrosity upon them," Kennedy said. "For those of us who have been opposing legislation such as this, they revitalized our energy."

Kennedy said he hoped the auto mechanics, repairmen and owners wouldn't have to come back, but if the legislature doesn't amend the act "...very soon, I hope they return in even greater numbers, stay longer and see more people."

The 200 southwestern Michigan garage mechanics, auto traveled in a body repairmen and auto shop owners 70-vehicle convoy to join others in the protest Thursday.

Repair Law Decision Due Next Week

MASON, Mich. (AP) — An Ingham County Circuit Court judge will decide early next week on a lawsuit seeking to block enforcement of the state's new auto repair law.

Judge James Kallman heard the last of oral arguments Friday over a suit challenging the constitutionality of the law.

The Automotive Service Councils of Michigan, which filed the suit, is seeking an injunction against requiring auto repair shops to be licensed under the act.

Attorneys for the mechanics argued in court that the law will be economically discriminatory and impose irreparable injury on repair shops. They said it was anticompetitive and an unwarranted interference with industry.

Supporters of the new law accused the mechanics of "scare tactics," and said auto shops only wanted to return to the "good old days of the easy ripoff." They disagreed that it would cause prices to rise dramatically or many shops to go out of business.

Cass Board Orders Sheriff To 'Answer'

BY AL AREND
Staff Writer

CASSOPOLIS — Cass county board of commissioners has ordered Cass Sheriff James Northrop to answer under oath questions about finances and other operations of his department.

In an unannounced meeting Tuesday, nine of the county's 11 commissioners convened a study session into a formal meeting and voted to have Northrop answer questions in seven specific areas.

The order is the latest encounter between the board and the sheriff who in November filed a suit against the board, asking that it be prevented from interfering with his department's daily operations.

A trial on Northrop's suit is scheduled for April 27-28.

During Tuesday's suddenly called session, a continuation of an earlier recessed session, the county commission passed a resolution saying Johnie A. Roderush, board chairman, was fully authorized to send the letter to Sheriff Northrop.

The letter, under state statute, requires Northrop to respond, under oath to the following seven points contained in the letter:

1. — Specific plans by which Northrop plans to phase out the county's drug enforcement unit.

2. — How Northrop proposes to restrict and limit the overtime and compensation time of the drug enforcement unit.

3. — How he proposes to restrict and limit overtime and

Judge Hands Slayer Of Nurse Life In Prison

By ALAN AREND
Staff Writer

CASSOPOLIS — Francis Eugene Cook, self-confessed killer of a Dowagiac nurse, was sentenced to life imprisonment yesterday by visiting St. Joseph county Circuit Court Judge Robert Boyle. Cook, 37, of rural Niles, in February pleaded guilty to a reduced charge of second degree murder in connection with the Aug. 30, 1975 slaying of Mrs. Lola Faye West, 32.

In sentencing Cook, a court-declared criminal sexual psychopath who has a record of sex offenses dating back to when he was 10 years old, Judge Boyle recommended to the state department of corrections that Cook not be considered for parole. Judge Boyle also recommended Cook receive psychiatric help at prison.

Judge Boyle, in handing down the sentence, said Cook had twice before been released from prison and he hoped "...it wouldn't ever happen again."

Cook originally was charged with first degree murder and murder involving sexual conduct in connection with Mrs. West's slaying.

Her partially clad body was found in a Wayne township field northeast of Dowagiac Aug. 31 about 10 feet from her car parked in a grassy lane just off Gage street. She had been killed with a pipe.

As a result of a plea agreement, Cass Prosecutor Michael Dodge agreed to drop the original charges and drop prosecution under the habitual criminal statute in exchange for the guilty plea to second degree murder.

Cook had testified that he had lured Mrs. West to the vicinity of Gage street and Glenwood road in Wayne township on the afternoon of Aug. 30 on the pretext that he wanted to hire her as a nurse for a grandmother and also to "find out if she knew any doctor or psychiatrist who could help me."

Once there, he testified he struck her over her head with a piece of rusty pipe and then hit her twice more when she fell to the ground. Cook also admitted he had sexual relations with the woman before he struck her.

Prosecutor Dodge said he was "quite satisfied" with Judge Boyle's sentencing. Cook was represented by Atty. Mowitt Drew of Niles.

Cook remained calm throughout the entire sentencing, according to courthouse witnesses. His wife and mother were in tears, however, when they briefly met him in the corridor after the sentence was handed down.

Capistrano Swallows Back Home

SAN JUAN CAPISTRANO, Calif. (AP) — For the 177th time, the swallows have returned to Mission San Juan Capistrano on St. Joseph's Day.

Arriving in Southern California Friday after their 10,000-mile flight from their wintering grounds in Argentina, 350 of the small brown birds winged onto the mission grounds, said mission spokesman Bill Smith.

More than 75,000 persons were there for the arrival, including visitors from as far away as Sweden and Germany. So was Leon Rene, who wrote the song, "When the Swallows Come Back to Capistrano" in 1939.

Smith said several thousands more swallows had scattered themselves around the city as they arrived in the morning.

The birds came in at 8:31, 91 minutes later than last year, which frustrated early risers hoping for a first glimpse of the fabled visitors.

Spring Arrives Day Early In Twin Cities

By JIM DeLAND
Assistant City Editor

Spring arrived a day ahead of schedule in southwestern Michigan yesterday with the highest temperatures of the year recorded in the Twin Cities area and record temperatures established in surrounding areas.

A high of 71 was registered on The Herald-Palladium's recording thermometer at 3 p.m. Friday — identical to the high, reported by veteran weather observer Herb Teichman of Eau Claire.

This fell 10 degrees short of the record high of 81 for the same date in 1945, Teichman said, but was still a far cry from the record low of 5-below zero for the same date in 1943.

Arnold Hafer reported a high of 73 at the Sodus experimental farm.

The forecast for today — the first day of Spring — was for cloudy skies and cooler temperatures with a slight chance of showers.

The U.S. Weather Bureau predicted temperatures in the low 30s tonight and in the low 40s Sunday.

Record temperatures for March 19 reported yesterday included 72 at South Bend and 65 at Muskegon.

The National Weather Service reported that Spring arrived at 6:50 a.m. today, ushered in by balmy temperatures in the eastern third of the nation and winds that hit 101 miles per hour at the U.S. Air Force Academy in the Colorado Rockies.

Despite the calendar, winter still held sway in much of the west, with stockmen's and travelers' advisories posted for cold temperatures and snow from Wyoming to Nebraska.

Locally, predictions of possible showers could push precipitation for March farther above the average for this month.

Teichman said the March average of 2.32 inches of precipitation was reached in the first five days of the month and that a deluge of 1.19 inches within 30 minutes last Friday helped boost the total so far this month to 3.99 inches.

Other signs of spring reported by Teichman included the first appearance of the Great Blue Heron this morning and the characteristic chorus of "peepers," a variety of small tree frogs.

Were it left to me to decide whether we should have government without newspapers or newspapers without government, I should not hesitate to prefer the latter. — Thomas Jefferson.

The Great Breakfast Food Flap

In all innocence, ignorance even, we have always assumed breakfast food's primary mission to be a harried mother's way of getting the kids to eat something before they go off to school.

This is not to disparage the adult chomper's consumption. Rather it is has been our own unverified appraisal on the marketing characteristics of one segment in the food industry.

The Federal Trade Commission sees more to breakfast food than our untutored eyes ever gave to the subject.

Four years ago the FTC impliedly stated that breakfast food is big money for those who know how to convert fodder into a palatable substance and to distribute it to the American home.

It accused the big four in the business, General Mills, General Foods, Kellogg and Quaker Oats, of setting up what it styled a shared monopoly.

Since then the FTC staff has accumulated 3,700 pages of evidentiary material fitted into 12 volumes which it claims supports its contention.

Hearings on the complaint are scheduled to open April 28 before an FTC administrative law judge who is expected to take eight months to hear the government's presentation.

The defendants next have their day to offer rebuttal evidence.

Then, maybe by 1980 or thereabouts, the first decision will be handed down.

From the FTC the case could go on to the federal courts, and at this writing no one would dare venture a guess as to whom the final word might be handed down.

The FTC's massive agglomeration reduces to three main points.

It says the Big Four make it a practice to bring out so many different types that the consumer is unable to determine whose product is the best buy.

Further, charges the Commission, this brand proliferation simplifies the naughty practice of getting the grocer to give the Big Four display preference over smaller, lesser known brands.

Finally, says the FTC, the Big Four advertise so heavily, particularly through the boob tube, that the small producer cannot penetrate the market.

The Commission throws in one other charge to bolster its assertion of an unholy marketing alliance. For 10 years, it charges, the Big Four virtually eliminated the competitive use of package premiums. Though the gimmick in the box has returned, the government contends its prior elimination is a sort of continuing element in the overall anti-competitive picture it labels as a shared monopoly.

The FTC is reknowned for tilting at windmills and seeing things under the bed that go undetected by other mortals' eyes.

Just for the fun of it, we asked some gals in our plant whose youngsters nibble on breakfast food how they shop for the stuff.

It's simplicity itself. Mom just picks out what her boy or girl sees tossed at them by the TV or what gimmick is in which box.

We were also informed that come age 12-13, the youngster drops the breakfast kick for other edible.

We're not certain if their information proves or disproves a federal case.

Only the hunch exists that the FTC, like so many agencies, has to show some action from time to time to justify its budget.

Not Funny Now

Residents of New York City used to make a big thing out of ridiculing themselves and their town. Whatever the psychological reasons behind it, everyone indulged. Cab drivers were especially good at it, and professional comedians who came to town had to have at least a few anti-New York jokes in their bags.

That all changed when the threat of bankruptcy fell over the city. Residents no longer consider it chic to bad-mouth their town. In fact the other night the Convention and Visitors Bureau held a "Big Apple Award" dinner to give awards to businesses and individuals who had given morale boosts to the city in its dark days.

Times, Cost Against Washington Subway

More than three years behind schedule, the Washington, D.C., area's subway system will finally begin service on March 27. Or so says Jackson Graham, general manager of the Washington Metropolitan Area Transit Authority Metro). Washingtonians have learned to greet Metro predicitions about service or costs with the deepest skepticism.

Since the ground was broken for subway construction on Dec. 9, 1969, Metro has changed the system's opening date at least 11 times. Cost projections have risen steadily, from an original prediction of $2.5 billion to the current estimate of $4.6 billion. Washington's subway system is the most expensive public works project ever undertaken in the United States.

The line that is to open on March 27 is only 4.6 miles long. It traverses the city's downtown shopping section, with terminals at the busy intersection of Connecticut Avenue and K Street N.W. and at an elevated stop east of Union Station. When fully completed — the current goal is December 1982 — the system will comprise 100.6 miles of underground and surface rail in the District of Columbia and its Maryland and Virginia suburbs.

But, in fact, the system may never be finished as it is now envisioned. Area jurisdiottions are growing apprehensive about the cost-overrun problem, as are the state governments at Annapolis and Richmond. Still, Metro has surmounted one financial crisis after another over the past six years, and it may yet find a way to muddle through to completion.

As might be expected, Metro is not without critics. "New underground transportation," says C. Kenneth Orski, associate administrator of the federal Urban Mass Transportation Administration, "is no longer viable on financial grounds.... We are being more cautious, urging cities to learn from Metro's example and think small."

Writing in Human Events, M. Stanton Evans asserted that "People are simply too spread out to make a linear, fixed-route transit system feasible, as rail lines and buses have learned to their chagrin. In the teeth of that reality, it takes a true fanaticism to tear up a city in order to put a brand-new, fixed-route system underneath it."

SUGGESTS TIGHTENING OF BELT IN ORDER

Editor,

Tuesday's light turnout of voters for the Benton Harbor school district millage election prompts me to write this letter.

It seems to me that if the elections were held in conjunction with other elections, such as this years primary election, a better turnout would be expected.

I cannot help but feel that the people, who set the election dates, know they have a more favorable chance of millage approval in a low turnout election. This may be a smart tactic but if the feeling is that a millage increase will not pass in a large turnout election, then belt tightening should be the order of the day.

WARM EXPERIENCE FOR FAMILY

Editor,

We would like to thank our many friends and neighbors who have been so generous the past few weeks.

Becoming disabled last October, I was faced with the usual living expenses, plus those caused by my illness which insurance didn't cover and only my wife's paycheck to pay them with.

A couple of friends decided to hold a benefit dance, and the "ball" they started rolling just doesn't seem to stop! The party was a wonderful warm experience for our family. Many people who came left large gifts of money. Most without leaving their names. Some brought money to our house, many sent checks by mail. One young friend even sent for several cases of candy bars and sold them, giving us the profits.

People from Benton Harbor, St. Joseph, Stevensville, Baroda, Bridgman, Buchanan, Berrien Springs and the area in between, involved themselves very generously.

We know that there are many people who sold tickets and worked on this in many ways, which we don't know about. We thank you from the bottom of our hearts.

I will never forget the friendship and the kindness of the teachers, custodians, cooks, bus drivers and administrators of Lakeshore school system. No warmer or more wonderful group of people exists anywhere.

Thanks to all of you, we'll get along just fine now until disability checks start coming.

SOME QUESTIONS FOR BH OFFICIALS

Editor,

To the Mayor, Clean Slate and Winston Minott!

Let's take time out, and get some questions answered that people have been asking for the past 10 weeks. No answer has been given yet.

Since Dec. 29, all hell has broken loose at city hall.

There has been no respect shown to people in this city other than the people who have agreed with you.

We'd like to know (1) why certain people cannot speak at public meetings? (2) why Mayor Joseph attacks any commissioner other than the Clean Slate when they disagree with him on certain issues?

Do the mayor and Clean Slate realize how much damage they have done to this city in a short time?

You have attacked some brilliant, qualified and law abiding citizens. And your appointee, Helen Ford, told ridiculous stories about the police chief.

You have attacked (1) former City Atty. Yvonne Hughes for no reason at all (2) many other people who are not for what you're doing (3) Charles Henderson. Maybe you think he will take the Mayor seat on a recall election.

We watched Monday night as you showed disrespect to citizens, two commissioners, A. Bolin, C. Yarborough and also Melvin Farmer Jr., to accomplish your objectives. You and the Clean Slate had enough nerve to vote, Monday night, for $48,000 for a useless newsletter and $30,000 for an ombudsman office, when you should know this office (ombudsman) should not be connected with the Mayor office. It should be an independent person.

Mayor Joseph, many people have critized you for things you have done and you have taken the criticism and made it a personal vendetta.

Many issues have been tied about in the past 10 weeks, but no man needs a degree to know that any city needs a good (1) public works department (2) police department (3) fire department and most of all a good administration at city hall.

Many people have been led to believe Maurice Bishop wants to be mayor. He has confirmed the fact that he does not want the position or be a city commissioner, now or in the future.

(1) How many thousands of dollars have been wasted by incompetency? (2) who does the Mayor and Clean Slate and Covert was trailing Trout Creek in the early moments of the fourth quarter at the Class D state championship basketball tournament Saturday at East Lansing. Then they put on a demonstration of the diversified scoring and rebounding which made the Bulldogs unbeatable for nearly two seasons, and they almost blew Trout Creek out of Jenison Fieldhouse with a 16-point spree. That string of points was more than enough to send the 'Dogs safely on their way to an 84-70 victory for their second straight state Class D championship.

Every community in Berrien county this year will have a chance to see one of its own girls crowned as queen of the second annual Blossom Week festival, which last year drew thousands of visitors to the fruit belt. Each high school throughout Berrien will be asked to select a candidate for Blossom queen. The candidates will be brought to the Liberty theatre before the festival opens, probably May 9. At the theatre a committee of out-of-town judges, headed by Antoinette Donnelly of the Chicago Tribune staff, will pick the queen who will be crowned the night before the Blossom parade at the Benton Harbor armory.

Defeat attended every effort of Hon. E.E. Jarvis at the democratic city convention last evening. He failed to be nominated for mayor; rather than nominate him the democrats endorsed the republican candidate, Mayor Boeltzer. Jarvis will run for mayor on an independent anti-saloon ticket provided he can get his name on the printed ticket by petition.

Benton Harbor socialists will meet at the city hall tomorrow evening and put a city ticket in the field. C.E. Reeves will probably be nominated for mayor. There is not a better man in the city in any party than Mr. Reeves. There are 75 socialists in the city.

Reagan Missing Delegate Point

WASHINGTON (NEA) — The Florida results show clearly that Ronald Reagan and his managers failed to apply the lesson they claimed they learned in New Hampshire. The Californian picked up almost half the popular vote, but came out of Florida with not much more than a third of the delegates.

In between, in Massachusetts and elsewhere, Mr. Ford has continued to pick up two delegates for every one gathered by Reagan.

Now there's a great hue and cry about the Illinois contest between Reagan and Mr. Ford. But delegates to the Republican National Convention are chosen in separate races. And again, the numbers of delegates chosen who are committed to Mr. Ford and Reagan respectively may have little relationship to the direct votes for the two candidates themselves.

The Reagan men continue to insist they're out for delegates, that they're aiming to arrive at Kansas City in August with the majority necessary to win.

They talk of Texas, California and other major areas they count on winning big. And they note with satisfaction that in some important states, delegate strength is tied directly to the popularity vote for the two Republican presidential candidates.

But it is becoming clear the actual Reagan strategy may in fact be quite different.

What seems evident, in fact, is that Reagan is counting on emotions rising so high at the convention itself that the men and women there will swing to his banner.

Now there is no doubt that Reagan on a platform outpoints Mr. Ford two to one. Mr. Ford's magnetism is on the ho-hum side.

So in theory there's some logic on the side of those who argue Reagan can capture the convention regardless of primary results and the trend of delegate commitments. It has happened.

But for this emotional Reagan steamroller to be effective, Reagan must begin getting a higher percentage of the delegates. And there must be a higher proportion of delegates not bound to either man than have been chosen in the contests so far staged.

That is, for this Reagan strategy to have a chance, Mr. Ford must not go into the convention with enough votes to win on the first ballot.

Now it appears that 1976 is quite different from some past convention years, in that far and away the majority of delegates may go firmly committed, for the early convention votes at least.

In fact, for the past several conventions, the selection of GOP presidential candidates has been decided well before the conventions opened. Barry Goldwater had the nomination well sewed up in 1964. So did Mr. Nixon in 1968 and 1972.

What this analysis suggests, then, is that Reagan had better do some reorganizing of his campaign tactics and his campaign staff. There's been an unreality about their expectations which has boomeranged when the results came over the wires.

The Reagan popularity vote in New Hampshire and in Florida was not a bad showing at all, in a race against an incumbent favored by a steady upturn in the economy at a time when voters cling to what they've got in preference to the new and unknown.

But the Reagan publicity had led us to expect so much more we felt he had stumbled with 49 per cent in New Hampshire and 47 per cent in Florida.

Jeffrey Hart

Reagan Defeats Have Pattern

In both New Hampshire and Florida, Ronald Reagan's electoral fortunes exhibited a similar and revealing pattern. In both states, Reagan — the hare — got off to a fast start and opened up a big lead in the polls. In both states, however, a good 20-30 per cent of the voters remained undecided. As the day of voting approached, this undecided block broke heavily for the President — the tortoise. The following factors produced that pattern.

1. Reagan's chosen tactic — a soft-sell approach in which he refused until the final days to attack either Ford or his record very directly — contradicted his overall strategy, which depended upon a quick knockout. Reagan needed a win in New Hampshire, a bigger win in Florida, and then a KO in Illinois.

But the tactics of the soft-sell worked against that. The voters were open to persuasion; their commitment to Ford was relatively weak. But the Reagan camp underestimated the degree to which the burden of proof rested on Reagan.

2. The tactical error, in turn, was reinforced by personal factors. The chief architect of the Reagan campaign, John Sears, remembered all too well the successful Nixon run in the 1968 primaries, which Sears helped to mastermind.

This yar, Reagan used many of the old Sears-Nixon techniques, such as televised question-and-answer session with local citizens. In 1968, Nixon also ran a hard, "statesmanlike" campaign in both the primaries and the general election. But, of course, the situation was completely different. Nixon was not trying to unseat an incumbent president.

An additional factor entering into Reagan's tactical errors was his own personality. Reagan-haters will not believe it, but the former California governor is genuinely a nice guy. Political hard-ball does not come naturally to him.

3. Now, speaking of positions, it remains a mystery to me why conservative politicians find themselves meditating aloud and in public on the subject of Social Security. If Reagan wants to discuss Social Security, he should do it at midnight somewhere with Milton Friedman, and not in broad daylight in St. Petersburg. It makes people, especially older people, nervous.

As a presidential candidate, Reagan needed a high-power brain trust. This, after all, is the big league. But it is evident that he lacks adequate counsel on the issues.

Analysis of voter attitudes shows that voters satisfied with the improving economy tend to back Ford, while those troubled about non-economic issues such as foreign policy, defense, and leadership style have been turning to Reagan.

The hour is growing late, however, for the Reagan candidacy. He failed to achieve a quick knockout, and if his fortunes are to improve at all in the primary and caucus contests coming up, he will have to correct the obvious defeats in his campaign operation.

Were it left to me to decide whether we should have government without newspapers or newspapers without government, I should not hesitate to prefer the latter. – Thomas Jefferson.

The Great Breakfast Food Flap

In all innocence, ignorance even, we have always assumed breakfast food's primary mission to be a harried mother's way of getting the kids to eat something before they go off to school.

This is not to disparage the adult chomper's consumption. Rather it is has been our own unverified appraisal on the marketing characteristics of one segment in the food industry.

The Federal Trade Commission sees more to breakfast food than our untutored eyes ever gave to the subject.

Four years ago the FTC impliedly stated that breakfast food is big money for those who know how to convert fodder into a palatable substance and to distribute it to the American home.

It accused the big four in the business, General Mills, General Foods, Kellogg and Quaker Oats, of setting up what it styled a shared monopoly.

Since then the FTC staff has accumulated 3,700 pages of evidentiary material fitted into 12 volumes which it claims supports its contention.

Hearings on the complaint are scheduled to open April 28 before an FTC administrative law judge who is expected to take eight months to hear the government's presentation.

The defendants next have their day to offer rebuttal evidence.

Then, maybe by 1980 or thereabouts, the first decision will be handed down.

From the FTC the case could go on to the federal courts, and at this writing no one would dare venture a guess as to whom the final word might be handed down.

The FTC's massive agglomeration reduces to three main points.

It says the Big Four make it a practice to bring out so many different types that the consumer is unable to determine whose product is the best buy.

Further, charges the Commission, this brand proliferation simplifies the naughty practice of getting the grocer to give the Big Four display preference over smaller, lesser known brands.

Finally, says the FTC, the Big Four advertise so heavily, particularly through the boob tube, that the small producer cannot penetrate the market.

The Commission throws in one other charge to bolster its assertion of an uholy marketing alliance. For 10 years, it charges, the Big Four virtually eliminated the competitive use of package premiums. Though the gimmick in the box has returned, the government contends its prior elimination is a sort of continuing element in the overall anti-competitive picture it labels as a shared monopoly.

The FTC is reknowned for tilting at windmills and seeing things under the bed that go undetected by other mortals' eyes.

Just for the fun of if, we asked some gals in our plant whose youngsters nibble on breakfast food how they shop for the stuff.

It's simplicity itself. Mom just picks out what her boy or girl sees tossed at them by the TV or what gimmick is in which box.

We were also informed that come age 12-13, the youngster drops the breakfast kick for other edible.

We're not certain if their information proves or disproves a federal case.

Only the hunch exists that the FTC, like so many agencies, has to show some action from time to time to justify its budget.

Not Funny Now

Residents of New York City used to make a big thing out of ridiculing themselves and their town. Whatever the psychological reasons behind it, everyone indulged. Cab drivers were especially good at it, and professional comedians who came to town had to have at least a few anti-New York jokes in their bags.

That all changed when the threat of bankruptcy fell over the city. Residents no longer consider it chic to bad-mouth their town. In fact the other night the Convention and Visitors Bureau held a "Big Apple Award" dinner to give awards to businesses and individuals who had given morale boosts to the city in its dark days.

Times, Cost Against Washington Subway

More than three years behind schedule, the Washington, D.C., area's subway system will finally begin service on March 27. Or so says Jackson Graham, general manager of the Washington Metropolitan Area Transit Authority Metro). Washingtonians have learned to greet Metro predicitions about service or costs with the deepest skepticism.

Since the ground was broken for subway construction on Dec. 9, 1969, Metro has changed the system's opening date at least 11 times. Cost projections have risen steadily, from an original prediction of $2.5 billion to the current estimate of $4.6 billion. Washington's subway system is the most expensive public works project ever undertaken in the United States.

The line that is to open on March 27 is only 4.6 miles long. It traverses the city's downtown shopping section, with terminals at the busy intersection of Connecticut Avenue and K Street N.W. and at an elevated stop east of Union Station. When fully completed — the current goal is December 1982 — the system will comprise 100.6 miles of underground and surface rail in the District of Columbia and its Maryland and Virginia suburbs.

But, in fact, the system may never be finished as it is now envisioned. Area jurisdictions are growing apprehensive about the cost-overrun problem, as are the state governments at Annapolis and Richmond. Still, Metro has surmounted one financial crisis after another over the past six years, and it may yet find a way to muddle through to completion.

As might be expected, Metro is not without critics. "New underground transportation," says C. Kenneth Orski, associate administrator of the federal Urban Mass Transportation Administration, "is no longer viable on financial grounds.... We are being more cautious, urging cities to learn from Metro's example and think small."

Writing in Human Events, M. Stanton Ecans asserted that "People are simply too spread out to make a linear, fixed-route transit system feasible, as rail lines and buses have learned to their chagrin. In the teeth of that reality, it takes a true fanaticism to tear up a city in order to put a brand-new, fixed-route system underneath it."

Berrien County Action, Inc., says it has received official federal notification of a $51,000 grant award for family planning, although trustees of a local health planning association voted Wednesday against the grant.

Mrs. Suzy Edwards, coordinator for outreach and community services for BCA, presented The Herald-Palladium Friday with a letter from the U.S. Department of Health, Education and Welfare (HEW) declaring a $51,000 grant award for BCA's family planning program.

The letter from Catherine T. Bartley, chief of grants and contracts, for the Chicago regional office was dated March 18 — a day after the board of trustees of the Southwestern Michigan Comprehensive Health Planning association voted 7 to 4 against the grant.

Mrs. Edwards said the vote of the trustees was "political."

The trustees' vote came after a committee of the Southwestern Michigan Comprehensive Health Health Planning association voted 8 to 1 on March 11 to recommend approval of the grant.

However, the board of trustees is the final decision-making group of the association. But the final decision on the grant is up to to HEW.

Mrs. Edwards said: "The Southwestern Michigan Comprehensive Health Planning association does not have the final say on the grant application. It's only for review and comment. It was approved at the hearing Thursday, March 11.

"It's obvious the reversal by the trustees is political, and in no way reflects against the competency of Berrien County Action to carry on the family planning outreach program."

Ruth Sarabyn, treasurer of the board of trustees, who acted as chairman of the board in Wednesday's meeting, said the majority of the board present recommended rejection because of the large amount of costs going towards administration of the program. Members of the board who voted to recommend rejection felt that more of the grant should be used for actual operation and outreach work, she said.

The BCA application succeeds a request for a similar sum that got tied up in controversy between BCA and the Berrien County Health department in 1975. HEW withdrew the $51,000 grant last year because of the controversy over which unit, BCA or the health department, should get the funds.

The new application, submitted by Mrs. Helen Ford, BCA executive director, says $25,000 of the $51,000 grant will go for contractual services with Planned Parenthood of Southwestern Michigan. Rod Goodchild, regional health planner for the health planning association, earlier said HEW officials had insisted that money be split with $25,000 going to the Planned Parenthood operation.

BCA has said it would use its portion of the funds to hire teenage girls as outreach workers to present family planning information and referral to other teens in Benton Harbor and Benton township. The BCA teenage outreach group would be trained by a consultant from the Urban League of Chicago.

The board of trustees cast its vote in the application on by secret ballot. Members present at the meeting were Nancy Clark, Mary DeFine, Jane Davis, Vera VanAntwerp, Dr. William Bock, and Howard Edwards, all of Berrien county; Richard Lindenberg, Mrs. Sarabyn, and Margaret Morrow, representatives from Cass county, and Frieda Brown and Octavia Hawkins, of Van Buren county.

Absent were Chairman Thomas Dube, William Maxey, and Majorie Federowski, of Cass county; Derek Marshall, Catheryn Sirek, and Bill Mayhall, of Berrien county, and Elvera Solis, of Van Buren county.

The board may soon be reviewing another grant applicationfrom BCA. The local community action agency is applying for a $28,000 state grant to teach personal health and hygiene to low-income people in Berrien, Cass and Van Buren counties, according to Mrs. ford.

The grant is being sought from the state Labor Ddepartment, according to Mrs. Ford, and will be used to set up a Health, Education and Referral to Services (HEARTS) Project. The HEARTS Program will be BCA's second venture into the tri-county area. BCA currently operates a winterization program to insulate homes of low-income people in Berrien, Cass and Van Buren counties.

Health Group Chief Takes Job In Iowa

John Ross, executive director of the Southwestern Michigan Comprehensive Health Planning association, has resigned and accepted a similar position with the State of Iowa. Ross has been headquartered in St. Joseph.

Ross' resignation is effective March 31 when his job as executive director will be eliminated by the merger of the Southwestern Michigan Comprehensive Health Planning association with the South Central association to create a new agency covering health planning for an eight county area.

The health planners review and advise on medical care projects where federal or state funds are involved.

Ross has accepted a position as executive director of the Iowa Health Systems agency, a similar health organization covering 90 of Iowa's 99 counties. His resignation was accepted by the Southwestern Michigan Comprehensive Health Planning association's board of trustees Wednesday night.

In addition to Ross, Rod Goodchild and John Hohnstein, both health planners for the Southwestern Michigan Comprehensive Health Planning association, have accepted jobs with the town agency. Both jobs will be similar to the ones the two men held here, Hohnstein said.

The Southwestern Michigan unit is combining with the South Central Comprehensive Health Planning association, located at Battle Creek, to form the Southwest Michigan Health Systems Agency, Inc. The merger will comply with a federal guideline which abolishes comprehensive health planning agencies in favor of Health Systems Agencies which will serve a larger area.

The new organization will be based in Kalamazoo and will serve Berrien, Cass, Van Buren, Branch, Barry, Kalamazoo, St. Joseph and Calhoun counties.

Ross was appointed the first executive director of the Southwestern Michigan Comprehensive Health Planning association in September, 1973. Prior to that Ross was associate director of a 17-county Kentucky health Planning council based in Lexington, Ky.

Maple Grove Center Now Home For Adult Handicapped

The Berrien County Association for Retarded Children has converted the Maple Grove center at 332 East Napier avenue, Benton township, into a foster home for retarded adults and expects to open for occupancy April 1, according to Mrs. Sue Burda, BCARC president.

An open house will be held from 1 to 5 p.m., Sunday, March 28, for public inspection of the newly-remodeled home, Mrs. Burda said.

The center trained retarded young adults from 1962 to the fall of 1974. It was closed with completion of Gateway, Inc., a workshop and training facility for retarded adults in Berrien Springs, which took over the function of Maple Grove center. Mrs. Burda said BCARC spent some $15,000 remodeling the Maple Grove center, installing new carpeting, draperies, furniture, electrical wiring and plumbing at the five-bedroom house. Several people and organizations contributed time and money to the renovating of the home, she said.

The center has received a license from the Michigan Department of Social Services to operate the home, according to Mrs. Burda. Mr. and Mrs. Marlin Sheffield have been hired as housepatrents for the nine people who will live at the house. The residents, who will pay room and board for living at the house, will also be involved in outside employment, the workshop at Gateway, or in schools.

Mrs. Burda said the center will operate with funds from the room and board payments from the residents and through BCARC funds. She said the center receives no subsidy from the state. The mentally handicapped receive social security benefits, which they can use to pay the room and board costs, Mrs. Burda said.

Conversion of the Maple Grove center is the latest of many projects for BCARC, which was incorporated in 1953 to promote the general welfare of mentally handicapped individuals. BCARC was directly involved in the opening of Gard school for mentally and physically handicapped students in St. Joseph and, together with the Niles Association for Exceptional Children, conducted a fund-raising drive to finance the building of the Gateway center.

Henderson Explains School Gun Incident

By JIM SHANAHAN
City Editor

Saying "I want to be completely honest," Charles Henderson, a Benton Harbor high school teacher, has issued a statement of clarification about an incident at a talent show March 11 at the high school.

Henderson said that he has learned his brother-in-law is not an Elkhart, Ind., police officer, "although he had convinced me for several years that he was a policeman."

Henderson said he was threatened by a student with a knife at the talent show, and his brother-in-law gave him a pistol for protection. Henderson said he put the pistol in his pocket and displayed only the handle of the pistol when threatened with the knife.

Henderson was the sponsor of the talent show, and the altercation developed when the student allegedly became unruly, was directed to leave the school, then returned with a knife to threaten Henderson.

The Benton Harbor city commission Monday voted for an investigation of the incident.

Henderson yesterday called the Elkhart police department and said they reported Randy Clarkson, Henderson's brother-in-law, was not a policeman but was registered to carry a gun.

Complete text of Henderson's statement:

After being concerned about this matter, I called Elkhart, Ind., and talked to Randy Clarkson. I asked him was he a real policeman in Elkhart. After going over this question again with Randy, he told me No" that he was not a policeman. I then asked him about his gun and his handcuffs that he carries and also about the badge he carries.

He then told me that it was some police equipment that he bought from a store. I told him that I had to be honest about this whole thing and tell the truth. No matter how it sounds.

I would like to clear up a few matters about the evening of March 11, 1976, and that is that I was never so much afraid in my life, not only for my life but for the people around me. I only asked for the gun when I could not get help from the people around me and after seeing this young man come at me with a knife. Then, I put the gun in my pocket and I did not remove it from there until after the knife was taken away.

I feel that I tried everything I could to stop this young man. It has also been reported to me that the young man along with two men broke into the talent show, and he still was paid $5 in all to hold it down.

I didn't give him anything but $2 but one of the judges who was also sick of this young man stood up and handed him $3 more which added to $5.

When I was in the Army, I was shot at and attacked, but that evening I was more afraid for my life than ever before. I do think this young man needs help, so I will be asking the local medical staff for treatment for this young man and also others who are in the same condition he is. There has to be some type of help.

I feel that Mayor Joseph is trying to make a political issue out of this. I want to stay out of mudslinging.

(Henderson has been mentioned as a potential candidate for mayor in event that Joseph is recalled through an election. Henderson also is considering running as a Democrat for 44th District State legislator.)

Cherry Marketing Order Renewed By Slim Margin

BY NICK SMITH
Staff Writer

By the narrowest of margins, the Federal Red Tart Cherry Marketing Order has been renewed for five more years, the United States Department of Agriculture (USDA) announced yesterday.

Exactly half of the tart cherry processors who voted in a referendum concerning the continuation of the order cast opposition votes, according to Del Rasmussen, acting manager of the Cherry Administrative Board in Watervliet.

But to be defeated, "more than half" of the processors, or growers, needed to have cast "No" votes, Rasmussen said. The processors favoring the order packed more than 50 per cent of the tart cherries involved.

Sixty-four per cent of the cherry growers who voted in the referendum earlier this month favored continuation of the order, Rasmussen said. And, those growers represented 73 per cent of the cherry production within the eight-state area covered by the order.

The Agriculture Department, which conducted the referendum, did not immediately disclose how many growers or processors actually voted. Eligible to vote were about 4,500 growers and 72 tart cherry processors, Rasmussen said.

The federal marketing order allows growers to hold cherries off of the market in big-crop years. This was done in 1972 and again in 1975.

The Cherry Administrative Board decides what percentage of the crop will be held off of the market. Tart cherry growers have the option of leaving that percentage of their cherries unharvested or picking them and placing them in a frozen cherry reserve pool.

Pool cherries are released to the market as during short-crop years.

By controlling supply in this limited way, growers in theory earn more money. Also in theory the order "stabilizes prices," which is thought to be a benefit to processors.

During recent interviews some processors disputed the fact that the order really stabilizes prices. One processor voiced concern that certain CAB regulations are responsible for lower-quality cherries reaching the consumer.

Another possible reason for processor resistance is the fact that processors, not growers, pay the bills for administration of the order.

Growers who choose to freeze cherries have to pay the processing bill and storage costs but in the two years when a set-aside was needed it was reported that growers made profits.

Freedom Of Press Panelists Scheduled

Two radio executives and two newspaper editors will exchange views on freedom of the press during Sunday afternoon's session of Lake Michigan college's Bicentennial Festival.

Area residents, students, and faculty have been invited to pose questions about press freedom to the panel which will begin at 3:30 p.m., Sunday, on the LMC Napier avenue campus.

Panelists will be Joseph Mackin, president and general manager of Radio WSJM, St. Joseph; Bert Lindenfeld, managing editor, The Herald-Palladium, Benton Harbor; Kent Slocum, director of operations, Radi WHFB, Benton Harbor; and Jack Sinclair, managing editor, The Daily Star, Niles. Judge Ronald Taylor of Berrien Fifth District court will serve as moderator.

Meet After 35 Years

By MARYANNE BUTT
Staff Writer

Mrs. Natalie Priebe of Benton Harbor and her sister, Mrs. Leokadia Szymanska, have been reunited for the first time in 35 years.

For 33 years, until Mrs. Szymanska was able to obtain the Priebes' address here, Mrs. Priebe did not even know if her sister was alive.

Mrs. Szymanska, who left Zary, Poland, for West Germany a few months ago, arrived here March 5.

Mrs. Priebe, her husband Adolf, two daughters and a granddaughter, escaped from Poland in 1945 to East Germany. The Priebes then escaped from East Germany in 1951, to West Berlin, and finally came to this country in 1956. Mrs. Szymanska remained in Poland. The sisters lived far apart in Poland, and had not seen each other for several years prior to the Priebes' escape.

"Bad conditions" in Poland led to Mrs. Szymanska's "escape" from that country to West Germany a few months ago. She obtained permission from the Polish government to visit a sister in Baumholder, West Germany, and never returned.

Through the help of Congressman Edward Hutchinson, Mrs. Szymanska was able to come to this country. Mrs. Priebe recently suffered a heart attack and Hutchinson wrote the American Consulate in Frankfurt, West Germany, who granted her a three months visa. She will try to get permission to remain permanently in this country.

Mrs. Szymanska is staying with her neice, Mrs. Hugo Schmidt of St. Joseph, whose friend, Mrs. Forrest (Virginia B.) Pearson Forrest of Benton Harbor, contacted Hutchinson about getting the visa.

Mrs. Szymanska arrived at O'Hare airport March 5, and was picked up by Mrs. Priebe's husband and a friend. Priebe said that after so many years he did not recognize her at the airport, nor she him. With the help of airport personel, however, they finally found each other, and that evening she and her sister were tearfully reunited.

Four sons and four grandchildren of Mrs. Szymanska remain in Poland. Her sons work hard in a coal mine there, but make "hardly enough to live on," according to Mrs. Schmidt. She did receive what is similar to our social security, but it was "not nearly enough."

Mrs. Schmidt says when they took her aunt to a grocery store here for the first time, the selections were so enormous and varied to her, that she "couldn't believe it!" In Poland there is usually only one choice of meat, and it is mostly bones, Mrs. Schmidt says. The people must wait in line sometimes as long as five hours for poor quality meat, and if they don't want it, they do without.

Mrs. Szymanska, who is German, loves attending St. Matthew's Evangelical Lutheran church, Benton Harbor, according to her niece. Sunday morning services delivered in German are something she hasn't been able to enjoy for years in Poland. The few churches there deliver services in Polish. In fact, Mrs. Schmidt says, "people would call her (Mrs. Szymanska) bad names" just for speaking German in public.

Although she will never be able to visit her children, Mrs. Szymanska is happy here and has several relatives within a small enough area to visit.

Mrs. Schmidt says that when her aunt wakes up in the morning she says she "has to think first if she is dreaming or if it's really true that she is finally here."

'Angels' On Best Seller List

By GEORGE W. CORNELL
AP Religion Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Sometimes religious books far outsell the widely touted, so-called "best sellers," but never show up on the lists because of practices in the trade. But a current religious number has hit such a peak that it has broken into nearly all the front-runner listings.

It's "Angels: God's Secret Agents," by evangelist Billy Graham, with 1,210,000 copies distributed since it came out last fall.

"It's the fastest selling book we've ever had, and to the best of our knowledge, that anybody's ever had," says Alex Liepa, an editor of Doubleday company.

Nevertheless, it's one of the few religious books to push into the major "best-selling" lists, even though such books often beat those listed in national sales and popularity among American readers, and though sales of religious books lately have climbed faster than other categories.

Jennifer Bryon, of Nashville, Tenn., a Baptist Book Stores communications specialist who has made an extensive study of the situation, says:

"The fact that books designed for a specific market may not get on a best-seller list even though they sell as many copies as those that do gives the public a wrong picture of what books are really selling."

One reason mentioned for the disparity is that compilers of the lists generally don't check with religious books stores, of which there are more than 3,500 in the country. Other factors also apparently figure in the problem, including a tendancy not to consider religious books in the general non-fiction category.

"To say the best-seller lists are inaccurate is to put it mildly," says Liepa, citing various religious books that don't make the lists while selling far more than secular number which do.

Peter Kladder of Zondervan Corp., a big religious publishing house in Grand Rapids, Mich., which recently opened new multi-million-dollar manufacturing and warehousing facilities there, says:

"I'm convinced that if there was a really good system of determining sales, a third of the books on the best-seller lists would be 'religious'."

For example, more than 30 religious books in the last five years have had sales exceeding one million, outdoing most "best sellers", but without making the "best-seller" lists. The superseller of them all, a paraphrase of Scripture called "The Living Bible" by Kenneth Taylor, has sold more than 18 million in that period, 3 million of them in a Doubleday edition only in general trade stores, but made few top-selling lists.

Over-all, religious book sales have gone up 18.8 per cent since 1967, compared to an over-all book publishing gain of less than 10 per cent, the Association of American Publishers reports.

Gerald Battle, marketing manager of Cokesbury, the United Methodist bookstore chain, said its stores "are selling more religious books of every kind that at any time in our history."

As to why many high-demand religious books don't get on the lists, Datsey Marples of Publisher's Weekly told Miss Bryon: "Many religious books are sold through groups and can't be counted on our lists. Also, a lot of religious bookstores are part of some church ... so we don't use them in our survey."

However, Billy Graham's volume on angels has crashed the barrier. In the book, he notes that there has been a rash of books on devils, but scarcely anything written in this century on angels.

"We have more than given the devil his due," Graham says, adding that angels should get some balancing attention.

"Angels have a much more important place in the Bible than the devil and demons," he writes, citing many references, and relating various accounts of apparent angelic interventions in modern times. "Time has come to focus on the positives of the Christian faith."

DON'T WANT WOMEN

NEW YORK (AP) — A group of 13 influential Episcopalians, including several editors of independent publications and leaders of the Church's Anglo-Catholic or high-Church wing, have declared they "would never submit" to Church authorization of the ordination of women.

They say in an "open letter" to the Church's bishops that if the Episcopal convention next fall approves ordination of women, "we would refuse to accept this action" and it would "shatter the unity of our branch of the Church, in the inevitable course of time."

Signers included the Rev. Canon Albert J. duBois, president of the American Church Union; Dorothy A. Faber, editor of The Christian Challenge; the Rev. Carroll E. Simcox, editor of the Living Church, and Perry Laukhuff, editor of the Certain Trumpet.

CHINESE NEW TESTAMENT

NEW YORK (AP) — A translation of the New Testament in modern Chinese has been published by the United Bible Societies, the first new version in that language in 56 years.

It's called "Today's Chinese Version," making the text available in contemporary Mandarin Chinese, using simple words and avoiding theologically technical terms.

The translation is based on the same "common speech" principles that were used in producing the American Bible Society's widely popular "Today's English Version."

Work on a Chinese Old Testament translation now is in progress and is expected to be completed by the end of the decade.

Meet After 35 Years

By MARYANNE BUTT
Staff Writer

Mrs. Natalie Priebe of Benton Harbor and her sister, Mrs. Leokadia Szymanska, have been reunited for the first time in 35 years.

For 33 years, until Mrs. Szymanska was able to obtain the Priebes' address here, Mrs. Priebe did not even know if her sister was alive.

Mrs. Szymanska, who left Zary, Poland, for West Germany a few months ago, arrived here March 5.

Mrs. Priebe, her husband Adolf, two daughters and a granddaughter, escaped from Poland in 1945 to East Germany. The Priebes then escaped from East Germany in 1951, to West Berlin, and finally came to this country in 1956. Mrs. Szymanska remained in Poland. The sisters lived far apart in Poland, and had not seen each other for several years prior to the Priebes' escape.

"Bad conditions" in Poland led to Mrs. Szymanska's "escape" from that country to West Germany a few months ago. She obtained permission from the Polish government to visit a sister in Baumholder, West Germany, and never returned.

Through the help of Congressman Edward Hutchinson, Mrs. Syzmanska was able to come to this country. Mrs. Priebe recently suffered a heart attack and Hutchinson wrote the American Consulate in Frankfurt, West Germany, who granted her a three months visa. She will try to get permission to remain permanently in this country.

Mrs. Szymanska is staying with her neice, Mrs. Hugo Schmidt of St. Joseph, whose friend, Mrs. Forrest (Virginina B.) Pearson Forrest of Benton Harbor, contacted Hutchinson about getting the visa.

Mrs. Szymanska arrived at O'Hare airport March 5, and was picked up by Mrs. Priebe's husband and a friend. Priebe said that after so many years he did not recognize her at the airport, nor she him. With the help of airport personel, however, they finally found each other, and that evening she and her sister were tearfully reunited.

Four sons and four grandchildren of Mrs. Szymanska remain in Poland. Her sons work hard in a coal mine there, but make "hardly enough to live on," according to Mrs. Schmidt. She did receive what is similar to our social security, but it was "not nearly enough."

Mrs. Schmidt says when they took her aunt to a grocery store here for the first time, the selections were so enormous and varied to her, that she "couldn't believe it!" In Poland there is usually only one choice of meat, and it is mostly bones, Mrs. Schmidt says. The people must wait in line sometimes as long as five hours for poor quality meat, and if they don't want it, they do without.

Mrs. Szymanska, who is German, loves attending St. Matthew's Evangelical Lutheran church, Benton Harbor, according to her niece. Sunday morning services delivered in German are something she hasn't been able to enjoy for years in Poland. The few churches there deliver services in Polish. In fact, Mrs. Schmidt says, "people would call her (Mrs. Szymanska) bad names" just for speaking German in public.

Although she will never be able to visit her children, Mrs. Szymanska is happy here and has several relatives within a small enough area to visit.

Mrs. Schmidt says that when her aunt wakes up in the morning she says she "has to think first if she is dreaming or if it's really true that she is finally here."

'Angels' On Best Seller List

By GEORGE W. CORNELL
AP Religion Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Sometimes religious books far outsell the widely touted, so-called "best sellers," but never show up on the lists because of practices in the trade. But a current religious number has hit such a peak that it has broken into nearly all the front-runner listings.

It's "Angels: God's Secret Agents," by evangelist Billy Graham, with 1,210,000 copies distributed since it came out last fall.

"It's the fastest selling book we've ever had, and to the best of our knowledge, that anybody's ever had," says Alex Liepa, an editor of Doubleday company.

Nevertheless, it's one of the few religious books to push into the major "best-selling" lists, even though such books often beat those listed in national sales and popularity among American readers, and though sales of religious books lately have climbed faster than other categories.

Jennifer Bryon, of Nashville, Tenn., a Baptist Book Stores communications specialist who has made an extensive study of the situation, says:

"The fact that books designed for a specific market may not get on a best-seller list even though they sell as many copies as those that do gives the public a wrong picture of what books are really selling."

One reason mentioned for the disparity is that compilers of the lists generally don't check with religious books stores, of which there are more than 3,500 in the country. Other factors also apparently figure in the problem, including a tendancy not to consider religious books in the general non-fiction category.

"To say the best-seller lists are inaccurate is to put it mildly," says Liepa, citing various religious books that don't make the lists while selling far more than secular number which do.

Peter Kladder of Zondervan Corp., a big religious publishing house in Grand Rapids, Mich., which recently opened new multi-million-dollar manufacturing and warehousing facilities there, says:

"I'm convinced that if there was a really good system of determining sales, a third of the books on the best-seller lists would be 'religious'."

For example, more than 30 religious books in the last five years have had sales exceeding one million, outdoing most "best sellers", but without making the "best-seller" lists. The superseller of them all, a paraphrase of Scripture called "The Living Bible" by Kenneth Taylor, has sold more than 18 million in that period, 3 million of them in a Doubleday edition only in general trade stores, but made few top-selling lists.

Over-all, religious book sales have gone up 16.6 per cent since 1967, compared to an over-all book publishing gain of less than 10 per cent, the Association of American Publishers reports.

Gerald Battle, marketing manager of Cokesbury, the United Methodist bookstore chain, said its stores "are selling more religious books of every kind that at any time in our history."

As to why many high-demand religious books don't get on the lists, Daisey Maryles of Publisher's Weekly told Miss Bryon: "Many religious books are sold through groups and can't be counted on our lists. Also, a lot of religious bookstores are part of some church ... so we don't use them in our survey."

However, Billy Graham's volume on angels has crashed the barrier. In the book, he notes that there has been a rash of books on devils, but scarcely anything written in this century on angels.

"We have more than given the devil his due," Graham says, adding that angels should get some balancing attention.

"Angels have a much more important place in the Bible than the devil and demons," he writes, citing many references, and relating various accounts of apparent angelic interventions in modern times. "Time has come to focus on the positives of the Christian faith."

THE BIBLE

No. 231. God's Message to Isaiah

The great prophet Isaiah, the son of Amoz, received certain messages from the Lord, especially those concerning the evil and unfaithful ways of the people of Jerusalem and Judah during the reigns of Uzziah, Jotham, Ahaz, and Hezekiah.

"Ah sinful nation, a people laden with iniquity, a seed of evil doers, children that are corrupters! they have forsaken the Lord, they have provoked the Holy One of Israel unto anger, they are gone away backward." (Isaiah 1:4)

"Your country is desolate, your cities are burned with fire: your land, strangers devour it in your presence, and it is desolate, as overthrown by strangers. And the daughter of Zion is left as a cottage in a vineyard, as a lodge in a garden of cucumbers, as a besieged city. Except the Lord of hosts had left unto us a very small remnant, we should have been as Sodom, and we should have been like unto Gomorrah. (Isaiah 1:7-9)

'Your Problems' By Ann Landers

Identical Twin Replies

Dear Ann: Ha! I finally gotcha! I've been waiting a long time to nail you and today was the day. I refer to your reply to the mother of identical twins.

Since I am the mother of identical twins, I consider myself something of an expert. I never felt that strangers who stopped me on the street were "picking my kids to pieces." They were admiring and congratulating me for having been the recipient of a rare gift from God. You should have told her to be proud that people cared enough to look for identifying characteristics. She ought to love every minute of it. All too soon her twins will be grown and she'll miss the glorious days when she took them out and showed them off. — New Orleans

Dear N.O.: You may be the mother of identical twins, but I AM an identical twin and can report first- -hand what it's like to be victimized by well-meaning strangers who are constatly examining twins for "differences" and verbalizing their "discoveries."

It's hard on the twin who doesn't have the dimples or the prettier head of hair, or the one who's slightly plumper. I felt "fat" as a child (although I wasn't really) because my twin was smaller. This is what comparisons by strangers can do.

My original advice still stands. The mother of twins should permit NO comparisons whatever. Someone always suffers.

The next letter makes the point far better than I. Please read it.

Dear Ann Landers: I'm 15 years old and an "identical twin," which is what a lot of ignorant people call us even though my sister and I are not identical at all. If those gawkers would only take the time to look at us they would see many differences. We look a lot alike but we aren't carbon copies of each other.

I was glad when you told off the mother of twins who let her children get picked to pieces by strangers on the street. (Sometimes relatives do the same thing and I believe they should be told off, too.)

People start out by just looking (like we were freaks or something), then they begin to make remarks like, "That one has frizzier hair," or, "This one's nose is wider."

I hope your readers learned something when you told them never to compare one twin with the other. They might not realize it but they are adding fuel to a fire that is already too hot. — An Original, Not A Xerox

Dear Original: Now that the mother has heard from two identical twins (you and me), let's hope she gets the picture. If she doesn't, perhaps we've helped to enlighten other mothers who were doubly blessed.

He'll Change

Dear Ann Landers: This letter is being written by ten students in the ninth grade of a school in Illinois.

A certain teacher has the habit of saying "at this point in time" whenever he opens his mouth. This phrase, as you know, came out of the Watergate hearings and we've all heard it so often we are ready to toss our cookies. It's like a job in the ear with a sharp stick. Please help us wise this teacher up without endangering our grades. — Plenty Anonymous

Dear Plenty: Mail this column to "Mr. Jab In The Ear," and I'll bet you'll notice a change. Some people are totally unaware of a repetitive speech pattern until it is brought to their attention.

Don't flunk your chemistry test. Love is more than one set of glands calling to another. If you have trouble making a distinction you need Ann's booklet, "Love or Sex and How To Tell the Difference." Send a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope with your request and 50 cents in coin to Ann Landers, P.O. Box 1400, Elgin, Ill. 60120.

Burns over large areas of skin still present a serious threat to life. In few fields of medicine have so many brilliant devices been used to enhance the possibility of survival from severe burns.

A new artificial skin has been created by Dr. John F. Burke and his colleagues. Working at the Shriners Burns Institute in Boston, he has produced a new material which, he says, "is more promising than anything we've used before in 15 years of research."

Stones in the kidney and in the bladder can now, in many instances, be broken up and removed by a special technique.

Dr. Alex M. Raney, of the Veterans Administration Hospital in Wilmington, Del., has been using a method known as "electro-hydraulic lithotripsy" to break up these stones, or calculi.

The device that is used is a modification of one that originated in the Soviet Union.

By this method, the stone is cracked and almost pulverized by a high voltage instrument.

Many surgeons all over the country are using this and similar techniques in experimental animals to be sure of its complete safety.

This opens new avenues for the possible removal of stones anywhere along the urinary tract, without having to resort to open surgery.

One of the great hopes of modern medicine is to flush out of hiding people who have early, undetected diabetes. Only in this way can the complications caused by neglect be prevented.

Yearly examination, of course, is the major method by which diabetes can be detected very early.

Now a new test has been reported by Dr. Melvin Blecher, of the Georgetown University Medical Center in Washington, D.C. He has found an interesting phenomenon by which the white blood corpuscles in the blood stream bind themselves to glucose and insulin.

On the basis of this finding, Dr. Blecher has devised a simple method for the early detection of diabetes.

South can count 13 easy tricks if hearts and diamonds both break 3-3. He can count 12 if either suit breaks. Suppose both suits are unkind enough to misbehave?

South can still make his contract if he can develop a squeeze. The squeeze will develop if one opponent stops both suits. It will fail miserably if each opponent has a red-suit stopper.

It will fail even more miserably if South wins the first club. South only has 11 winners and must lose the first in order to go through the process known as rectifying the count.

Any smart declarer is not going to worry about giving up an overtrick when the contract is a slam so South ducks the first club.

He wins the second and proceeds to run off four spades. Everyone is down to seven cards and poor East has to clinch a diamond or heart whereupon South runs off the rest of the tricks.

Garden Club Begins Year

BUCHANAN — Mrs. Walter Ross, president of the Buchanan Garden club which is celebrating its 20th anniversary, has announced the club's activities for the year.

Applications for the 1976 Youth Gardeners are available at the four elementary schools, according to Mrs. Ross. Applications should be returned by Friday, March 26. Co-chairmen are Mrs. Kenneth Bever and Mrs. Dennis Garcia.

According to Mrs. John Zeider, youth activities coordinator, members of the Youth Garden club will each receive a packet of Marigold seeds giving them the opportunity to participate in a project called, "Marigold Merry-Go-Round." Youth Garden club members throughout the United States are expected to participate.

According to Mrs. Ross, rules for the free-hand poster contest featuring the anti-litter theme are available for all interested persons. Metea Court will have copies of the rules for senior citizens.

All interested persons, kindergarten through senior citizens, may participate. The 1975 winners will be announced in April.

South can count 13 easy tricks if hearts and diamonds both break 3-3. He can count 12 if either suit breaks. Suppose both suits are unkind enough to misbehave?

South can still make his contract if he can develop a squeeze. The squeeze will develop if one opponent stops both suits. It will fail miserably if each opponent has a red-suit stopper.

It will fail even more miserably if South wins the first club. South only has 11 winners and must lose the first in order to go through the process known as rectifying the count.

Any smart declarer is not going to worry about giving up an overtrick when the contract is a slam so South ducks the first club.

He wins the second and proceeds to run off four spades. Everyone is down to seven cards and poor East has to chuck a diamond or heart whereupon South runs off the rest of the tricks.

Chiropractic Physicians Sue Atty. Gen. Kelley

LANSING, Mich. (AP) — The Michigan State Chiropractic Association filed a $200,000 suit Friday against Atty. Gen. Frank Kelley, charging him with ignoring the chiropractic law.

The case, filed in Ingham County Circuit Court, alleges Kelley has "conspired" to "supress the practice of chiropractic" in Michigan.

"The attorney general has filed various civil suits against chiropractors, charging them with practicing medicine without a license," said Dr. Kenneth Wells, president of the association. "The facts are exactly to the contrary."

Wells said Kelley violated the law by filing such suits, because civil complaints against chiropractors are required to be heard by the Michigan State Board of Chiropractic Examiners after an investigation by the Department of Licensing and Regulation.

"He has done it (filed the suits) in an egotistic attempt to gain publicity for himself posing as the champion of the health of the public, when in fact he is jeopardizing it," Wells added.

Wells also said Kelley improperly attempted in his suits to set rules for the practice of chiropractic.

Asst. Atty. Gen. Stanley Steinborn said his office files suit when asked to by the Department of Licensing and Regulation, whose job it is to inform the Board of Chiropractic Examiners.

Steinborn said Kelley has filed "six or eight" suits in the last year — "less than the number against pharmicists or physicians."

"The attorney general's policy is to enforce the law, and to enforce it against everyone, and when we find chiropractors violating the law we have taken what we deem appropriate action under the law," Steinborn said. "We certainly have not singled out chiropractors for any special treatment."

Steinborn added that some of the complaints against chiropractors have come from other "militant" chiropractors who feel their colleagues are going beyond the law's restrictions on what treatments chiropractors can administer.

Milliken Dislikes Early Pay Hike

By MALCOLM JOHNSON
Associated Press Writer

LANSING, Mich. (AP) — Gov. William Milliken is expected to oppose a Civil Service Commission recommendation that state employes get a pay boost two months earlier than scheduled.

A spokesman for Milliken said the governor believed the $10 million necessary to boost salaries on May 1, instead of the scheduled July 1, just does not exist in this year's tight budget.

Preliminary estimates from the Department of Management and Budget were that $10 million would be needed to fund the increases, $7.3 million of which would have to come from the already-slim general fund, the spokesman said.

The Civil Service Commission's recommendation on a 3-0 vote Friday must be approved by the legislature since it is contrary to state constitutional provisions that say pay hikes will occur at the beginning of the fiscal year.

Milliken will be speaking with legislative leaders about his opposition to the idea next week, the spokesman said.

The commission's vote Friday to move up the pay hikes did not, however, satisfy State Police union representatives who are seeking collective bargaining rights to better their members' financial status.

Doil Brown, executive director of the Michigan State Police Troopers Association, said the action is intended to undercut support for collective bargaining rights. He and other state employe representatives accused Gov. William Milliken of orchestrating the move.

Brown said the action is designed to take the steam out of legislation in the House which would give collective bargaining to state employes, including the State Police. Two resolutions granting such rights by amending the Constitution need legislative approval to go on the November ballot.

The raises are 5 and 8 per cent. Most state workers would get the lower raise, with State Police and certain physicians an psychiatrists slated for the larger boost.

The commission granted those increases in December. They are expected to cost the state an extra $43 million in the next fiscal year.

The commission's action came as the result of urgings by Milliken and state lawmakers to reconsider the raises. The concern centered around disparities between State Police pay and pay for other law enforcement officers.

Surveys have shown that State Police troopers — making a maximum of $14,281 — are below 74 other police agencies in pay, most of them in the Detroit metropolitan area. The troopers have launched a campaign to win support for collective bargaining.

But the commission's action did not satisfy Brown, who accused it of trying to "sabotage the two bills" providing for collective bargaining. "Today is a classic example of why we need collective bargaining," he said. "The commission is listening to politicians instead of employe organizations."

Chiropractic Physicians Sue Atty. Gen. Kelley

Say Milliken's Drafting $100 Million Spending Cut

By MARY STEVENSON
Associated Press Writer

LANSING, Mich. (AP) — A Republican leader in the House says Gov. William Milliken is drafting a $90 million to $100 million spending cut in case the House stalls legislation extending the fiscal year.

House Minority Leader Dennis Cawthorne said Friday Milliken might have to issue an executive order mandating the cut if the House does not act on the extension bill within the next 10 days to two weeks.

Cawthorne, R-Manistee, said he did not know where the cuts would hit. But 18 school districts have already filed suit over $124 million worth of cuts the governor made last year in an attempt to cut the estimated $124 million deficit.

Budget director Gerald Miller said earlier this week he would rather extend the fiscal year than make more budget cuts to prevent cutting back services and increasing hardships on people.

Milliken has said the fiscalyear extension bill will bring the state $90 million extra by extending the fiscal year three months to Sept. 30.

The House Appropriations Committee has refused to send the measure to the full House until it receives documentation on the $90 million estimate. The committee also wants to receive supplemental appropriations bills to show how money will be allocated in that three-month period.

Cawthorne said if the fiscal year is not extended soon, but keeps its current ending date of June 30, the Bureau of Management and Budget must start closing its books within the next few weeks.

The state constitution requires a balanced budget.

Two other budget-balancing bills allowing the state to borrow $50 million from the Veterans Trust Fund and $20 million from the Motor Vehicle Accident Claims Fund have been sent to the House.

Miller has also said that if the fiscal-year extension bill is not passed, $70 million to $80 million will also have to be cut out of Milliken's proposed $3.2 billion budget for 1976-77.

On other matters, Cawthorne said this week's protest here by auto repairmen opposing the state's new auto repair law could make it more difficult to pass regulatory legislation in the future. A suit challenging the constitutionality of that law has also been filed.

In particular, Cawthorne said, land use legislation in the House Appropriations Committee might be hurt. That bill would establish a land use commission to coordinate local land use agencies and regulate the use of private land.

"I think the weak and wavering (on the land use bill) will be further weakened and wavering because of the fact the grass roots are saying we don't want regulation," he said.

PREVENT HEALTH HAZARDS FIRST

Appeals Court Rules For EPA

WASHINGTON (AP) — The U.S. Court of Appeals, in a decision already being blasted by the chemical industry, says the government is expected to prevent damage to public health, not wait until the damage is done.

Its 5-4 ruling, with wide implications, confirms the Environmental Protection Agency's authority to order reductions of lead in gasoline, even before any public health hazards have been positively established.

Ethyl Corp. said it would appeal the ruling to the Supreme Court.

In its decision Friday, the court majority said regulators must be able to head off potential dangers without awaiting the final, perhaps disastrous, proof.

"Speculation, conflicts in evidence and theoretical extrapolation typify their every action," said the court's majority. "How else can they act ... ?"

The decision appeared to uphold EPA's authority to regulate a broad range of environmental issues where danger to human health seems likely, even though it has not yet been scientifically proved.

The decision cited as examples such recent controversies as the discharge of asbestos fibers into water, work-place exposures to vinyl chloride and the banned use of the pesticides DDT, aldrin and dieldrin.

"Never before have massive quantities of asbestiform (asbestos-carrying) tailings been spewed into the water we drink.

"Never before have our industrial workers been occupationally exposed to vinyl chloride or to asbestos dust.

"Never before has the food we eat been permeated with DDT or the pesticides aldrin and dieldrin.

"And never before have hundreds of thousands of tons of lead emissions been disgorged annually into the air we breathe."

The court concluded: "The statutes — and common sense — demand regulatory action to prevent harm, even if the regulator is less than certain that harm is otherwise inevitable."

But Vice Pesident Lawrence Blanchard Jr., of Ethyl Corp., a leading producer of lead additive, said Friday night, "The fact remains that lead antiknocks have been used in gasoline for more than 50 years; and after all of that time, no person has ever been found to have an identifiable toxic effect from the amount of lead in the atmosphere."

Lead is an additive that promotes smoother engine operation. The EPA has required the gradual reduction of lead over five years in all gasoline to reduce health hazards.

Flu Epidemic Appears Passed

ATLANTA (AP) — The peak of the nationwide flu epidemic appears to have passed, although influenza-related deaths were up slightly last week, the U.S. Center for Disease Control reports.

Thirty-four states and the District of Columbia reported a decline in flu cases, the center said Friday in its weekly report.

Kalamazoo Senator Named Michigan's Reagan Chief

LANSING, Mich. (AP) — A Kalamazoo state senator will head up Ronald Reagan's presidential primary bid in President Ford's home state of Michigan.

Republican State Sen. John Welborn, 43, announced his appointment Friday and said he will run a "grass roots effort" to give Reagan a good showing May 18.

"I don't expect him to win. Reagan doesn't expect to win Michigan," Welborn said.

Welborn said a state treasurer for the campaign has not been appointed. He said he had no estimate on how much the Michigan campaign will spend or raise but "it will probably be a minimum amount."

Welborn said he will recommend that Reagan make unemployment, "big government," taxes and the national deficit issues in his Michigan campaign.

He said he has set no minimum of delegates he wants Reagan to get in Michigan.

Welborn said he doesn't think he's bucking the state Republican party in backing Reagan. He said that last fall he was the only one of the 14 Senate Republicans to endorse Reagan over Ford.

"We have a primary. It should be an open primary. I personally have supported Reagan for some time as a matter of philosophy. I am allowing the people of this state to have a choice."

Welborn said Reagan will come through Michigan "for more than one appearance" but could not be mor think it will be a statewide effort," Welborn added.

Welborn said he did not check with Republican Gov. William Milliken before accepting the job but said Milliken knows about it.

And he said he does not feel that Reagan's only chance to get on a presidential ticket is by running as Gerald Ford's vice presidential candidate.

"I am not working for a vicepresidential candidate," he said.

Welborn said that last fall he was the only one of the 14 state Senate Republicans to endorse Reagan instead of Ford.

Welborn served in the House in 1972, and was elected to the Senate in 1974.

Many Instant Lottery Agents Sold Out

LANSING, Mich. (AP) — The Michigan Lottery Bureau said Friday its 56 million instant lottery tickets will be sold out well before the official closing date April 6.

Many of the 8,000 ticket agents are already out, the bureau said. The finale of the game, the bureau's second instant game, will see 56 contestants up for the top prize of $1 million. That drawing will be at 7:30 p.m. April 21 in Detroit's Cobo Hall.

Mayor Coleman Young is expected to present the top prize and about 55 other smaller prizes of $50,000, $35,000 and $10,000.

A third instant game to be launched in mid-April with 60 million tickets to be printed for that game. In another new feature, a special "comeback prize" of $5,000 will be added to the Lottery's weekly "Super Play" television show next Thursday.

One contestant of the six on the show will win the comeback prize, plus the right to return to the show the following week for another try at the big money. Super Play prizes are $10,000, $12,500, $15,000, $25,000 and $200,000.

Report Threat At Palisades Plant

DETROIT (AP) — Two of the 175 threats or acts of violence against the nation's nuclear facilities since 1969 have come in Michigan, Consumers Power Co. said Friday.

Detroit Edison Co., also with nuclear facilities, said it received no threats.

Consumers said one threat was reported last Dec. 2 to State Police who reported it to Consumers Power. The utility then notified the Nuclear Regulatory Commission in Washington.

A Consumers spokesman said the threat was aimed at the firm's Palisades nuclear plant near South Haven. He said a worker at an aluminum plant went to State Police and reported a fellow worker was making threats against Palisades. An investigation, said the spokesman, showed the man who made the threats had a history of mental instability and was under the supervision of a court-appointed psychiatrist in Illinois.

The firm's security police attached little importance to the threat because of the nature and timing of the call, the spokesman said. Consumers said the second threat was made Dec. 29, 1972 by a man who called its Flint service center and said, "The nuke plant is going to be blown up because of the Vietnam war." Nothing more was ever heard from the caller and there was no attempt to blow up a Consumers plant, the firm said.

Consumers also said its Palisades plant, which has been out of service since late December, is expected to resume production in mid-April.

Ralph B. Sewell, Consumers' nuclear licensing administrator, said, "I think we are out the woods."

Palisades, with a 700,000 kilowatt output, is the biggest plant in Consumers system. However, it has been closed because of corrosion in some of the 17,000 tubes in its steam generator system. Consumers said tests showed the plant would be able to run at full power regardless.

He said a worker at an aluminum plant went to State Police and reported a fellow worker was making threats against Palisades. An investigation, said the spokesman, showed the man who made the threats had a history of mental instability and was under the supervision of a court-appointed psychiatrist in Illinois.

The firm's security police attached little importance to the threat because of the nature and timing of the call, the spokesman said. Consumers said the second threat was made Dec. 29, 1972 by a man who called its Flint service center and said, "The nuke plant is going to be blown up because of the Vietnam war." Nothing more was ever heard from the caller and there was no attempt to blow up a Consumers plant, the firm said.

Consumers also said its Palisades plant, which has been out of service since late December, is expected to resume production in mid-April.

Ralph B. Sewell, Consumers' nuclear licensing administrator, said, "I think we are out the woods."

Palisades, with a 700,000 kilowatt output, is the biggest plant in Consumers system. However, it has been closed because of corrosion in some of the 17,000 tubes in its steam generator system. Consumers said tests showed the plant would be able to run at full power regardless.

Kalamazoo Senator Named Michigan's Reagan Chief

Republican State Sen. John Welborn, 43, announced his appointment Friday and said he will run a "grass roots effort" to give Reagan a good showing May 18.

"I don't expect him to win. Reagan doesn't expect to win Michigan," Welborn said.

Welborn said a state treasurer for the campaign has not been appointed. He said he had no estimate on how much the Michigan campaign will spend or raise but "It will probably be a minimum amount."

Welborn said he will recommend that Reagan make unemployment, "big government," taxes and the national deficit issues in his Michigan campaign.

He said he has set no minimum of delegates he wants Reagan to get in Michigan.

Welborn said he doesn't think he's bucking the state Republican party in backing Reagan. He said that last fall he was the only one of the 14 Senate Republicans to endorse Reagan over Ford.

"We have a primary. It should be an open primary. I personally have supported Reagan for some time as a matter of philosophy. I am allowing the people of this state to have a choice."

Welborn said Reagan will come through Michigan "for more than one appearance" but could not be mor think it will be a statewide effort," Welborn added.

Welborn said he did not check with Republican Gov. William Milliken before accepting the job but said Milliken knows about it.

And he said he does not feel that Reagan's only chance to get on a presidential ticket is by running as Gerald Ford's vice presidential candidate.

"I am not working for a vicepresidential candidate," he said.

Welborn said that last fall he was the only one of the 14 state Senate Republicans to endorse Reagan instead of Ford.

Welborn served in the House in 1972, and was elected to the Senate in 1974.

More Insulation Pays As Cost Of Heating, Cooling Home Rises

By ANDY LANG
AP Newsfeatures

Do you really save money on energy conservation improvements, and, if so, is it enough to make it worthwhile?

A study by the National Bureau of Standards, in conjunction with the Federal Energy Administration, gives affirmative answers to both parts of that question. How much you should invest depends equally on climate and energy prices, since both affect your heating and air conditioning bills. The bureau gives this example:

"When prices for home heating oil doubled in Washington, D.C., the effect on a home owner's heating bill was the same as physically moving his house to Minnesota."

Increases in the cost of energy for heating and cooling homes has led the government to recommend much higher levels of insulation — often double or more the amounts that were thought sufficient even a year or two ago. The NBC now says:

"In some parts of the country, when higher-priced fuels are used, R-38 insulation (above 12 inches of mineral fiber batts) in the attic is recommended to give the best results. Even in milder climates, R-30 insulation (about 10 inches) may be economically justified if you use oil or electric heating at current higher prices. For instance, for a home in Indianapolis, recommendations are R-30 ceiling insulation, full insulation in walls, R-19 insulation in floors over cold spaces, and storm sash for all windows nine square feet or more in area."

A colder climate calls for buttoning-up a house even more tightly. Requirements may be less in a warmer climate, but not if a home is air conditioned, because then energy is saved in the summer, too.

"R" numbers call for a little explanation. Energy savings result from decreasing the heat flow through the exterior shell of a building. The resistance, or R value, of insulation is the measure of its ability to decrease heat flow. Although two different kinds of insulation may be of different thicknesses, they'll perform equally well if the R numbers are the same. If R numbers are different, the one with the higher R will perform better. To meet federal specifications, R values are generally marked on packages of insulation. If they aren't, beware.

Storm windows, weatherstripping, and caulking around window and door frames are recommended, except in the mildest climates.

Q. — In removing the clean-out plug in the U-shaped pipe under the sink, does the water have to be turned off?

A. — No. But be sure to place some kind of container under the plug as you remove it. Otherwise the water in the pipe will run on the floor.

Q. — How can I estimate the number of tiles that will be needed for covering my kitchen floor? I intend to use 9 by 9-inch tiles.

A. — Determining the approximate square footage of the room. Multiply by 2 to get the number of tiles needed. Thus, if a room is 10 by 10, the square footage is 100. You will need 200 tiles. Or you can take the room measurements to your tile dealer, who has a chart showing the number of tiles needed. By the way, the formula just given takes into consideration the extra tiles you will need for cutting and fitting around irregularities.

Q. — My husband and I recently signed to buy a new house in a development. The house was built last February, has never been occupied and was priced at its lowest figure since being built, so everyone concerned assumes that I qualified us to get the 6 per cent tax deduction. We were told by the builder that, in order to get the deduction, the house would have to be occupied before Jan. 1, 1977. It is our plan to have my daughter and her husband move in this year and remain until 1978, at which time my husband and I will occupy the house. I have now been told that we cannot do this if we wish to get the tax deduction. We are confused, since we were under the impression that occupancy before 1977 was the qualification. Can you clarify this for us? Can an exception be made?

A. — The Treasury Department says that, to get the tax deduction, the buyers themselves must occupy the house. If others occupy it, even if they are close relatives, the credit does not apply. However, since the builder has no control over the regulations on tax credit, it is a waste of time to try to get him to make an exception in your case. For a detailed clarification of the entire matter, drop in at an Internal Revenue Service office.

Building News

Q. — I have gotten a lot of good tips out of your articles, so I thought it only fair that I should pass one along to you. I have discovered that foam rubber of any thickness can be cut easily with my electric kitchen knife. It's much easier to work with than scissors.

A. — Thanks. As a matter of fact, upholsterers use an electric knife on the thicker pieces of foam. Scissors work well when the foam is less than two inches thick.

Q. — I have heard that vinegar can be used to soften old wood glue. Is this true?

A. — In many cases, yes. Warm the vinegar slightly before applying it. Don't expect magical results. Your hope is that the vinegar will soften the glue enough for it to be scraped off.

Q. — We have an old-fashioned laundry tub made of ease cement. It has developed a crack on the inside wall. Can this be repaired?

A. — Yes. It can be patched the same way as you might patch a cracked sidewalk. Use one part of cement to three parts of sand — or a ready-mixed sand mix. Spread the mixture into the crack and smooth with a putty knife. For an extra strong bond, use one of the cements that has a liquid bonding agent to be used in place of water.

Scratches Yield To Rubdown

From ASSOCIATED PRESS

Got tiny scratches on top of beautiful wooden furniture?

Give it a pumice-rottenstone treatment. Both the pumice and the rottenstone are purchased in powdered form. Begin with pumice. Sprinkle a bit of it on the wood over the scratches, covering a fairly small area at a time.

Apply a little water or oil. Rub with a felt pad in the direction of the grain.

In a few minutes, the area will become smooth to the touch and the scratches will have disappeared.

When the entire top has been completed, it should be very, very smooth. The beginner may be dismayed to discover, however, that the original gloss is no longer there. It's because of the dull appearance that the second and final step is necessary, polishing. Follow the same procedure that you did the first time, except that this time you use rottenstone powder rather than pumice.

After you have gone over the entire surface, put aside the rottenstone and continue the rubbing, this time with a clean piece of felt.

There are also several types of rubbing compounds on the market designed to do away with pumice and rottenstone.

Full Loads In Washers, Fixing Leaky Taps Keeps Lid On Bills

Energy conservation can keep more than the family car from running out of gas. It can refuel housewives wearied by work in inefficient kitchens, and energize homeowners depressed by rising heating costs.

Electric utilities suggest the best way to keep energy bills in check is to control home consumption. They say sizeable savings can be realized by tightening up on the home's three biggest fuel users: the furnace, water heater, and major appliances. Here are some suggestions:

Keep water temperature setting for appliances within the 140-160 degree limit.

Run washing machines and dryers with full loads.

Use the dishwasher only once a day, after the evening meal.

Take showers instead of baths. They use less water.

Don't use the range or oven to heat the kitchen.

Day-to-day savings in energy consumption and cost can mount when kitchen appliances are used efficiently. Well-organized storage can be a money-saver, too.

Here Are Heights For Kitchen Cabinets

If your kitchen remodeling plans include new cabinets, remember that their "working height" will be important to comfort and convenience.

— Counterheight for sit-down area, 30 inches.

The performance of cabinets is as important as their proper dimensions and installation, says NKCA.

Cabinets that carry the NKCA certification seal meet construction and performance standards of the American National Standards Institute (ANSI).

U.S. Ends CIA Roster Publication

By JAMES GERSTENZANG
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — The State Department has decided to stop publishing a once widely available personnel roster that could be used to identify CIA employes, and to limit distribution of another such list to a "need-to-know" basis.

The department acknowledged Friday that it was no longer printing its "foreign service list" and said it would limit access to the "biographic register." Both had been available to the public.

It attributed the move to the limits imposed on the distribution of personal information by the Privacy Act of 1974, but it also indicated that the documents' value to persons trying to identify CIA agents posing as State Department employes played a role in the decision.

"A new dimension was added to the problem when an American official was assassinated in Athens in December 1975, whose identification was attributed in part by the news media to the manner in which his name and biographic sketch were listed in the biographic register and foreign service list," spokesman John Ordway said.

He referred to the murder of Richard Welch, the CIA station chief in Athens, who was listed in biographial material as a State Department employe but had been identified in print on several occasions before his death as a CIA officer.

The foreign service list gives the names and assignments of the higher-ranking employes in each U.S. embassy around the world. It had been issued four times a year, but the most recent issue came out in August and has not been updated.

Ordway said the annual biographic register is being updated and would receive a limited distribution "to those employes of the department who have an official need to know." It was last distributed in 1974.

The register gives the names, and thumbnail biographical sketches including education and previous posts, of foreign service officers, employes of the Agency for International Development and the U.S. Information Agency, and employes hired on a temporary, contract basis known as "foreign service reserve."

Both documents could be used by someone with at least a casual knowledge about CIA "cover" or disguise to identify the agents among the department's employes by looking at job titles, job descriptions and previous posts.

One source indicated that the decision was made "at a fairly high level of the department."

"The department was concerned that the publication and issuance of documents containing personal information about employes without their written consent was in violation of the Privacy Act," said Ordway.

The decision to suspend and withhold the publications was praised by a former CIA agent who has been critical of what he considered the U.S. government's failure to assure adequate protection for agents, but it was criticized by the chairwoman of the House Government Operations subcommittee on government information and individ al rights.

Mike Ackerman, the former CIA agent, said in a telephone interview from Miami that the decision "makes the job of tracing CIA people much tougher."

Navy Picks State Woman

ANNAPOLIS, Md. (AP) — Donna J. Bueter of Washington, Mich., is among the first seven women named to attend the U.S. Naval Academy.

The seven were in a list released Thursday naming 247 appointees who will begin school as plebes at the academy in July. The plebe class usually has about 1,250 members, and the secretary of the Navy has authorized as many as 80 women in the class of 1980.

In announcing the appointments, the academy said it expects most of the plebe class to be picked by May 1.

IDAHO ANGLERS ANGRY

New Restriction Triggers 'Fish-In'

SALMON, Idaho (AP) — Fishermen are not usually a rebellious lot, but several hundred of them planned a "fishin" today on the Salmon River to protest restrictions on fishing for salmon and steelhead trout.

The Idaho Fish and Game Department said conservation officers would hand out citations to people who violate the restrictions, and deputy sheriffs and state police were in the area to maintain order.

The department recently banned fishing for salmon and steelhead — a major attraction for anglers from throughout the world — on what is called "The River of No Return."

The department said the river's stock was diminishing and banned steelhead and salmon fishing at least until fall.

But local fishermen see it differently. In addition to wanting to cast their own lines, people along the river also complain the restrictions will drive away the tourists who come to fish the river.

Jack Cook, a Salmon city councilman and one of the leaders of the ad hoc "fish-in," said several hundred fishermen from throughout Idaho and Montana would gather at North Fork, a river hamlet 15 miles downstream, to hold a eulogy for their dead fishing rights — and then go fishing.

One of the things rubbing the local fishermen the wrong way is that the restrictions apply only in Idaho. If they can't fish for salmon and steelhead, organizers of the "fish-in" said, similar restrictions should be imposed downstream in Oregon and Washington on the Columbia River, into which the Salmon River flows.

Another object, Cook said, is to convince Washington and Oregon that Idaho has a problem and should be admitted to the Columbia River Compact, an interstate organization which controls fishing seasons and fish runs on the Columbia River and its tributaries.

Joseph Greenley, Idaho's director of fish and game, said the department is committed by law to close the river when it is apparent fishing will harm the fishing grounds.

"If the fish-in occurs, the department must enforce the regulations," Greenley said. "We must protect what's left of Idaho's salmon and steelhead." He added that the department can't stop "a mass of people," but would try anyway.

Bo Callaway Denies Charge

WASHINGTON (AP) — Howard Callaway says it is "unlikely" that he will resume stewardship of President Ford's reelection campaign, but he maintains he did not use his influence in government for private gain.

"There was absolutely no impropriety. There was absolutely no use of the office of Secretary of the Army to help me personally," Callaway said in an ABC news interview Friday.

Van Buren Elderly Busing Reality Soon

PAW PAW — Bus transportation for senior citizens (60 and older) and the handicapped will soon be a reality for residents of Van Buren county.

Through the combined efforts of the Van Buren county commission, the Region 4 Area on Aging and the Van Buren Transportation task force, the service is expected to begin sometime in April after the two buses arrive.

The buses are being provided to the county through a $16,000 state grant awarded to Region 4, under the federal Urban Mass Transportation act.

According to Marylin Konkle, program director, initially the service will be limited to those needing transportation to doctors, health centers, social service centers and shopping centers in the county. The service will be flexible in order to allow for changes to meet the needs of the people as they become known, she said.

Van Buren county has been divided into five transportation districts with each receiving two service days per week. Arrangements are being made to set up call-in centers in each district and bus routes will be scheduled on the basis of calls received at the center 24 hours prior to the day of service in the district.

The five districts are as follows: District 1 — South Haven city and township and Covert township; district 2 — Bangor city and township plus Geneva, Columbia and Arlington townships; district 3 — Bloomingdale village and township plus Waverly, Pine Grove and Almena townships; district 4 — Hartford city and township; Lawrence village and township, and Keeler and Hamilton townships; and district 5 — Paw Paw city and township; Decatur village and township; Antwerp and Porter townships.

The program is being financed through funds received from federal, state and local units of government and through fare revenues of 50 cents per ride (one-way). Local units are expected to contribute $5,800 the first year based on 10 cents per capita per unit. The program's operating budget the first year has been pegged at $31,500, not including the cost of the buses, according to Mrs. Konkle.

For more information about the program, people can contact Mrs. Konkle at the Task Force office, temporarily located in the Covert township hall.

By RALPH LUTZ
Staff Writer

Dial-A-Ride provided instant transportation in Benton Harbor last night for someone who drove off in one of the van-type buses — without even dialing for service. The bus was reported stolen at 9 p.m. from outside the garage of the Dial-A-Ride headquarters, 271 Market street. It was found abandoned at 6:30 a.m. today, at the former Spielmann Vinegar Co. plant, 270 Eighth street, about two blocks from Dial-A-Ride headquarters.

Police said the bus appeared undamaged, and the key was still in the ignition. The gasoline gauge showed about a half-tank left, indicating it hadn't been driven far since Friday night.

A Dial-A-Ride mechanic told police the bus was parked outside the garage about 8 p.m., after bus service ended for the day. It was to be gassed up and put inside the garage for the night. The bus was gone when the mechanic went outside to fill the tank, police said.

Police said the bus was found by Charles Knipschild, owner of the Spielmann building. It was driven back to the garage by a Dial-A-Ride official.

As to why anyone would steal the bus, police could only surmise that someone wanted to go for a ride in it.

20-Cent Phone Calls Proposed

By SUE AGER
Associated Press Writer

LANSING, Mich. (AP) — Michigan Bell Telephone Company's 10-cent pay phone calls — in effect for 24 years — should be increased to 20 cents, a state Public Service Commission law judge said Friday. William Austin told the three-man commission that it will still cost Bell $10 million more a year to provide the service than the firm gets back in revenue, even if pay phone charges are increased. The company has claimed it costs 20.6 cents per pay phone call.

Austin recommended the company receive a total rate increase of $53.7 million. Some $8.2 million of that would come from the higher pay phone charges.

Michigan Bell, a wholly owned subsidiary of American Telephone & Telegraph Co., sought an $88 million increase last April. Bell Vice President Lloyd Haines warned the commission on Friday that Austin's recommendation was "$35 million short of what we needed when we filed our request nearly a year ago." He said layoffs and service reductions would "inevitably" result.

Along with the pay phone fight, Austin recommended increases in residential basic monthly rates of from 30 cents to 75 cents for one-party service. That would be about a four per cent increase for most Detroit phone customers. It could run as high as a 13.9 per cent increase for some other customers.

The commission will consider Austin's recommendations, along with the staff proposal that Bell get no more than $30 million, before it makes its final decision on the matter in April. Austin and the PSC staff have said Bell should be able to increase pay phone charges only if it also changes all its pay phones to a "dial tone first" system. Such a system "makes acceptance of a 20 cent charge just a little more palatable," Austin said. That system would allow persons to call the operator for emergency fire or ambulance help without depositing a coin. It also would allow credit card calls or collect calls without coins.

Michigan Bell last increased the cost of a phone booth call in 1952 when it hiked the charge from five cents to a dime. At that time, officials said, calls dropped by 25 per cent. They expect the same customer response if the charge is raised to 20 cents.

Austin's recommendation also would increase business flat rate charges between 8.6 per cent and 19.3 per cent a month. The cost of toll calls and WATTS line calls would not change if the commission adopts Austin's proposal. Changing phone booths to require 20 cents per call would take about three to four months, officials said.

POLICE ROUNDUP

Suspect Walks Out; Officers Are Waiting

Police said a man walked out of a closed Benton Harbor bar this morning — into the hands of five Benton Harbor city police officers who had responded to a burglar alarm at the bar.

Booked on a charge of entering without breaking was Leonard Smith, 28, of 356 Pipestone street. Police said five bottles of liquor valued at $50 were found in a laundry bag behind the bar.

Police went to the Brooklyn tavern, 379 Territorial road, when an alarm sounded at 2:42 a.m. Police said a man could be seen inside. Bar owner James Button was summoned to unlock the front door.

The door was opened, and a man walked outside. Police said the man apparently hid inside the bar before closing.

Benton Harbor police at 11:30 p.m. Friday were called to Walt's Ideal bar, Territorial road and Fifth street, where a woman patron, Dessie Ramer, 150 Fifth street, reported that a man seized her purse and fled. The purse contained $10 in cash and a pair of eyeglasses, police were told.

Berrien sheriff's officers at 6:35 p.m. Friday, arrested a Detroit man, after a computer check indicated he was sought in a warrant accusing him in the armed robbery of a service station in Detroit last December.

Lodged in Berrien county jail until picked up by Detroit authorities was Donald E. Whitman, 19. Deputies said the arrest was made during an investigation of a man found walking along I-94 in Benton township.

Benton township police Friday afternoon retrieved a sawed-off shotgun from beneath sofa pillows in a house, after a woman occupant reported she was threatened by a former boyfriend. No arrest was made, pending further investigation. Police identified the woman as Zenovia Graham, 37, who reportedly disarmed the man in a struggle in her home, 1795 East Britain avenue. Police said she turned the gun over to officers.

Benton Harbor police Friday investigated the theft of two-way radio equipment valued at more than $1,000 from the office of Hayes Construction Co., 873 East Empire avenue. The equipment included a base unit, valued at $1,000 and a hand microphone, valued at $15. Also stolen was $3 in cash.

Other thefts reported to Benton Harbor police were:

—Stereophonic equipment valued at $207 from the home of Jeanette Walker, 399 Ohio street.

—Citizen band radios from pickup trucks owned by Harold Harris, Box 990, Watervliet, and parked in the A & P store lot, Riverview drive, about 8:30 p.m.; and Kenneth Osburn, 2162 Crawford drive, Benton township, and parked in the VFW club lot, Fair and Buss avenues.

Police said the Osburn truck was entered by throwing a brick through a window. The brick also went through the opposite window and dented the door of a nearby parked car, owned by Richard Stuck, South Bend, Ind.

Benton Harbor police said a brick was used Friday to break two windows of a car, owned by Wadell Smith, 506 Catalpa, and parked on Nowlen, near Main.

In other vandalism reports to Benton Harbor police, Ira Buzuka told officers Friday night that a rock was thrown through a window at his home, 834 Pipestone street. Michael Goldbaum said rocks were used to break two windows at his home, 557 Colfax avenue.

Daughters Abducted By Father

.38caliber revolver.

The abductors eluded police and, apparently using one Mellon family airplane as a decoy, spirited the girls out of New York in another.

"It was soon apparent that the person responsible for the abduction was Mellon. At mid-afternoon, Deputy Chief Anthony Voelker, commander of Brooklyn detectives, announced, "I have just had a four-way conversation with Mr. Mellon. I am assured the children are safe with him at an undisclosed location."

Wiggins and an FBI representative were also on the line. Wiggins said, "The children are with their father and they are safe."

Eugene Gold, the Brooklyn district attorney, said kidnaping and custodial interference were among the charges that could be leveled against the abductors and Mellon. He said a decision on that would be made next week.

Voelker said robbery charges might also be pressed because Carew's gun was taken.

Federal kidnap statutes exclude parents and their children.

Mellon was adopted as a child into the Mellon family and in 1971 inherited control of the family fortune estimated at between $3 billion and $5 billion. The family owns 27 per cent of the stock in the Gulf Oil Corp. and 30 percent of Aluminum Co. of America. Mellon is on the board of directors of the Mellon Bank in Pittsburgh, one of the nation's largest.

Divorce papers filed in 1974 alleged that Mellon spent $250,000 a year in "pocket money." Mrs. Mellon also stated that when they were married Mellon gave her $750,000 a year to manage their two households.

Withdrawal Talk A 'Campaign Ploy'

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — Republican presidential contender Ronald Reagan has indicated he will ignore the urgings of several GOP governors that he pull out of the race for the party's nomination.

Washington Gov. Dan Evans and North Carolina Gov. James E. Holshouser Jr., simultaneously issued statements saying that they and seven of their fellow Republican governors wanted Reagan to pull out.

But Reagan, who faces President Ford in North Carolina's presidential primary on Tuesday, said in Charlotte that talk of his possible withdrawal was a campaign ploy by the Ford camp.

"Now I have been averaging in the contested primaries better than 48 per cent of the Republican vote," Reagan said. "I am not going to take my advice from the campaign organization of Mr. Ford."

Meanwhile, there was some confusion over the issuance of the statement, and two of the governors listed by Evans and Holshouser indicated they had not endorsed it.

Holshouser and Evans said they were joined in the statement by Mills E. Godwin of Virginia, Arch A. Moore Jr. of West Virginia, Otis Bowen of Indiana, William G. Milliken of Michigan, Jay Hammond of Alaska, Robert Bennett of Kansas and Robert Ray of Iowa.

Bennett said, however, he had not made a decision about the statement, and Bowen said he had neither seen nor signed it.

The statement said Reagan — a two-term governor of California — "has served his party and his county with integrity and distinction." It said in the past several months "he has conducted an honorable campaign for the presidency."

"It is now important that all Republicans work together on the issues which confront us between now and November," the governors said. "We have to make a broad appeal to the electorate. We cannot afford the luxury of divisiveness nor can we fail to marshall all of our resources toward he common goal."

Northrop Ordered To Answer

compensation for the county's metro crime unit.

4. — Request a detailed report for each employe of the department, all the compensation time, period of accumulation thereof, and what program is proposed to prevent or enforce any unreasonable or unmanageble accumulation thereof.

5. — Report and file titles of all department motor vehicles with the county clerk, if it has not already been done.

6. — Review in detail what has been done to correct and submit corrected vouchers for overtime already paid out but rejected by the commission's finance committee because of errors.

7. — Account for all "drug-purchase" money furnished by the county to the department for "drug-buys" from Jan. 1, 1974 to present.

Chairman Rodebush said this morning he sent the letter to Northrop as one way "...of doing my homework." He said that because of the court injunction he is not allowed to go near the jail.

Rodebush also said that under state statute (5.331 MSA) any county official who receives pay from the county for work performed for the county is subject to an accounting of how he is using county funds.

Rodebush said that the statute also states that if such a person is requested by the governing county body to make such an account, and refuses to do so, that person can be removed from office by a two-thirds majority vote of the board.

When asked if this was the first step in an effort to remove Northrop from office, Rodebush, responded "No comment," but continued by saying if he found any county official in violation "...to a point where an investigation is needed...you bet ya."

Van Buren Elderly Busing Reality Soon

PAW PAW — Bus transportation for senior citizens (60 and older) and the handicapped will soon be a reality for residents of Van Buren county.

Through the combined efforts of the Van Buren county commission, the Region 4 Area on Aging and the Van Buren Transportation task force, the service is expected to begin sometime in April after the two buses arrive.

The buses are being provided to the county through a $16,000 state grant awarded to Region 4, under the federal Urban Mass Transportation act.

According to Marylin Konkle, program director, initially the service will be limited to those needing transportation to doctors, health centers, social service centers and shopping centers in the county. The service will be flexible in order to allow for changes to meet the needs of the people as they become known, she said.

Van Buren county has been divided into five transportation districts with each receiving two service days per week. Arrangements are being made to set up call-in centers in each district and bus routes will be scheduled on the basis of calls received at the center 24 hours prior to the day of service in the district.

The five districts are as follows: District 1 — South Haven city and township and Covert township; district 2 — Bangor city and township plus Geneva, Columbia and Arlington townships; district 3 — Bloomingdale village and township plus Waverly, Pine Grove and Almena townships; district 4 — Hartford city and township, Lawrence village and township, and Keeler and Hamilton townships; and district 5 — Paw Paw city and township, Decatur village and township, Antwerp and Porter townships.

The program is being financed through funds received from federal, state and local units of government and through fare revenues of 50 cents per ride (one-way). Local units are expected to contribute $5,600 the first year based on 10 cents per capita per unit. The program's operating budget the first year has been pegged at $31,500, not including the cost of the buses, according to Mrs. Konkle.

For more information about the program, people can contact Mrs. Konkle at the Task Force office, temporarily located in the Covert township hall.

20-Cent Phone Calls Proposed

By SUE AGER
Associated Press Writer

LANSING, Mich. (AP) — Michigan Bell Telephone Company's 10-cent pay phone calls — in effect for 24 years — should be increased to 20 cents, a state Public Service Commission law judge said Friday. William Austin told the three-man commission that it will still cost Bell $10 million more a year to provide the service than the firm gets back in revenue, even if pay phone charges are increased. The company has claimed it costs 20.6 cents per pay phone call.

Austin recommended the company receive a total rate increase of $53.7 million. Some $8.2 million of that would come from the higher pay phone charges.

Michigan Bell, a wholly owned subsidiary of American Telephone & Telegraph Co., sought an $88 million increase last April. Bell Vice President Lloyd Haines warned the commission on Friday that Austin's recommendation was "$35 million short of what we needed when we filed our request nearly a year ago." He said layoffs and service reductions would "inevitably" result.

Along with the pay phone fight, Austin recommended increases in residential basic monthly rates of from 30 cents to 75 cents for one-party service. That would be about a four per cent increase for most Detroit phone customers. It could run as high as a 13.9 per cent increase for some other customers.

The commission will consider Austin's recommendations, along with the staff proposal that Bell get no more than $30 million, before it makes its final decision on the matter in April. Austin and the PSC staff have said Bell should be able to increase pay phone charges only if it also changes all its pay phones to a "dial tone first" system. Such a system "makes acceptance of a 20 cent charge just a little more palatable," Austin said. That system would allow persons to call the operator for emergency fire or ambulance help without depositing a coin. It also would allow credit card calls or collect calls without coins.

Michigan Bell last increased the cost of a phone booth call in 1952 when it hiked the charge from five cents to a dime. At that time, officials said, calls dropped by 25 per cent. They expect the same customer response if the charge is raised to 20 cents.

Austin's recommendation also would increase business flat rate charges between 8.6 per cent and 19.3 per cent a month. The cost of toll calls and WATTS line calls would not change if the commission adopts Austin's proposal. Changing phone booths to require 20 cents per call would take about three to four months, officials said.

POLICE ROUNDUP

Suspect Walks Out; Officers Are Waiting

Police said a man walked out of a closed Benton Harbor bar this morning — into the hands of five Benton Harbor city police officers who had responded to a burglar alarm at the bar.

Booked on a charge of entering without breaking was Leonard Smith, 28, of 356 Pipestone street. Police said five bottles of liquor valued at $50 were found in a laundry bag behind the bar.

Police went to the Brooklyn tavern, 379 Territorial road, when an alarm sounded at 2:42 a.m. Police said a man could be seen inside. Bar owner James Button was summoned to unlock the front door.

The door was opened, and a man walked outside. Police said the man apparently hid inside the bar before closing.

Benton Harbor police at 11:30 p.m. Friday were called to Walt's Ideal bar, Territorial road and Fifth street, where a woman patron, Dessie Ramer, 150 Fifth street, reported that a man seized her purse and fled. The purse contained $10 in cash and a pair of eyeglasses, police were told.

Berrien sheriff's officers at 6:35 p.m. Friday, arrested a Detroit man, after a computer check indicated he was sought in a warrant accusing him in the armed robbery of a service station in Detroit last December.

Lodged in Berrien county jail until picked up by Detroit authorities was Donald E. Whitman, 19. Deputies said the arrest was made during an investigation of a man found walking along I-94 in Benton township.

Benton township police Friday afternoon retrieved a sawed-off shotgun from beneath sofa pillows in a house, after a woman occupant reported she was threatened by a former boyfriend. No arrest was made, pending further investigation. Police identified the woman as Zenovia Graham, 37, who reportedly disarmed the man in a struggle in her home, 1795 East Britain avenue. Police said she turned the gun over to officers.

Benton Harbor police Friday investigated the theft of two-way radio equipment valued at more than $1,000 from the office of Hayes Construction Co., 873 East Empire avenue. The equipment included a base unit, valued at $1,000 and a hand microphone, valued at $15. Also stolen was $5 in cash.

Other thefts reported to Benton Harbor police were:

—Stereophonic equipment valued at $207 from the home of Jeanette Walker, 399 Ohio street.

—Citizen band radios from pickup trucks owned by Harold Harris, Box 990, Watervliet, and parked in the A & P store lot, Riverview drive, about 8:39 p.m.; and Kenneth Osburn, 2162 Crawford drive, Benton township, and parked in the VFW club lot, Fair and Buss avenues.

Police said the Osburn truck was entered by throwing a brick through a window. The brick also went through the opposite window and dented the door of a nearby parked car, owned by Richard Stuck, South Bend, Ind.

Benton Harbor police said a brick was used Friday to break two windows of a car, owned by Wadell Smith, 506 Catalpa, and parked on Nowlen, near Main.

In other vandalism reports to Benton Harbor police, Ira Huzuka told officers Friday night that a rock was thrown through a window at his home, 834 Pipestone street. Michael Goldbaum said rocks were used to break two windows at his home, 557 Colfax avenue.

Daughters Abducted By Father

.38caliber revolver.

The abductors eluded police and, apparently using one Mellon-family airplane as a decoy, spirited the girls out of New York in another.

"It was soon apparent that the person responsible for the abduction was Mellon. At mid-afternoon, Deputy Chief Anthony Voelker, commander of Brooklyn detectives, announced, "I have just had a four-way conversation with Mr. Mellon. I am assured the children are safe with him at an undisclosed location."

Wiggins and an FBI representative were also on the line. Wiggins said, "The children are with their father and they are safe."

Eugene Gold, the Brooklyn district attorney, said kidnaping and custodial interference were among the charges that could be leveled against the abductors and Mellon. He said a decision on that would be made next week.

Voelker said robbery charges might also be pressed because Carew's gun was taken.

Federal kidnap statutes exclude parents and their children.

Mellon was adopted as a child into the Mellon family and in 1971 inherited control of the family fortune estimated at between $3 billion and $5 billion. The family owns 27 per cent of the stock in the Gulf Oil Corp. and 30 percent of Aluminum Co. of America. Mellon is on the board of directors of the Mellon Bank in Pittsburgh, one of the nation's largest.

Divorce papers filed in 1974 alleged that Mellon spent $250,000 a year in "pocket money." Mrs. Mellon also stated that when they were married Mellon gave her $750,000 a year to manage their two households.

Someone Didn't Bother To Dial For Bus In BH

By RALPH LUTZ
Staff Writer

Dial-A-Ride provided instant transportation in Benton Harbor last night for someone who drove off in one of the van-type buses — without even dialing for service. The bus was reported stolen at 9 p.m. from outside the garage of the Dial-A-Ride headquarters, 271 Market street. It was found abandoned at 6:30 a.m. today, at the former Spielmann Vinegar Co. plant, 270 Eighth street, about two blocks from Dial-A-Ride headquarters.

Police said the bus appeared undamaged, and the key was still in the ignition. The gasoline gauge showed about a half-tank left, indicating it hadn't been driven far since Friday night.

A Dial-A-Ride mechanic told police the bus was parked outside the garage about 8 p.m., after bus service ended for the day. It was to be gassed up and put inside the garage for the night. The bus was gone when the mechanic went outside to fill the tank, police said.

Police said the bus was found by Charles Knipschild, owner of the Spielmann building. It was driven back to the garage by a Dial-A-Ride official.

As to why anyone would steal the bus, police could only surmise that someone wanted to go for a ride in it.

Withdrawal Talk A 'Campaign Ploy'

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — Republican presidential contender Ronald Reagan has indicated he will ignore the urgings of several GOP governors that he pull out of the race for the party's nomination.

Washington Gov. Dan Evans and North Carolina Gov. James E. Holshouser Jr., simultaneously issued statements saying that they and seven of their fellow Repulbican governors wanted Reagan to pull out.

But Reagan, who faces President Ford in North Carolina's presidential primary on Tuesday, said in Charlotte that talk of his possible withdrawal was a campaign ploy by the Ford camp.

"Now I have been averaging in the contested primaries better than 45 per cent of the Republican vote," Reagan said. "I am not going to take my advice from the campaign organization of Mr. Ford."

Meanwhile, there was some confusion over the issuance of the statement, and two of the governors listed by Evans and Holshouser indicated they had not endorsed it.

Holshouser and Evans said they were joined in the statement by Mills E. Godwin of Virginia, Arch A. Moore Jr. of West Virginia, Otis Bowen of Indiana, William G. Milliken of Michigan, Jay Hammond of Alaska, Robert Bennett of Kansas and Robert Ray of Iowa.

Bennett said, hower, he had not made a decision about the statement, and Bowen said he had neither seen nor signed it.

The statement said Reagan — a two-term governor of California — "has served his party and his county with integrity and distinction." It said in the past several months "he has conducted an honorable campaign for the presidency."

"It is now important that all Republicans work together on the issues which confront us between now and November," the governors said. "We have to make a broad appeal to the electorate. We cannot afford the luxury of divisiveness nor can we fail to marshall all of our resources toward he common goal."

Northrop Ordered To Answer

compensation for the county's metro crime unit.

4. — Request a detailed report for each employe of the department, all the compensation time, period of accumulation thereof, and what program is proposed to prevent or enforce any unreasonable or unmanageble accumulation thereof.

5. — Report and file titles of all department motor vehciles with the county clerk, if it has not already been done.

6. — Review in detail what has been done to correct and submit corrected vouchers for overtime already paid out but rejected by the commission's finance committee because of errors.

7. — Account for all "drug-purchase" money furnished by the county to the department for "drug-buys" from Jan. 1, 1974 to present.

Chairman Rodebush said this morning he sent the letter to Northrop as one way "...of doing my homework." He said that because of the court injunction he is not allowed to go near the jail.

Rodebush also said that under state statute (5.331 MSA) any county official who receives pay from the county for work performed for the county is subject to an accounting of how he is using county funds.

Rodebush said that the statute also states that if such a person is requested by the governing county body to make such an account, and refuses to do so, that person can be removed from office by a two-thirds majority vote of the board.

When asked if this was the first step in an effort to remove Northrop from office, Rodebush, responded "No comment," but continued by saying if he found any county official in violation "...to a point where an investigation is needed...you bet ya."

BANGOR SCHOOL VOTE IS MONDAY

Ten Candidates Seek Five Seats Emptied By Recall

By AL AREND
Staff Writer

BANGOR — One of the most important elections in Bangor school district history faces voters here Monday, March 22, when 10 candidates seek election to five school board seats.

The five elected will serve varying terms in replacing three interim board members appointed by the governor in February and in filling two vacancies on the board.

Five board vacancies were created when board members Donald Piper, Dr. Joseph Cooper, Forrest Gough, Richard Krogel, and Fred Waite were ousted from office in a Feb. 2 recall election. Two other board members, Mrs. Peggy Phillips and Otto Watkins Jr., were not included in the recall election and remain on the board.

Candidates and the school board terms they seek are:

For one term ending in 1979, Frederick Durham and Phillip Wiles.

For one term ending in 1977, Harry Johnson, Mrs. John (Darlene) Mock and Mrs. Leland (Clara) Singer.

Unopposed for two terms ending in June of this year are George Denny and Harold Wright. Those two four-year seats will be up for election in the annual school election June 14.

Five of the 10 candidates have the endorsement of the Bangor School Unity association, the renamed Bangor Recall committee. They are Durham, Mrs. Royal, Mrs. Singer, Denny and Wright.

The governor-appointed interim board members who had agreed not to run in the special election are John Lyster, interim school board president; Clark Dowell, interim board vice president; and Donald Freestone.

Dr. Durham, 46, 15th avenue, Columbia township, is a farmer, who previously taught in college for 11 years. He and his wife, Elizabeth, have three children.

Lynch, 65, route 2, Bangor, is a farmer. He and his wife, Marie, have no children.

Mrs. Royal, 65, is a teacher in the Bloomingdale school system and was a teacher in the Bangor system for 10 years. She and her husband, Charles, reside at M-43 East, Arlington township. They have four children.

Stanislawski, 24, 11 Oliver street, Bangor, is a graduate of Western Michigan university and is currently employed as an insurance claims adjuster in Portage. He and his wife, Karen, have two children.

Johnson, 32, route 1, M-43, Bangor, is deputy with the Van Buren county sheriff's department. He and his wife, Cheryl, have two children.

Mrs. Mock, 47, route 1, Eastwood lane, Bangor, is a housewife and the mother of eight children. She resides with her husband, John, and family.

Mrs. Singer, 34, route 1, Bangor, is a clerk at South Haven Community hospital. She and her husband, Leland, have seven children.

Denny, 50, route 1, Covert, is a foreman at New Products corporation, Benton Harbor. He and his wife, Rosemary, have two children. He formerly served three years on the West Brick school board.

Wright, 53, route 2, Grand Junction, is a farmer and manufacturer. He and his wife, Nancy, have two children.

Polls will be open from 7 a.m. to 8 p.m., Monday, in the Bangor middle school gymnasium.

LANDMARK IS LAKE VICTIM: Familiar watchtower like watchtower-like building on South Haven shore of Lake Michigan (photo at lower right) became latest erosion victim Thursday as four-story structure toppled down bank (above). Debris at foot of bank is all that remains of unoccupied building. It was formerly hotel fur resort which has since been converted into Evergreen Bluffs residential subdivision, South Haven township. Tall structure served as visual aid to boaters returning to South Haven harbor. Erosion continues to threaten a nearby home with bank cut away within eight feet of structure. House remains occupied. ADC Dad, $10,684 In Arrears, Jailed

By SCOTT WILLIAMSON
Staff Writer

A Benton Harbor father owing $10,684 in back child support was sentenced to five months in jail this week in Berrien Circuit court, while another dad got a four-month jail term for $2,086 arrears.

Edward Pastrick, special investigator with the Berrien friend of the court's office, reported:

Judge William S. White held James Woods, of 377 Riford street, Benton Harbor, in contempt of court for $10,684 arrears for five children on ADC. Woods was ordered to begin a three-year probationary period with five months in jail.

Pastrick said Woods has made seven support payments in the last 6½ years.

Tony Walls (also known as Fosler), of 515 Heck court, Benton Harbor, was held in contempt by White, placed on two years probation, and sentenced to four months in jail for $2,086 arrears for one ADC child. Walls has made one support payment in four years, Pastrick said.

J.W. Weatherspoon, of 427 Vineyard, Benton Harbor, was threatened with a 90-day jail sentence by White if he misses three support payments after the judge held him in contempt for $3,602 arrears for one child on ADC. White told Weatherspoon to pay $18 weekly child support plus $5 weekly towards the arrearage.

Tom Boyd, of 444 Maple street, Benton Harbor, was found in contempt and placed on two years probation for $2,133 arrears for five children on ADC, and ordered to pay $10 weekly support and $30 weekly on the arrearage.

Supervisor Says Tax Assessment Probe Welcomed

WATERVLIET — Watervliet township Supervisor Lyle Woodworth said yesterday he would welcome a state tax commission investigation of property assessments in Watervliet township.

In replying to criticism of reassessments of property in the township, Woodworth said "I would hope they (tax commission) would come in.

"Once the commission reviewed the tax records, they would have no choice but to back me up," Woodworth said.

But he also added that he is equally sure that he has generally under-assessed real property in the township and a state tax commission reappraisal might well bring additional property value increases.

Woodworth, who has announced he will not seek reelection as township supervisor, made his remarks after a township couple, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Postelll, in a Thursday night meeting at their home, launched a campaign to get the tax commission to investigate reassessments.

They are claiming that the reassessments were not uniform and some township officials, their friends and prominent businessmen, have not been assessed at the same rate as others.

Woodworth on March 1 announced that a reassessment of property in the township had produced higher property values on more than half the some 1,800 parcels in the township.

A state law which became effective this year has required that municipalities assess real property at 50 per cent of its market value.

Breaks Red Tape

Mother's Complaint Gets Quick Attention

When a woman complained that support payments weren't being made for her three children, the Berrien friend of the court's office broke the red tape customarily associated with governmental agencies.

A warrant was drawn up, the father arrested, and sentenced to jail — all within an hour of the woman's phone call to the friend of the court.

Special Investigator Edward Pastrick said the woman called and asked for help in getting support payments about noon Wednesday, and within an hour a warrant was issued for the man's arrest on a probation violation (failing to pay child support), Berrien Circuit Judge William S. White signed it, the sheriff's department arrested the man, and White sentenced him.

Sentenced to 90 days in jail by White was M.D. Hebner, of 485 Upton drive, St. Joseph. White held him in contempt of court for $5,933 arrears for three children not on ADC, and placed him on two years probation. Pastrick said Hebner has made 12 support payments in the past two years.

Stockbridge Coach At 'Home' Against Bucks Tonight

Hora is a 1960 graduate of Berrien Springs high school, and his mother, Helen, and brother, Ken, still reside there.

"I think I might use that as added incentive for the team tonight," Hora said. "But you don't need much more incentive when you've reached the semifinals."

Hora's team will not only need the incentive, but also a super performance to derail the Buchanan express, however. The Bucks, now 26-0, have rolled through six tournament opponents by an average margin of 26.4 points, while blistering the nets at a 53 per cent pace.

Stockbridge brings a 12-game winning streak and 20-6 record into the game. But the Panthers will have to find a way to contain the Buchanan size if they are to advance any further.

The Buck front line of 6-6 Ken Garrett, 6-5 Mike Busby and 6-3½ Gerald Busby holds a height advantage of more than three inches per man over Stockbridge.

"Their size is the thing that worries me," Hora declares. "It's really going to be tough to stick with them on the boards. You just don't counteract that size. No matter what you do you're still going to be in trouble."

Stockbridge will try to counter Buchanan's front line with 6-2 center Milt Campbell and 6-0 forwards Rod Kennedy and Jerry Kennedy. Campbell is the brother of former Panther All-Stater Jesse Campbell, who led Stockbridge to the Class C runner-up berth in 1972.

"Milt is a completely different ballplayer from Jesse," Hora says. "He moves well and jumps well but he's only 6-2 and that's the big difference."

Campbell paced Stockbridge during the regular season with a 16.0 scoring mark. But the Panthers have counted on balanced scoring during the tournament. Senior guard Phil Young is averaging 14 points, and King and Kennedy 11 apiece in tourney play.

Buchanan, which has never won a state title, is led by Garrett, who is averaging 22.2 points on the year. Also in double figures for the Bucks are the Busby brothers, Mike at 13.8 and Gerald at 11.2, and 6-2 guard Walt Vanderbush 12.6.

Walt's brother, Kevin, got back his starting guard spot Thursday against Shelby and took advantage of the situation, scoring 12 points.

"I think Kevin did the things that he's strong at," Buchanan coach Bill Wilson states. "He played good, aggressive defense, he had a good 12 to 15-foot jump shot, and he took it, and he also put the ball on the floor and drove to the basket. I was pleased with his intensity. He's playing very aggressively both offensively and defensively."

"They've won 12 straight so they know what it's all about," he says. "They have a good tournament tradition with Hora and they definitely have a shorter distance to Lansing which may help them."

Hora, who has coached Stockbridge to a 143-48 record in eight years, hopes the Panther defense can make up for other handicaps.

"Our defense has really done the job this year," Hora said. "These kids didn't really expect to go anywhere in the tourney. Michigan Center was in our district and they were favored.

"More than likely we're going to have to go with a number of things defenstvely to stay with them. Hopefully we play better defense than anyone they've seen. It's the only way you're going to beat someone of their caliber."

In tournament play, Garrett has swished 61 of 93 shots from the floor (66 per cent) to lead up the blistering Buchanan shooting pace.

The winner of Saturday's game will take on the winner of the other semifinal tilt between second-ranked Unionville - Sebawing and fourth-ranked Negaunee one week from today for the state championship.

One Cage Giant To Be Left Out

By FRANK BROWN
AP Sports Writer

They had won 86 of 87 games since the college basketball season began so many months ago. They had reached the top two rungs in the national ladder.

Yet one team—No. 1 Indiana or No. 2 Marquette—was to be left behind at Baton Rouge Saturday, the final victim of a Mideast regional playoff that also had claimed sixth-ranked Alabama, eighth-ranked North Carolina, 10th-rated Western Michigan and St. John's. The showdown is scheduled to start at 2 p.m. today over national TV.

THE WORLD OF Sports

"I think they should have a way to seed eight teams and place two of them in each regional," offered Indiana Coach Bobby Knight before his Hoosiers placed on the line their undefeated season, their top billing in the rankings and their challenge to UCLA's NCAA basketball crown.

There were other problems to be faced in the three other cities which would host their own judgment days: fourth-ranked Rutgers, 30-0, met surprising Virginia Military, 22-9, at Greensboro, N.C.; No. 14 Missouri, 26-4, faced No. 9 Michigan, 23-6, at noon at Louisville; and at Los Angeles, defending champ UCLA, fifth-ranked, 25-1, risked its title against hardnosed No. 15 Arizona, 24-8.

Neither Knight nor Marquette's Al McGuire regretted the fact that the matchup of their teams had to happen in the semifinals. McGuire, in fact, thought his 27-1 Warriors might have the advantage in a pressure game of this kind.

"When it gets to be a tight si*tuation at the end of a game,* a 'white knuckler,' the tendency is for the better team to tighten up and the weaker gets strong," he said.

Knight, coach of a 29-0 team that has won 53 of its last 54 games, shrugged off the pressure as "largely a figment of the imaginations of sports writers. I don't think it means anything."

Nearly 100 young basketball players in four cities today might have disputed Knight's thinking. And don't leave out the thousands of fans, who swelled four coliseums to capacity and tuned in millions of television sets.

That contest took a strange turn since the Bruins, who seek their 11th championship in 13 years and their first under Coach Gene Bartow, were the visiting team in the Pauley Pavilion they usually call home. Bartow wasn't at all displeased, joking before the game that "we have shown more consistency on the road."

The road to the East final was *a tough one for underdog Vir*ginia Military, which hoped for yet another upset against unbeaten Rutgers. "We're here," said VMI Coach Bill Blair. "Don't ask me how, but we're here."

Michigan Coach Johnny Orr has a message for all those folks who think Indiana and *Marquette will settle the na*tional championship in today's ideast final.

Orr, said the winner here "will be a definite contender for the national title.

"I have a lot of respect for Indiana and Rutgers," Orr said. "Any team that can go undefeated is a great team. But, remember, we played Indiana even on their home floor" before losing 72-67 in overtime.

"We're not afraid of Indiana or Marquette," said Orr. "They have beaten some great teams and we respect them for that, but they don't scare us."

Michigan's Rickey Green planned to come out shooting against Missouri, since 16 of his 20 points Thursday night came in the second half. "I didn't take my usual shots early," he recalled. "I thought about it at halftime and started driving after that."

He'd had plenty of time to think by game time Saturday. So had everybody else.

Rich Bidding War Possible In NFL

Csonka, Warfield, Kiick Now Free Agents

Although the National Football League's expansion and college drafts won't be held for another week or two, three big names who jumped the NFL ship a year ago suddenly became free agents Friday, creating the prospect of another rich bidding war prior to the official drafts.

Csonka, Paul Warfield and Jim Kiick, who were lured away from the Miami Dolphins by the Memphis Grizzlies of the World Football League for a reported combined $3.5 million only to have the WFL fold from under them last season, were cut adrift by Memphis owner John Bassett, who failed earlier this week in his bid to get his club into the NFL for 1976. Bassett also relinquished his claims to all other Memphis players.

"It's just like the Catfish Hunter deal," Bassett said. "They are free to go out and negotiate whatever deal they wish."

"It makes no sense for them not to play in 1976 and continue to sharpen their skills," said Mike Storen, executive vice president of the Grizzlies.

Csonka said he was "cer*tainly going to be in touch*" with the Dolphins, whom he helped to a pair of Super Bowl triumphs as a bulldozing fullback. "Miami is my home, where I started out in pro football," he said. "When there's a fact to be known; it'll probably be Miami or Baltimore."

The Dolphins have said they don't want Kiick back and the running back has expressed a desire to play in Denver or New York. Warfield, a brilliant wide receiver, has indicated he wants to play for Cleveland.

Joe Robbie, managing general partner of the Dolphins, said Coach Don Shula had been contacted by Csonka's agent, Ed Keating.

"We're certainly interested in talking to Larry Csonka," Robbie said. He said the Dolphins would be willing to deal with Csonka "on a realistic basis."

Meanwhile, NFL Commissioner Pete Rozelle said the league must receive legal evidence that Csonka, Warfield and Kiick are free agents before any club will be allowed to deal with them.

"I can't think of many that don't need them," Keating said. But he added that he didn't expect any quick signings.

"I don't think anything drastic will happen for the next 30 to 45 days," he said. "We're not getting too excited about it. I don't see any reason to panic and rush."

Added Csonka:

Champs Back At Relays

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — The 50th annual Texas Relays April 2-3 will feature four NCAA champions and six winners at last year's relays.

Discus thrower Jim McGoldrick of Texas, pole vaulter Earl Bell of Arkansas State, hurdler Larry Shipp of LSU and steeplechaser James Munyala of Texas-El Paso won their events at last year's NCAA meet.

All 17 individual events will be open to university, college, junior college and unattached athletes to give everyone a chance to qualify for the Olympic trials this summer.

UTEP, which won both the indoor and outdoor NCAA titles, is the top-rated team. Other strong entries include Big 8 champion Kansas, Southeast contender Florida, Texas and Baylor of the Southwest, and Texas Southern.

Mike Marshall Will Report

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Controversial pitcher Mike Marshall is expected to report to Los Angeles' spring training camp in Vero Beach, Fla., next Thursday, a Dodger official said here Friday.

Dodger Vice President Al Campanis said Marshall's attorney, Tom Downs, had informed him of the pitcher's intention.

Marshall had earlier said he would not report before his runin with Michigan State University officials over the use of a batting cage on campus was resolved.

State Semifinals Scheduled Today

Top Clubs Still Competing

From ASSOCIATED PRESS

Saturday's semi-final round of the 51st High School Athletic Association state basketball tournament offers the fan yet another chance to see just how valid the regular-season polls are.

The No. 1 teams in each of the state's four prep classes still are alive and kicking. And all four know they are prime targets for upset-minded clubs who would love to go home and say, "I told you so."

In Class A semi-final action at Michigan State University's Jenison Fieldhouse, top-ranked Lansing Everett (24-1) will throw the fabulous Earvin Johnson against Detroit Catholic Central (23-3). In the other Class A semi, tournament-wise Saginaw (18-7) will attempt to stop talented sophomore Walter Russell and his Pontiac Central (15-11) teammates.

For Saginaw, this marks the Trojans' third semi-final appearance in the last four years.

The winners of all Saturday's semi-final games will meet for the state championships in their respective classes March 27 at the University of Michigan's Crisler Arena.

The Class B semi-finals look a little like an instant replay as Lofton Greene takes his No. 2 River Rouge Panthers (23-3) up to East Lansing seeking his 13th state title since 1954. But his club will have to battle past Saginaw Buena Vista (21-4) and the talented Ernest Matthews before they get a shot at the No. 1 Class B club.

Top-ranked Flint Beecher (25-0) is expected to have an easy time slipping past Coldwater (17-6) and into the much-waited showdown with Rouge one week later.

In Class C semi-final action, all of the cream is trying to rise to the top at the same time. Unfortunately, some of it has to spill out of the cup. Chances are, however, that it won't be No. 1 Buchanan (26-0). That high-scoring club from the southwestern lower portion of the state needs only to get past Stockbridge (20-6) at the Lansing Civic Center to earn a trip to the finals.

Up at Traverse City, No. 2 Unionville-Sebewaing (25-0) will have to fight for its life against No. 4 Negaunee (24-1). The Miners are the only team left in the tournament from the *Upper Peninsula — a rare off*year for the folks north of the bridge.

DePorres is expected to win handily behind the scoring of Eric Duhart, Tony Fuller and John Gurwood. The Eagles must be careful, however, that they don't get caught looking ahead to next weekend's anticipated showdown with No. 3 rated Harbor Springs.

Harbor Springs (26-0) has only to get past Maple City Glen Lake (23-3) at Cheboygan High School and the Rams will earn a trip to the finals and the long-awaited shot at DePorres. Glen Lake, however, behind slick shooting from Rick Baltiergeon *and Mark Sweratt, isn't expect*ed to roll over and play dead. This one could be the best game of the day.

Breslin, Beardsley Remain

By SUSAN AGER
Associated Press Writer

EAST LANSING, Mich. (AP) — Michigan State head football coach Denny Stolz was formally out of a job Friday, but executive vice president Jack Breslin and assistant athletic director Bill Beardsley are still employed despite published reports to the contrary.

"We want and expect" Breslin to keep working for the school, MSU President Clifton Wharton Jr. said in leading off a trustees meeting at which the ouster of Breslin and Beardsley reportedly was to take place.

The trustees voted 5-2 Friday to formally accept Stolz' resignation, submitted Tuesday under pressure from Wharton. The trustees voted in a secret meeting last week that Stolz, 42, should leave after three seasons of coaching.

One factor in that removal, Wharton acknowledged, was a $2,300 speaking fee Stolz received from a fund-raiser in January 1975, which he kept for himself.

The removal of Breslin and Beardsley would have brought to eight the number of athletic officials who have resigned, been fired or been reassigned as a result of probes of the school's football program by its own committee, the National Collegiate Athletic Association and the Big Ten Conference.

The school's football program is under a three-year probation because of 14 rule violations the NCAA found it had committed.

A story in the Lansing State Journal Thursday quoted an unnamed trustee as saying Wharton was pressuring Breslin and Beardsley to resign, after years at MSU, because they knew of an alleged misuse of athletic funds by other athletic officials.

"We deplore and condemn the irresponsibility of publishing such obviously inaccurate statements," said Wharton of a story in the Lansing State Journal that he called "totally false." Each trustee also criticized the irresponsibility of the story, other TV and radio reports, or praised the job Breslin is doing.

"At no time — at no time — has such action regarding Mr. Breslin been discussed" either by an internal MSU committee probing football irregularities or by the trustees, Wharton said.

"Mr. Beardsley's name has never even been mentioned during the...entire investigation," Wharton said.

Trustee John Bruff, a member of MSU's own investigating committee, said no violations have been found to implicate Breslin, who gave up all his ties to the athletic department in January. He now serves mainly as the school's lobbyist with the state legislature.

After the meeting Wharton said MSU's football program has been probed dating all the way back to 1956. Duffy Daugherty, who coached the Spartan team from 1953 to 1972, has been interviewed by the committee, he said.

Wharton indicted the school's internal probe — which reports say concerns funding misuses — was ending, but a verdict from the Big Ten is still forthcoming.

Eight More Tigers Make Spring Camp

LAKELAND, Fla. (AP) — Eight more Detroit Tigers showed up for spring training Friday, leaving the team without just three of its players — Aurelio Rodriguez, Tom Veryzer and Steve Strella.

Tiger manager Ralph Houk also said he is worried about his pitchers not getting enough of a workout before the regular season begins.

A year ago, Mickey Lolich, Joe Coleman and Vern Ruhle each got to pitch seven times in the exhibition games.

Coleman, Ruhle, Dave Roberts and Ray Bare will only get five chances at the most to pitch this exhibition season.

"Obviously, they're going to have less time to get their arms really strong," Houk said as the owners' lockout was lifted. "And if somebody should hurt his arm, he may not have enough time to recover and get back into the rotation."

Veryzer and Trella were supposed to be at training camp by Saturday.

Rodriguez, a native of Mexico and the only regular who has not reported for practice yet, is free to rejoin his teammates after being barred from the United States.

The ban on his entry into the country was for as long as the major league dispute continued. He must first obtain a visa from the State Department.

The owners' player relations committee gave the Tigers permission Friday to open their exhibition season Monday night.

Mariucci U.S. Nationals Coach

COLORADO SPRINGS, Colo. (AP) — John Mariucci, a long*time veteran of hockey in* Minnesota, was named Friday, as coach of the 1976 U.S. National hockey team.

The Amateur Hockey Association of the United States also announced the appointment of its vice president, Frank Gallagher, Flint, Mich., as manager of the team.

Stockbridge Coach At 'Home' Against Bucks Tonight

It will almost be a homecoming for Stockbridge coach Phil Hora tonight when his Panthers face top-ranked and unbeaten Class C power Buchanan in the state semifinals at 7 p.m. at the Lansing Civic Center.

Hora is a 1960 graduate of Berrien Springs high school, and his mother, Helen, and brother, Ken, still reside there.

"I think I might use that as added incentive for the team tonight," Hora said. "But you don't need much more incentive when you've reached the semifinals."

Hora's team will not only need the incentive, but also a super performance to derail the Buchanan express, however. The Bucks, now 26-0, have rolled through six tournament opponents by an average margin of 26.4 points, while blistering the nets at a 53 per cent pace.

Stockbridge brings a 12-game winning streak and 20-6 record into the game. But the Panthers will have to find a way to contain the Buchanan size if they are to advance any farther.

The Buck front line of 6-6 Ken Garrett, 6-5 Mike Busby and 6-3½ Gerald Busby holds a height advantage of more than three inches per man over Stockbridge.

"Their size is the thing that worries me," Hora declares. "It's really going to be tough to stick with them on the boards. You just don't counteract that size. No matter what you do you're still going to be in trouble."

Stockbridge will try to counter Buchanan's front line with 6-2 center Milt Campbell and 6-0 forwards Rod Kennedy and Jerry Kennedy. Campbell is the brother of former Panther All-Stater Jesse Campbell, who led Stockbridge to the Class C runner-up berth in 1972.

"Milt is a completely different ballplayer from Jesse," Hora says. "He moves well and jumps well but he's only 6-2 and that's the big difference."

Campbell paced Stockbridge during the regular season with a 16.0 scoring mark. But the Panthers have counted on balanced scoring during the tournament. Senior guard Phil Young is averaging 14 points, and King and Kennedy 11 apiece in tourney play.

Buchanan, which has never won a state title, is led by Garrett, who is averaging 22.2 points on the year. Also in double figures for the Bucks are the Busby brothers, Mike at 13.8 and Gerald at 11.2, and 6-2 guard Walt Vanderbush 12.6.

Walt's brother, Kevin, got back his starting guard spot Thursday against Shelby and took advantage of the situation, scoring 12 points.

"I think Kevin did the things that he's strong at," Buchanan coach Bill Wilson states. "He played good, aggressive defense, he had a good 12 to 15-foot jump shot, and he took it, and he also put the ball on the floor and drove to the basket. I was pleased with his intensity. He's playing very aggressively both offensively and defensively."

"They've won 12 straight so they know what it's all about," he says. "They have a good tournament tradition with Hora and they definitely have a shorter distance to Lansing which may help them."

Hora, who has coached Stockbridge to a 143-48 record in eight years, hopes the Panther defense can make up for other handicaps.

"Our defense has really done the job this year," Hora said. "These kids didn't really expect to go anywhere in the tourney. Michigan Center was in our district and they were favored.

"More than likely we're going to have to go with a number of things defensively to stay with them. Hopefully we play better defense than anyone they've seen. It's the only way you're going to beat someone of their caliber."

In tournament play, Garrett has swished 61 of 93 shots from the floor (66 per cent) to head up the blistering Buchanan shooting pace.

The winner of Saturday's game will take on the winner of the other semifinal tilt between second-ranked Unionville - Sebawing and fourth-ranked Negaunee one week from today for the state championship.

One Cage Giant To Be Left Out

By FRANK BROWN
AP Sports Writer

They had won 56 of 57 games since the college basketball season began so many months ago. They had reached the top two rungs in the national ladder.

Yet one team—No. 1 Indiana or No. 2 Marquette—was to be left behind at Baton Rouge Saturday, the final victim of a Mideast regional playoff that also had claimed sixth-ranked Alabama, eighth-ranked North Carolina, 10th-rated Western Michigan and St. John's. The showdown is scheduled to start at 2 p.m. today over national TV.

THE WORLD OF Sports

"I think they should have a way to seed eight teams and place two of them in each regional," offered Indiana Coach Bobby Knight before his Hoosiers placed on the line their undefeated season, their top billing in the rankings and their challenge to UCLA's NCAA basketball crown.

There were other problems to be faced in the three other cities which would host their own judgment days: fourth-ranked Rutgers, 30-0, met surprising Virginia Military, 22-9, at Greensboro, N.C.; No. 14 Missouri, 26-4, faced No. 9 Michigan, 23-6, at noon at Louisville; and at Los Angeles, defending champ UCLA, fifth-ranked, 25-4, risked its title against hardnosed No. 15 Arizona, 24-8.

Neither Knight nor Marquette's Al McGuire regretted the fact that the matchup of their teams had to happen in the semifinals. McGuire, in fact, thought his 27-1 Warriors might have the advantage in a pressure game of this kind.

"When it gets to be a tight situation at the end of a game, a 'white knuckler,' the tendency is for the better team to tighten up and the weaker gets strong," he said.

Knight, coach of a 29-0 team that has won 63 of its last 64 games, shrugged off the pressure as "largely a figment of the imaginations of sports writers. I don't think it means anything."

Nearly 100 young basketball players in four cities today might have disputed Knight's thinking. And don't leave out the thousands of fans, who swelled four coliseums to capacity and tuned in millions of television sets.

That contest took a strange turn since the Bruins, who seek their 11th championship in 13 years and their first under Coach Gene Bartow, were the visiting team in the Pauley Pavillion they usually call home. Bartow wasn't at all displeased, joking before the game that "we have shown more consistency on the road."

The road to the East final was a tough one for underdog Virginia Military, which hoped for yet another upset against unbeaten Rutgers. "We're here," said VMI Coach Billl Blair. "Don't ask me how, but we're here."

Michigan Coach Johnny Orr has a message for all those folks who think Indiana and Marquette will settle the national championship in today's ideast final.

Orr, said the winner here "will be a definite contender for the national title.

"I have a lot of respect for Indiana and Rutgers," Orr said. "Any team that can go undefeated is a great team. But, remember, we played Indiana even on their home floor" before losing 72-67 in overtime.

"We're not afraid of Indiana or Marquette," said Orr. "They have beaten some great teams and we respect them for that, but they don't scare us."

Michigan's Rickey Green planned to come out shooting against Missouri, since 16 of his 20 points Thursday night came in the second half. "I didn't take my usual shots early," he recalled. "I thought about it at halftime and started driving after that."

He'd had plenty of time to think by game time Saturday. So had everybody else.

Rich Bidding War Possible In NFL

Csonka, Warfield, Kiick Now Free Agents

Although the National Football League's expansion and college drafts won't be held for another week or two, three big names who jumped the NFL ship a year ago suddenly became free agents Friday, creating the prospect of another rich bidding war prior to the official drafts.

Csonka, Paul Warfield and Jim Kiick, who were lured away from the Miami Dolphins by the Memphis Grizzlies of the World Football League for a reported combined $3.5 million only to have the WFL fold from under them last season, were cut adrift by Memphis owner John Bassett, who failed earlier this week in his bid to get his club into the NFL for 1976. Bassett also relinquished his claims to all other Memphis players.

"It's just like the Catfish Hunter deal," Bassett said. "They are free to go out and negotiate whatever deal they wish."

"It makes no sense for them not to play in 1976 and continue to sharpen their skills," said Mike Storen, executive vice president of the Grizzlies.

Csonka said he was "certainly going to be in touch" with the Dolphins, whom he helped to a pair of Super Bowl triumphs as a bulldozing fullback. "Miami is my home, where I started out in pro football," he said. "When there's a fact to be known, it'll probably be Miami or Baltimore."

The Dolphins have said they don't want Kiick back and the running back has expressed a desire to play in Denver or New York. Warfield, a brilliant wide receiver, has indicated he wants to play for Cleveland.

Joe Robbie, managing general partner of the Dolphins, said Coach Don Shula had been contacted by Csonka's agent, Ed Keating.

"We're certainly interested in talking to Larry Csonka," Robbie said. He said the Dolphins would be willing to deal with Csonka "on a realistic basis."

Meanwhile, NFL Commissioner Pete Rozelle said the league must receive legal evidence that Csonka, Warfield and Kiick are free agents before any club will be allowed to deal with them.

"I can't think of many that don't need them," Keating said. But he added that he didn't expect any quick signings.

"I don't think anything drastic will happen for the next 30 to 45 days," he said. "We're not getting too excited about it. I don't see any reason to panic and rush."

Added Csonka:

Champs Back At Relays

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — The 49th annual Texas Relays April 2-3 will feature four NCAA champions and six winners at last year's relays.

Discus thrower Jim McGoldrick of Texas, pole vaulter Earl Bell of Arkansas State, hurdler Larry Shipp of LSU and steeplechaser James Munyala of Texas-El Paso won their events at last year's NCAA meet.

All 17 individual events will be open to university, college, junior college and unattached athletes to give everyone a chance to qualify for the Olympic trials this summer.

UTEP, which won both the indoor and outdoor NCAA titles, is the top-rated team. Other strong entries include Big 8 champion Kansas, Southeast contender Florida, Texas and Baylor of the Southwest, and Texas Southern.

Mike Marshall Will Report

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Controversial pitcher Mike Marshall is expected to report to Los Angeles' spring training camp in Vero Beach, Fla., next Thursday, a Dodger official said here Friday.

Dodger Vice President Al Campanis said Marshall's attorney, Tom Downs, had informed him of the pitcher's intention.

Marshall had earlier said he would not report before his runin with Michigan State University officials over the use of a batting cage on campus was resolved.

State Semifinals Scheduled Today

Top Clubs Still Competing

From ASSOCIATED PRESS

Saturday's semi-final round of the 51st High School Athletic Association state basketball tournament offers the fan yet another chance to see just how valid the regular-season polls are.

The No. 1 teams in each of the state's four prep classes still are alive and kicking. And all four know they are prime targets for upset-minded clubs who would love to go home and say, "I told you so."

In Class A semi-final action at Michigan State University's Jenison Fieldhouse, top-ranked Lansing Everett (24-1) will throw the fabulous Earvin Johnson against Detroit Catholic Central (23-3). In the other Class A semi, tournament-wise Saginaw (19-7) will attempt to stop talented sophomore Walter Russell and his Pontiac Central (15-11) teammates.

For Saginaw, this marks the Trojans' third semi-final appearance in the last four years.

The winners of all Saturday's semi-final games will meet for the state championships in their respective classes March 27 at the University of Michigan's Crisler Arena.

The Class B semi-finals look a little like an instant replay as Lofton Greene takes his No. 2 River Rouge Panthers (23-3) up to East Lansing seeking his 13th state title since 1954. But his club will have to battle past Saginaw Buena Vista (21-4) and the talented Ernest Matthews before they get a shot at the No. 1 Class B club.

Top-ranked Flint Beecher (250) is expected to have an easy time slipping past Coldwater (17-9) and into the much-waited showdown with Rouge one week later.

In Class C semi-final action, all of the cream is trying to rise to the top at the same time. Unfortunately, some of it has to spill out of the cup. Chances are, however, that it won't be No. 1 Buchanan (26-0). That high-scoring club from the southwestern lower portion of the state needs only to get past Stockbridge (20-6) at the Lansing Civic Center to earn a trip to the finals.

Up at Traverse City, No. 2 Unionville-Sebewaing (25-0) will have to fight for its life against No. 4 Negaunee (24-1). The Miners are the only team left in the tournament from the Upper Peninsula — a rare off-year for the folks north of the bridge.

DePorres is expected to win handily behind the scoring of Eric Duhart, Tony Fuller and John Garwood. The Eagles must be careful, however, that they don't get caught looking ahead to next weekend's anticipated showdown with No. 3 rated Harbor Springs.

Harbor Springs (26-0) has only to get past Maple City Glen Lake (23-3) at Cheboygan High School and the Rams will earn a trip to the finals and the long-awaited shot at DePorres. Glen Lake, however, behind slick shooting from Rick Baillergeon and Mark Swerad, isn't expected to roll over and play dead. This one could be the best game of the day.

Breslin, Beardsley Remain

By SUSAN AGER
Associated Press Writer

EAST LANSING, Mich. (AP) — Michigan State head football coach Denny Stolz was formally out of a job Friday, but executive vice president Jack Breslin and assistant athletic director Bill Beardsley are still employed despite published reports to the contrary.

"We want and expect" Breslin to keep working for the school, MSU President Clifton Wharton Jr. said in leading off a trustees meeting at which the ouster of Breslin and Beardsley reportedly was to take place.

The trustees voted 5-2 Friday to formally accept Stolz' resignation, submitted Tuesday under pressure from Wharton. The trustees voted in a secret meeting last week that Stolz, 42, should leave after three seasons of coaching.

One factor in that removal, Wharton acknowledged, was a $2,300 speaking fee Stolz received from a fund-raiser in January 1975, which he kept for himself.

The removal of Breslin and Beardsley would have brought to eight the number of athletic officials who have resigned, been fired or been reassigned as a result of probes of the school's football program by its own committee, the National Collegiate Athletic Association and the Big Ten Conference.

The school's football program is under a three-year probation because of 34 rule violations the NCAA found it had committed.

A story in the Lansing State Journal Thursday quoted an unnamed trustee as saying Wharton was pressuring Breslin and Beardsley to resign, after years at MSU, because they knew of an alleged misuse of athletic funds by other athletic officials.

"We deplore and condemn the irresponsibility of publishing such obviously inaccurate statements," said Wharton of a story in the Lansing State Journal that he called "totally false." Each trustee also criticized the irresponsibility of the story, other TV and radio reports, or praised the job Breslin is doing.

"At no time — at no time — has such action regarding Mr. Breslin been discussed" either by an internal MSU committee probing football irregularities or by the trustees, Wharton said.

"Mr. Beardsley's name has never even been mentioned during the...entire investigation," Wharton said.

Trustee John Bruff, a member of MSU's own investigating committee, said no violations have been found to implicate Breslin, who gave up all his ties to the athletic department in January. He now serves mainly as the school's lobbyist with the state legislature.

After the meeting Wharton said MSU's football program has been probed dating all the way back to 1956. Duffy Daughterty, who coached the Spartan team from 1953 to 1972, has been interviewed by the committee, he said.

Wharton indicated the school's internal probe — which reports say concerns funding misuses — was ending, but a verdict from the Big Ten is still forthcoming.

Eight More Tigers Make Spring Camp

LAKELAND, Fla. (AP) — Eight more Detroit Tigers showed up for spring training Friday, leaving the team without just three of its players — Aurelio Rodriguez, Tom Veryzer and Steve Strella.

Tiger manager Ralph Houk also said he is worried about his pitchers not getting enough of a workout before the regular season begins.

A year ago, Mickey Lolich, Joe Coleman and Vern Ruhle each got to pitch seven times in the exhibition games.

Coleman, Ruhle, Dave Roberts and Ray Bare will only get five chances at the most to pitch this exhibition season.

"Obviously, they're going to have less time to get their arms really strong," Houk said as the owners' lockout was lifted. "And if somebody should hurt his arm, he may not have enough time to recover and get back into the rotation."

Veryzer and Trella were supposed to be at training camp by Saturday.

Rodriguez, a native of Mexico and the only regular who has not reported for practice yet, is free to rejoin his teammates after being barred from the United States.

The ban on his entry into the country was for as long as the major league dispute continued. He must first obtain a visa from the State Department.

The owners' player relations committee gave the Tigers permission Friday to open their exhibition season Monday night.

Mariucci U.S. Nationals Coach

COLORADO SPRINGS, Colo. (AP) — John Mariucci, a longtime veteran of hockey in Minnesota, was named Friday as coach of the 1976 U.S. National hockey team.

The Amateur Hockey Association of the United States also announced the appointment of its vice president, Frank Gallagher, Flint, Mich., as manager of the team.

Elk Hills Gets New Look

Name Changed; Kulich New Pro-Manager

STEVE KULICH

The Elk Hills Golf Club will have a different name and a new pro-manager for the season-opening Saturday, March 27.

Steve Kulich of St. Joseph will be serving as pro-manager when the Hagar township course on Kerlikowske road starts a new year under the name of Lake Michigan Golf Hills.

The name change is the result of Frank Rogel of Watervliet taking over sole ownership of the course. He obtained complete control of the club from the Benton Harbor Elks in February after the Elks ran into financial problems.

Kulich, a former high school golf star at St. Joseph, has served one year as an assistant pro at Point O'Woods Golf & Country Club in Benton Harbor.

Kulich was a Class A regional medalist and sixth in the state while playing for St. Joseph high school in 1971.

The following year in Western Amateur pre-qualifying, he set an Elk Hills course record with a 67 round which included a hole-in-one. He failed to qualify for match play in the actual tournament at Point O'Woods.

Kulich, who replaces Tom Leamon, who now lives in Grand Rapids, plans to move to the course and give lessons. The pro shop will carry a complete line of golf gear.

Working with Kulich as a shop helper will be Keith Augustyniak of Coloma.

A Western Amateur pre-qualifying round will be held again this year at Lake Michigan Golf Hills.

Rogel and Kulich also hope to attract golfers through club memberships and in "package" arrangements with area motels.

"We would like to keep that course continually filled," declares Rogel. "We can accomodate 800 to 900 golfers on a good day."

Memberships and green fees will be the same as last year.

The membership rate is $240 for individuals, $300 for a couple and $40 for each additional member in a family. There is a special senior citizen membership of $100 which is good for only weekday play. Green fees stands at $7 on weekends and holidays and $6 on weekdays.

Kulich says six leagues are scheduled for the course at this point, and there are plans for weekend events for members and non-members.

Aeros Nearing Division Crown

From ASSOCIATED PRESS

The Houston Aeros, World Hockey Association champions for the past two seasons, pulled wilbin six points of clinching their third straight West Division title by beating the San Diego Mariners 8-3 Friday night.

But that inevitable West Division crown may be tainted somewhat by the fact that the opposition in the division has been going out of business as things have progressed. Five teams began competition in the West when the season opened last October, but since then the Denver Spurs and Minnesota Fighting Saints folded — leaving just three teams in the section.

Add to that the fact that the Mariners are all free agents, playing without an owner. The club's fate will be decided by "Tuesday morning at the latest," insists WHA Chief Executive Ben Hatskin — thus by the season's end, second-place Phoenix could have the dubious honor of finishing last in a two-team division.

Cleveland trimmed the Roadrunners 6-5 in overtime Friday night, but Phoenix retained its five-point lead over the troubled third-place Mariners in the West. In the other WHA games, New England edged Cincinnati 6-5 in overtime; Quebec topped Toronto 4-3 and Edmonton nipped Winnipeg 2-1.

The Aeros won the game as they usually do, with the Howe family leading the way. Mark Howe scored three goals and his father, Gordie, added four assists to pace the rout.

Rick Ledue's goal 2:20 into the overtime gave Cleveland its victory over Phoenix after three goals by Gary Jarrett had kept the Crusaders in the contest.

Celtics Flash Form As Havlicek Returns

From Associated Press

John Havlicek is back...and so are the Boston Celtics.

The two go together like ham and eggs or macaroni and cheese. And even though Havlicek scored only 12 points after missing six games with a knee injury, the Celtics looked like their old selves in a 120-117 National Basketball Association overtime victory over the Kansas City Kings Friday night.

"We missed a lot of easy shots, but we played our game again," said Coach Tom Heinsohn. "I'm happy with it after what we went through in the last six games (3-3)."

Elsewhere, the New Orleans Jazz crushed the Cleveland Cavaliers 103-81, the Los Angeles Lakers trounced the Detroit Pistons 122-107, the Portland Trail Blazers outlasted the Houston Rockets 111-105 and the Chicago Bulls beat the Atlanta Hawks 108-101.

Charlie Scott scored four of the Celtics' 14 overtime points and set up a key basket by JoJo White. A field goal by Scott put Boston in front for good 110-108. Nate Archibald had 37 points and Jimmy Walker 32 for Kansas City while White had 30 and Scott 29 for Boston.

With Pete Maravich home with the flu, Henry Bibby led the Jazz with 20 points while Otto Moore and Jim McElroy each added 14.

Cazzie Russell came off the bench in the second quarter to score 15 points and lead Los Angeles over Detroit.

Reserve guards Lionel Hollins and Steve Jones combined for 21 points in the fourth quarter to pace Portland's triumph.

Vancouver Netminder Ridley Stymies Former Teammates

From Associated Press

As thankful as Curt Ridley was to be traded away from Atlanta, he was anything but gracious to wards the Flames Friday night.

The 24-year-old netminder played his first game against his former teammates and held off a 16-shot third-period attack to help the Vancouver Canucks into a 2-2 tie.

"I was looking forward to this game," he said after facing 36 shots. "It was the first time I had ever played against the Flames, and if I had a choice I'd have to say I'd rather beat them than any ordinary team.

"The trade was the best thing that ever happened to me. They were set with (Dan) Bouchard and (Phil) Myre, and at Vancouver I've had a chance to play."

He played well enough—and the Flames played poorly enough—to ruin the evening for Atlanta Coach Fred Creighton.

"Games like that give me an ulcer," Creighton said after the Flames wasted a 2-0 lead and couldn't score on the power play in the closing two minutes.

"We had control of the puck and we let them off the hook. We let the tempo of the game get away."

Tom Lysiak had set a club record with his 30th goal and assist to build the home team's two-goal lead. The points gave him 78 for the season, one more than the team standard he set last year.

Montreal topped California 4-1 and Pittsburgh bombed Washington 7-3 in the evening's other National Hockey League games.

Barry Gibbs had the other goal for Atlanta. Ron Sedlbauer and Dennis Kearns scored for Vancouver in the game's last 10 minutes.

Guy Lafleur scored his 48th goal of the year to start Montreal on the way to its 15th straight unbeaten game. Yvan Cournoyer, Murray Wilson and Steve Shutt also counted for the Canadiens, who handed the Seals their fourth straight loss.

Andre Pronovost raised his season's goal total to 46 and Syl Apps accounted for five points as Pittsburgh routed Washington with four goals in the last 10 minutes of play.

Dr. J Proves He's Human As Kentucky Downs Nets

LOUISVILLE (AP) — Dr. J is only human.

Erving went 46 minutes without a field goal and finished with just two baskets and a meager nine points as his New York Nets dropped a 104-97 American Basketball Association decision to the Kentucky Colonels.

"I've never seen the Doc have such a bad night," said New York Coach Kevin Loughery. "The other night in St. Louis he was just great. I don't think he's ever had a better game. But tonight..."

Elsewhere in the ABA, the Denver Nuggets turned back the Virginia Squires 113-108 and the Spirits of St. Louis walloped the San Antonio Spurs 125-100.

Despite his troubles, Dr. J contributed to a desperate fourth-quarter rally that fell just short.

"That's the mark of a great player," Loughery said. "He was there at the end when we needed him."

Erving scored his only two buckets in the final two minutes after New York's reserves had cut a 23-point Kentucky lead to 88-92. His turnaround jumper made it 96-94 and, after Kentucky's Artis Gilmore answered with a hook shot, Erving cut the margin to 98-96 with a 20-footer.

That was it for the Doctor and the Nets, though. Maurice Lucas hit two free throws and Wil Jones added a 20-footer from the corner to save the Kentucky victory.

Kentucky had six players in double figures, with Bird Averitt leading the way with 23 points.

Dan Issel scored 31 points as Denver rallied to beat Virginia after the Squires jumped to a 36-25 first-quarter lead, paced by Mike Green's 10 points, and held a 58-53 margin at the half.

St. Louis guard Ron Boone was given the key to Salt Lake City, where the game was played, and then proceeded to show his appreciation by sparking his team over San Antonio.

Kalamazoo Wings Get Playoff Berth

From ASSOCIATED PRESS

Flint's Kirk Bowman and Mike Clarke each scored two goals Friday night as the Generals defeated the Columbus Owls 8-5 and mathematically eliminated them from an International Hockey League playoff berth.

Columbus sank to 23-43-7, giving the Kalamazoo Wings the wildcard playoff spot. The Owls will be the only IHL team not competing in the playoffs, which begin March 28.

Flint, 31-28-13 stays one point ahead of Muskegon, in third place in the North Division.

In Muskegon, center Carlo Ugolini scored three goals in a six-minute span in the third period to lead the Mohawks to a 5-2 victory over the Port Huron Flags.

Other Muskegon goals were scored by Bob Tombari and Ernie Moser. Port Huron goals were scored by Dan Newman and Len Chalmers. Muskegon is 31-28-12 for fourth place in the IHL North. The Flags, who are in second place in the IHL North, are now 34-27-11.

In Toledo, Brian Kinsella's second goal of the game broke a 5-5 tie in the third quarter, leading the Dayton Gems to a 7-5 win over the Toledo Goaldiggers.

Paul Nicholson also scored twice for the Gems in the game that ended in a chair-throwing melee among players and fans. A special detail of police broke up the fight.

'Other' Hill Golf Leader

When Mike, a solid performer in his own right, took a share of the lead in a recent tournament one national press service informed the world that Dave was tied for the top. And Dave wasn't even playing.

Almost daily someone, often reporters, will approach him and start a conversation: "Say, Dave...."

"It doesn't bother me much anymore," Mike said Friday after again taking a lead, this time solo possession of the No. 1 position, in the $175,000 Greater Jacksonville Open. "Most of the time I don't even bother to correct them."

He shook his head.

"I've been out here eight years and they still can't spell my name.

"But they get the name right on the checks. My wife and kids know who I am, and, I guess, that's all I care about."

Mike, a beer-truck driver before brother Dave talked him into joining the tour as a 29-year-old rookie in 1968, has collected two tour titles and was a consistent money winner until he was sidelined for 12 weeks by a serious leg injury sustained in a motorcycle accident on his farm near Jackson, Mich., last year.

He staked himself to a bid for a third title with a scrambly 68—he came out of six sand traps without making a bogey—and a 137 total, seven under par for two trips over the surprisingly difficult, 7,143-yard Deerwood Club course.

"Until the last five or six holes I didn't play very good, Mike said. "I had a lot of fives, and I had to scramble a lot. I'm still not hitting the ball as good as I know I can hit it. I was lucky to be one under par after nine holes.

"But I'm putting pretty good. That's what makes the difference. If you're putting good, you can get away with a lot of weaknesses in the rest of your game. I don't mean I hit any really ugly old shots, but I didn't hit it as well as I can."

Hill, at 37 beginning to get a touch of gray in his dark hair, held a one stroke advantage over surprising Nate Starks, a skinny little guy who ranks as possibly the shortest hitter on the tour and a man who once lost his approved players' card for poor play on the tour.

Just two strokes back of the lead at 139 was a group of six players headed by Hubert Green, a winner last week in the Doral Open. Green came in with a 67, matching the best round of the mild, sunny, breezy day.

He was tied with Miller Barber and Bob Murphy, each with a second round 67, rookie Jerry Pate, 69, and Ray Floyd and Lanny Watkins, who shared the first round lead then shot 71s.

Elk Hills Gets New Look

Name Changed; Kulich New Pro-Manager

STEVE KULICH

The Elk Hills Golf Club will have a different name and a new pro-manager for the season-opening Saturday, March 27.

Steve Kulich of St. Joseph will be serving as pro-manager when the Hagar township course on Kerlikowske road starts a new year under the name of Lake Michigan Golf Hills.

The name change is the result of Frank Rogel of Watervliet taking over sole ownership of the course. He obtained complete control of the club from the Benton Harbor Elks in February after the Elks ran into financial problems.

Kulich, a former high school golf star at St. Joseph, has served one year as an assistant pro at Point O'Woods Golf & Country Club in Benton Harbor.

Kulich was a Class A regional medalist and sixth in the state while playing for St. Joseph high school in 1971.

The following year in Western Amateur pre-qualifying, he set an Elk Hills course record with a 67 round which included a hole-in-one. He failed to qualify for match play in the actual tournament at Point O'Woods.

Kulich, who replaces Tom Leamon, who now lives in Grand Rapids, plans to move to the course and give lessons. The pro shop will carry a complete line of golf gear.

Working with Kulich as a shop helper will be Keith Augustyniak of Coloma.

A Western Amateur pre-qualifying round will be held again this year at Lake Michigan Golf Hills.

Rogel and Kulich also hope to attract golfers through club memberships and in "package" arrangements with area motels.

"We would like to keep that course continually filled," declares Rogel. "We can accomodate 500 to 600 golfers on a good day."

Memberships and green fees will be the same as last year.

The membership rate is $240 for individuals, $300 for a couple and $40 for each additional member in a family. There is a special senior citizen membership of $100 which is good for only weekday play. Green fees stands at $7 on weekends and holidays and $6 on weekdays.

Kulich says six leagues are scheduled for the course at this point, and there are plans for weekend events for members and non-members.

Aeros Nearing Division Crown

From ASSOCIATED PRESS

The Houston Aeros, World Hockey Association champions for the past two seasons, pulled within six points of clinching their third straight West Division title by beating the San Diego Mariners 8-3 Friday night.

But that inevitable West Division crown may be tainted somewhat by the fact that the opposition in the divison has been going out of business as things have progressed. Five teams began competition in the West when the season opened last October, but since then the Denver Spurs and Minnesota Fighting Saints folded — leaving just three teams in the section.

Add to that the fact that the Mariners are all free agents, playing without an owner. The club's fate will be decided by "Tuesday morning at the latest," insists WHA Chief Executive Ben Hatskin — thus by the season's end, second-place Phoenix could have the dubious honor of finishing last in a two-team division.

Cleveland trimmed the Roadrunners 6-5 in overtime Friday night, but Phoenix retained its five-point lead over the troubled third-place Mariners in the West. In the other WHA games, New England edged Cincinnati 6-5 in overtime; Quebec topped Toronto 4-3 and Edmonton nipped Winnipeg 2-1.

The Aeros won the game as they usually do, with the Howe family leading the way. Mark Howe scored three goals and his father, Gordie, added four assists to pace the rout.

Rick Leduc's goal 2:20 into the overtime gave Cleveland its victory over Phoenix after three goals by Gary Jarrett had kept the Crusaders in the contest.

Rejean Houle scored at 6:29 of overtime to carry Quebec past Toronto.

Celtics Flash Form As Havlicek Returns

From Associated Press

John Havlicek is back...and so are the Boston Celtics.

The two go together like ham and eggs or macaroni and cheese. And even though Havlicek scored only 12 points after missing six games with a knee injury, the Celtics looked like their old selves in a 120-117 National Basketball Association overtime victory over the Kansas City Kings Friday night.

"We missed a lot of easy shots, but we played our game again," said Coach Tom Heinsohn. "I'm happy with it after what we went through in the last six games (3-3)."

Elsewhere, the New Orleans Jazz crushed the Cleveland Cavaliers 103-81, the Los Angeles Lakers trounced the Detroit Pistons 122-107, the Portland Trail Blazers outlasted the Houston Rockets 111-105 and the Chicago Bulls beat the Atlanta Hawks 108-101.

Charlie Scott scored four of the Celtics' 14 overtime points and set up a key basket by JoJo White. A field goal by Scott put Boston in front for good 110-108. Nate Archibald had 37 points and Jimmy Walker 32 for Kansas City while White had 30 and Scott 29 for Boston.

With Pete Maravich home with the flu, Henry Bibby led the Jazz with 20 points while Otto Moore and Jim McElroy each added 14.

Cazzie Russell came off the bench in the second quarter to score 15 points and lead Los Angeles over Detroit.

Reserve guards Lionel Hollins and Steve Jones combined for 21 points in the fourth quarter to pace Portland's triumph.

Vancouver Netminder Ridley Stymies Former Teammates

From Associated Press

As thankful as Curt Ridley was to be traded away from Atlanta, he was anything but gracious to wards the Flames Friday night.

The 24-year-old netminder played his first game against his former teammates and held off a 16-shot third-period attack to help the Vancouver Canucks into a 2-2 tie.

"I was looking forward to this game," he said after facing 36 shots. "It was the first time I had ever played against the Flames, and if I had a choice I'd have to say I'd rather beat them than any ordinary team.

"The trade was the best thing that ever happened to me. They were set with (Dan) Bouchard and (Phil) Myre, and at Vancouver I've had a chance to play."

He played well enough—and the Flames played poorly enough—to ruin the evening for Atlanta Coach Fred Creighton.

"Games like that give me an ulcer," Creighton said after the Flames wasted a 2-0 lead and couldn't score on the power play in the closing two minutes.

"We had control of the puck and we let them off the hook. We let the tempo of the game get away."

Tom Lysiak had set a club record with his 30th goal and assist to build the home team's two-goal lead. The points gave him 78 for the season, one more than the team standard he set last year.

Montreal topped California 41 and Pittsburgh bombed Washington 7-3 in the evening's other National Hockey League games.

Barry Gibbs had the other goal for Atlanta. Ron Sedlbauer and Dennis Kearns scored for Vancouver in the game's last 10 minutes.

Guy Lafleur scored his 48th goal of the year to start Montreal on the way to its 15th straight unbeaten game. Yvan Cournoyer, Murray Wilson and Steve Shutt also counted for the Canadiens, who handed the Seals their fourth straight loss.

Andre Pronovost raised his season's goal total to 48 and Syl Apps accounted for five points as Pittsburgh routed Washington with four goals in the last 10 minutes of play.

Dr. J Proves He's Human As Kentucky Downs Nets

LOUISVILLE (AP) — Dr. J is only human.

Erving went 46 minutes without a field goal and finished with just two baskets and a meager nine points as his New York Nets dropped a 104-97 American Basketball Association decision to the Kentucky Colonels.

"I've never seen the Doc have such a bad night," said New York Coach Kevin Loughery. "The other night in St. Louis he was just great. I don't think he's ever had a better game. But tonight..."

Elsewhere in the ABA, the Denver Nuggets turned back the Virginia Squires 113-108 and the Spirits of St. Louis walloped the San Antonio Spurs 125-100.

Despite his troubles, Dr. J contributed to a desperate fourth-quarter rally that fell just short.

"That's the mark of a great player," Loughery said. "He was there at the end when we needed him."

Erving scored his only two buckets in the final two minutes after New York's reserves had cut a 23-point Kentucky lead to 96-92. His turnaround jumper made it 96-94 and, after Kentucky's Artis Gilmore answered with a hook shot, Erving cut the margin to 98-96 with a 20-footer.

That was it for the Doctor and the Nets, though. Maurice Lucas hit two free throws and Wil Jones added a 20-footer from the corner to save the Kentucky victory.

Kentucky had six players in double figures, with Bird Averitt leading the way with 23 points.

Dan Issel scored 31 points as Denver rallied to beat Virginia after the Squires jumped to a 36-25 first-quarter lead, paced by Mike Green's 10 points, and held a 58-53 margin at the half.

St. Louis guard Ron Boone was given the key to Salt Lake City, where the game was played, and then proceeded to show his appreciation by sparking his team over San Antonio.

Kalamazoo Wings Get Playoff Berth

From ASSOCIATED PRESS

Flint's Kirk Bowman and Mike Clarke each scored two goals Friday night as the Generals defeated the Columbus Owls 6-5 and mathematically eliminated them from an International Hockey League playoff berth.

Columbus sank to 23-45-7, giving the Kalamazoo Wings the wildcard playoff spot. The Owls will be the only IHL team not competing in the playoffs, which begin March 28.

Flint, 31-28-13 stays one point ahead of Muskegon in third place in the North Division.

In Muskegon, center Carlo Ugolini scored three goals in a six-minute span in the third period to lead the Mohawks to a 5-2 victory over the Port Huron Flags.

Other Muskegon goals were scored by Bob Tombari and Ernie Moser. Port Huron goals were scored by Dan Newman and Len Chalmers. Muskegon is 31-29-12 for fourth place in the IHL North. The Flags, who are in second place in the IHL North, are now 34-27-11.

In Toledo, Brian Kinsella's second goal of the game broke a 5-5 tie in the third quarter, leading the Dayton Gems to a 7-5 win over the Toledo Goaldiggers.

Paul Nicholson also scored twice for the Gems in the game that ended in a chair-throwing melee among players and fans. A special detail of police broke up the fight.

'Other' Hill Golf Leader

Restraining Order Limits Number Of Modar Pickets

A temporary restraining order has been issued by Berrien Circuit Judge William S. White limiting the number of pickets posted at the Modar, Inc., plant in Benton township by striking members of Teamsters Local 7.

The restraining order prohibits more than three people from picketing the vicinity of the parking lot or entrance to the plant, at 1394 East Empire avenue, at any one time, and restricts the number of cars parked on the road in front of the plant to four.

The order also enjoins strikers and others from congregating in any group of more than four people "within the vicinity or within the sight of the plant," and prohibits threats, intimidations, or abuse, physical or verbal, of people seeking to enter Modar premises.

White's ruling came after Modar filed suit in circuit court seeking an injunction against Local 7, and the judge ordered the defendants in the suit, Local 7, Jack Brand, Harry Reynolds, Robert Dubbicci, William Cobb, and John Doe, to appear in court on April 5 to show cause why the restraining order should not be made an injunction.

Local 7 struck Modar March 8 after contract negotiations were broken off. Jack Brand, president of Local 7, said the union wants a five per cent pay increase across the board, fully paid hospitalization for all employes, and union shop and dues checkoff, which he said 98 per cent of the workers have voluntarily signed.

A Modar official said the strike involves some 110 of the firm's 134 to 140 employes at the Benton township plant. Modar's Decatur plant, which employs about 50 workers, is not affected by the strike. Negotiations between the company and union started after a union certification election in September.

The suit said the company seeks an injunction because 35 to 40 pickets have congregated at the entrance to the plant, and a similar number of cars have been parked along Empire in front of the plant.

The suit also claims employes have been threatened by pickets, the movement of products has been interfered with, cars have been struck with signs and tires slashed, cars have been driven on Modar's lawn, and about five pounds of roofing nails were scattered in the driveway.

The suit also contends six employes who wish to work have refused for fear of what might happen to them.

$6,000 Berrien Swindle Ends In 2 Guilty Pleas

Two Chicago women charged with swindling $6,000 from a Millburg woman last January pleaded guilty as charged when arraigned Thursday in Berrien Circuit court.

Pleading guilty before Judge William S. White to identical charges of larceny by conversion of more than $100 were Tanya A. Reed, 25, and Evelyn Dorsey, 21. Both remained jailed to await sentencing of up to five years in prison.

They were accused of fraudulently converting to their own use money given to them by Mrs. Betty Craig, 45, of 295 Millburg drive, on Jan. 23 at the K-Mart parking lot in Benton Harbor.

Police said Mrs. Craig was the victim of a "pigeon drop" confidence game, in which the two Chicago women convinced her that she could split $33,000 three ways with them if Mrs. Craig would first put up $6,000 "good faith" money.

She gave the women the $6,000, which police recovered when the women were arrested about an hour later in Michigan City.

Family Physician Boosts Laetrile

A family doctor from South Bend said Friday that an effective treatment for cancer can be found in the pits of fruits readily available in southwestern Michigan.

Speaking to the Agricultural Service Club of Southwestern Michigan, Helen Calvin, M.D., said that the pits of peaches, apricots and cherries contain Vitamin B-17, the foundation of the controversial Laetrile cancer treatment.

In the form of Laetrile, the vitamin has been banned for use in the country by the U.S. Food and Drug Administration and its use in treating cancer is opposed by both the American Medical Association and the American Cancer Society.

Dr. Calvin said that she believes cancer is caused by a deficiency of Vitamin B-17, much like the once-dreaded disease scurvy is caused by a lack of Vitamin C.

"The medical profession prevents this story from being told," she claimed.

Also speaking at yesterday's meeting was Mrs. Jean Kulwicki of South Bend, who was making her second appearance in this area in the past two months to promote the Laetrile treatment.

Mrs. Kulwicki said she buys the banned drug on the black market and pays $11 for a daily dosage of three grams, to treat her breast cancer. She said that she still has cancer, but that the vitamin controls its spread.

She said she also had received Laetrile treatment at a Mexican hospital.

Restraining Order Limits Number Of Modar Pickets

A temporary restraining order has been issued by Berrien Circuit Judge William S. White limiting the number of pickets posted at the Modar, Inc., plant in Benton township by striking members of Teamsters Local 7.

The restraining order prohibits more than three people from picketing the vicinity of the parking lot or entrance to the plant, at 1394 East Empire avenue, at any one time, and restricts the number of cars parked on the road in front of the plant to four.

The order also enjoins strikers and others from congregating in any group of more than four people "within the vicinity or within the sight of the plant," and prohibits threats, intimidations, or abuse, physical or verbal, of people seeking to enter Modar premises.

White's ruling came after Modar filed suit in circuit court seeking an injunction against Local 7, and the judge ordered the defendants in the suit, Local 7, Jack Brand, Harry Reynolds, Robert Dubbicci, William Cobb, and John Doe, to appear in court on April 5 to show cause why the restraining order should not be made an injunction.

Local 7 struck Modar March 8 after contract negotiations were broken off. Jack Brand, president of Local 7, said the union wants a five per cent pay increase across the board, fully paid hospitalization for all employes, and union shop and dues checkoff, which he said 98 per cent of the workers have voluntarily signed.

A Modar official said the strike involves some 110 of the firm's 134 to 140 employes at the Benton township plant. Modar's Decatur plant, which employes about 50 workers, is not affected by the strike. Negotiations between the company and union started after a union certification election in September.

The suit said the company seeks an injunction because 35 to 40 pickets have congregated at the entrance to the plant, and a similar number of cars have been parked along Empire in front of the plant.

The suit also claims employes have been threatened by pickets, the movement of products has been interfered with, cars have been struck with signs and tires slashed, cars have been driven on Modar's lawn, and about five pounds of roofing nails were scattered in the driveway.

The suit also contends six employes who wish to work have refused for fear of what might happen to them.

Modar produces wood shelving and store display fixtures at the Benton township plant.

Remodeled Museum At U. Of M. Will Display Ancient Artifacts

ANN ARBOR, Mich. (AP) — Archaeological artifacts dating back 5,000 years to the early Egyptian period are on display once more with the reopening of a museum at the University of Michigan.

The display, at the Kelsey Museum of Ancient and Mediaeval Archaeology, also includes a number of objects being shown for the first time.

They are on loan from the Tunisian government as a result of the university's 1975 excavation in Carthage.

The museum, which reopened to the public in mid-week, had been closed since June for an extensive $40,000 renovation project.

The building houses some 90,000 objects, including 40,000 coins. Many of the items came from university excavations in the 1920s and 1930s in Egypt and Iraq, according to John G. Pedley, museum director.

The building, constructed in 1888-91, has been designated a state historical monument under the protection of the State Historical Society.

"We had a pleasant surprise while the renovation work was going on," Pedley said. "During the dismantling of a display in a niche in the Egyptian gallery on the first floor, a stained glass window was revealed.

"We had seen it from the outside, of course, but never from the inside."

The museum has a preponderance of Egyptian and Roman objects, Pedley said. One of the two major galleries on the main floor display Egyptian materials ranging in chronology from the predynastic period through the Ptolemaic period. The other major gallery is devoted to Roman materials.

Hearst Jury Works Over Mountains Of Evidence

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — In room 19007, a comfortable conference room on the 19th floor of the Federal Building, seven women and five men ponder the fate of Patricia Hearst.

For five hours and 15 minutes Friday they deliberated, surrounded by a mountain of evidence spilling from tables and chairs.

They planned to resume today their attempt to unanimously agree on a verdict in Miss Hearst's trial for bank robbery. They intended to work through the weekend, if necessary.

U.S. Dist. Judge Oliver J. Carter sent the eight-week-long trial to the jury Friday, six months after Miss Hearst's capture here ended a 19-month odyssey through the revolutionary underground. He instructed them for more than an hour on the complexities of the case.

He told the jury it must decide whether Miss Hearst intentionally joined her Symbionese Liberation Army captors in an April 15, 1974, bank robbery. The defendant said she was ordered to participate or be killed by the terrorists who had kidnaped her Feb. 4, 1974.

Carter scheduled deliberations from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. daily and then, for Miss Hearst and others, the tense wait began.

Sitting in a small holding cell one floor above the jury room, the 22-year-old newspaper heiress chain-smoked cigarettes she nervously took from a beige-colored woolen sack.

Carter remained in his chambers. The prosecutor, U.S. Atty. James L. Browning Jr., worked in his 16th floor office. And chief defense attorney F. Lee Bailey retreated to the Nob Hill hotel where he has been staying — one block from the Hearst family apartment.

"Behind the facade of bravado, she's nervous, like any other defendant," Bailey told news reporters in describing Miss Hearst's emotions as she awaited the verdict.

During the final hour of the trial Friday, the defendant's mother, Catherine Hearst, burst into tears and dashed out of the courtroom, escorted by a federal marshal.

"It's just, you know, sort of the end of the line and she got upset," said Miss Hearst's father, San Francisco Examiner President Randolph A. Hearst.

Carter had cautioned the jury not to allow "sympathy, prejudice, or public opinion" to influence its decision.

"If the accused be proved guilty, say so," said the judge. "If not proved so guilty, say so."

He emphasized that "it must be proved that the defendant acted intentionally in committing the acts charged."

Miss Hearst, sipping water, stared at the judge almost constantly and did not see her mother's emotional exit from the locked courtroom 27 minutes before the case was committed to the jury.

At the end of the instructions, she turned toward her father in a front-row bench, looked puzzled and whispered, "Where's Mama?" Her father answered and she nodded.

"I'm afraid I chickened out," Mrs. Hearst told a reporter while wiping her eyes with a tissue. "I didn't do too well."

A marshal drove her home.

'End Run' Keeps Sparks Flying

LANSING, Mich. (AP) — The friction between Senate Majority Leader William Fitzgerald and the chairman of the Senate Taxation Committee, John Bowman, continued last week when Fitzgerald made an end run around Bowman's committee on a crucial bill.

Fitzgerald, a Detroit Democrat, is a key backer of a Detroit-area mass transit system. He badly wants passage of a bill to raise money to attract federal funds.

Fitzgerald also supports a special transportation committee recommendation that the property transfer tax be dramatically increased in Wayne, Oakland and Macomb counties to produce $27 million toward getting the federal money.

Bowman, a Roseville Democrat from Macomb County, however, opposes such a tax increase in his district. He also has doubts about an area transit system. Bowman is also running for Congress from the 12th district.

When Bowman refused to approve a bill in committee to increase the transfer tax and restructure the Southeastern Michigan Transportation Authority, Fitzgerald and other supporters finally introduced another bill and sent it to a more favorable committee.

The dispute had been the focus of a closed-door Democrat caucus several weeks ago, when it was agreed Bowman would have time to work out another solution. When he didn't, the new bill was introduced.

Bowman and Fitzgerald have been at odds for most of the Senate session which began over a year ago. The Roseville senator reportedly was one of the leaders of an attempt to oust Fitzgerald as leader — an attempt that came up several votes short in the 24-man caucus.

"Can I speak on that?" Brown queried.

A House-Senate conference committee was deep in negotiations over a crucial consumer protection measure when Sen. Thomas Guastella made a compromise offer. "That is a material concession," he noted, eyeing the House members across the table. "And it should get a material concession in return."

"Would you like my tie?" politely asked Rep. Dan Angel.

Remodeled Museum At U. Of M. Will Display Ancient Artifacts

ANN ARBOR, Mich. (AP) — Archaeological artifacts dating back 5,000 years to the early Egyptian period are on display once more with the reopening of a museum at the University of Michigan.

The display, at the Kelsey Museum of Ancient and Mediaeval Archaeology, also includes a number of objects being shown for the first time.

They are on loan from the Tunisian government as a result of the university's 1975 excavation in Carthage.

The museum, which reopened to the public in mid-week, had been closed since June for an extensive $40,000 renovation project.

The building houses some 90,000 objects, including 40,000 coins. Many of the items came from university excavations in the 1920s and 1930s in Egypt and Iraq, according to John G. Pedley, museum director.

The building, constructed in 1888-91, has been designated a state historical monument under the protection of the State Historical Society.

"We had a pleasant surprise while the renovation work was going on," Pedley said. "During the dismantling of a display in a niche in the Egyptian gallery on the first floor, a stained glass window was revealed.

"We had seen it from the outside, of couse, but never from the inside."

The museum has a preponderance of Egyptian and Roman objects, Pedley said. One of the two major galleries on the main floor display Egyptian materials ranging in chronology from the predynastic period through the Ptolemaic period. The other major gallery is devoted to Roman materials.

STOCK MARKET

Rosy Price Index Gets No Reaction

By CHET CURRIER
AP Business Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — The best showing by the government's consumer price index in four and a half years failed to budge the stock market Friday.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrial stocks wandered in a narrow range all day and closed at 979.85, unchanged from Thursday.

Losers held a slim edge on gainers in the over-all tally of New York Stock Exchange-listed issues.

Big Board volume slowed to 18.09 million shares, down from 20.33 million Thursday and the lightest total since the first trading session of the year on Jan. 2, when 10.30 million shares changed hands.

Nationwide turnover in NYSE-listed issues, including trades in those stocks on regional exchanges and in the over-the-counter market, came to 22.83 million shares as of the close in New York.

As the market opened the Labor Department reported that its consumer price index rose only 0.1 per cent in February for its smallest increase since September of 1971.

But the market appeared to have taken the news into account in advance with its sharp rise earlier in the year. And analysts said investors seemed in a mood to wait and see whether the slackening trend in inflation will continue if business keeps picking up.

Brokers also noted that a good part of the market's attention was focused on the outlook for interest rates.

After Thursday's close the Federal Reserve reported another jump in the basic measure of the money supply.

That gave rise to renewed concern that the Fed might sooner or later feel the need to tighten credit in its efforts to hold inflationary pressures down.

Standard & Poor's 500-stock index edged up .13 to 100.58, and the NYSE's composite index of all its listed common stocks rose .06 to 53.76.

For the week, the Dow showed a net decline of 7.79, and most other indicators registered mild losses.

Anaconda was among the day's most active issues, hovering around 28 after a sharp rise earlier in the week. Atlantic Richfield is offering $27 apiece for 6 million Anaconda shares.

Arco stock gained a fraction.

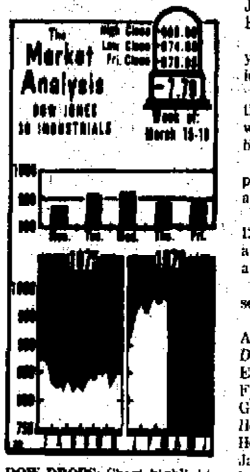
Citicorp, also active, added a bit more to its gains since the financial holding company increased its dividend early in the week.

Arthur G. McKee jumped more than 2 points. On Thursday the industrial engineering and construction company declared a 2-for-1 stock split and raised its dividend.

Trans World Airlines, one of the biggest percentage losers in the NYSE list, gave up a fraction. At midweek the airline was turned down in its bid for some government subsidies.

At the American Stock Exchange, the market value index crept up .05 to 103.37.

The NASDAQ composite index for the over-the-counter market was down .01 at 89.54.



DOW DROPS: Chart highlights the week's activity in the stock market, as reflected in the Dow Jones Average of 30 Industrials. The Dow closed the week at 979.85, down 7.79 from a week ago. (AP Wirephoto)

Hoosier Dairy Is Fined $400

Kent Schenkel of the Schenkel Dairy Co., Huntington, Ind., was sentenced yesterday in Berrien Fifth District court for possession with intent to sell milk that contained less than the legal amount of milk fat.

Schenkel pleaded nolo contendere to the charges and was sentenced to fine and costs of $400 and one year probation by District Judge Hugh Black.

Allegan Gets On Aid List

LANSING, Mich. (AP) — Allegan county was one of 29 Michigan counties declared as disaster areas by President Ford Friday as the result of severe ice storms earlier this month, the governor's office said.

Gov. William Milliken had requested the declaration on ground Michigan suffered at least $52.8 million worth of damage from the storms March 2 and March 7.

Milliken said the presidential declaration triggers federal programs to provide temporary housing, disaster unemployment assistance, individual and family grants, food stamps, small business administration loans and agricultural loans.

It also makes local units of government eligible for reimbursement of some of the storm related costs.

Financial assistance for school districts also becomes available, Milliken said.

Milliken said "we are gratified that President Ford and the FDAA (Federal Disaster Assistance Administration) have moved so rapidly to help repair the damage and recover the costs."

Half a dozen assistance centers will begin operating in the affected areas, including Alma, Sandusky, Saginaw, Millington Township in Tuscola County, Kent County and Waterford Township of Oakland County.

Notices of meeting times and places are being distributed through county Civil Defense directors' offices.

Bribery Attempt Charged

A Chicago man last night allegedly attempted to bribe two state police officers with a $100 bill, following his arrest on I-94 in Benton township.

He was lodged in the Berrien county jail after being booked on a charge of driving under the influence of intoxicants. The Benton Harbor state police post said a warrant is being sought in connection with the alleged bribery attempt.

Arrested was Sammie Wright, 52, Chicago. Sgt. Darryl Smith and Trooper Gary Truszkowski said they stopped a car for speeding on eastbound I-94 about 11:50 p.m. The driver was being transported to the post when the alleged bribe was offered. NEWS OF MARKETS

Rosy Price Index Gets No Reaction

By CHET CURRIER
AP Business Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — The best showing by the government's consumer price index in four and a half years failed to budge the stock market Friday.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrial stocks wandered in a narrow range all day and closed at 979.85, unchanged from Thursday.

Losers held a slim edge on gainers in the over-all tally of New York Stock Exchange-listed issues.

Big Board volume slowed to 18.09 million shares, down from 20.33 million Thursday and the lightest total since the first trading session of the year on Jan. 2, when 10.30 million shares changed hands.

Nationwide turnover in NYSE-listed issues, including trades in those stocks on regional exchanges and in the over-the-counter market, came to 22.83 million shares as of the close in New York.

As the market opened the Labor Department reported that its consumer price index rose only 0.1 per cent in February for its smallest increase since September of 1971.

But the market appeared to have taken the news into account in advance with its sharp rise earlier in the year. And analysts said investors seemed in a mood to wait and see whether the slackening trend in inflation will continue if business keeps picking up.

Brokers also noted that a good part of the market's attention was focused on the outlook for interest rates.

That gave rise to renewed concern that the Fed might sooner or later feel the need to tighten credit in its efforts to hold inflationary pressures down.

Standard & Poor's 500-stock index edged up .13 to 100.58, and the NYSE's composite index of all its listed common stocks rose .06 to 53.76.

For the week, the Dow showed a net decline of 7.79, and most other indicators registered mild losses.

Anaconda was among the day's most active issues, hovering around 26 after a sharp rise earlier in the week. Atlantic Richfield is offering $27 apiece for 6 million Anaconda shares.

Arco stock gained a fraction.

Citicorp, also active, added a bit more to its gains since the financial holding company increased its dividend early in the week.

Arthur G. McKee jumped more than 2 points. On Thursday the industrial engineering and construction company declared a 2-for-1 stock split and raised its dividend.

Trans World Airlines, one of the biggest percentage losers in the NYSE list, gave up a fraction. At midweek the airline was turned down in its bid for some government subsidies.

At the American Stock Exchange, the market value index crept up .05 to 103.37.

Questions For BH Officials

Winston Minott represent with the positions they hold? (3) What has happened to records that have been kept at different departments at city hall for years and years? (4) Are they in the Mayor's office now? (5) Have any records been destroyed? We hope not! (6) How many different boards do all of you sit on?

We know before this is over everything at city hall from the garbage bags to the mayor's office will have to be accountable.

Every man can run, but he can't hide.

Time is running out. People are beginning to get worried. The garbage is not being picked up on time, we're looking at holes in the streets, the downtown area that's practically closed down, the shortage of houses and also the amount of money that has been filtered through Benton Harbor since 1966.

Can we get a detailed account of what has happened to the money? We'd like to know.

Mayor Joseph, how many professional people do you feel you can go out and recruit to come here and take a position after the way you have treated the progressive people you have already brought here?

Approximately four weeks ago you stated at commission meeting, money was tight, we had to cut back. In one breath you couldn't afford to give the former city attorney a legal secretary and in the next breath you hire one for your office. We now have TWO city attorneys, thanks to somebody.

Monday night $120,000 was voted for the purchase of a new fire truck, when our garbage trucks don't run any more, when there's the possibility of laying off firemen, and the possibility of closing of the South Side fire station on Empire. Is this for the welfare of the people of BH?

If you think citizens are going to sit by and let you be dictators in this community, you are sadly mistaken.

You can leave of your own free will or be recalled. You have a choice.

The thing you attempted to do might have worked if this was a town without people.

Questions For BH Officials

Winston Minott represent with the positions they hold? (3) What has happened to records that have been kept at different departmemts at city hall for years and years? (4) Are they in the Mayor's office now? (5) Have any records been destroyed? We hope not! (6) How many different boards do all of you sit on?

We know before this is over everything at city hall from the garbage bags to the mayor's office will have to be accountable.

Every man can run, but he can't hide.

Time is running out. People are beginning to get worried. The garbage is not being picked up on time, we're looking at holes in the streets, the downtown area that's practically closed down, the shortage of houses and also the amount of money that has been filtered through Benton Harbor since 1968.

Can we get a detailed account of what has happened to the money? We'd like to know.

Mayor Joseph, how many professional people do you feel you can go out and recruit to come here and take a position after the way you have treated the progressive people you have already brought here?

Approximately four weeks ago you stated at commission meeting, money was tight, we had to cut back. In one breath you couldn't afford to give the former city attorney a legal secretary and in the next breath you hire one for your office. We now have TWO city attorneys, thanks to somebody.

Monday night $120,000 was voted for the purchase of a new fire truck, when our garbage trucks don't run any more, when there's the possibility of laying off firemen, and the possibility of closing of the South Side fire station on Empire. Is this for the welfare of the people of BH?

If you think citizens are going to sit by and let you be dictators in this community, you are sadly mistaken.

You can leave of your own free will or be recalled. You have a choice.

The thing you attempted to do might have worked if this was a town without people.

College Prexy Washes Dishes To Meet Cash Crises

By C.W. WOLFF
Associated Press Writer

FRANCONIA, N.H. (AP) — Every Monday morning, Franconia College President Ira Goldenberg dons an apron and bends over a steaming dish washer in the kitchen of the school's cafeteria.

Other administrators, faculty and students handle KP the rest of the week. They also order, prepare and serve the food.

The decision earlier this year by students and the faculty to kick out the professional caterers and take over in the kitchen is part of a larger reorganization underway at the small liberal arts college, housed in a sprawling old inn in the middle of New Hampshire's scenic White Mountains. Students at the 13-year-old college also run the mailroom, help with janitorial and custodial work, recruit at high schools, develop grant proposals, work on the college accounts and teach classes.

The reorganization was sparked by a financial crisis — the 265-student college faced a projected $339,000 deficit this year.

Five administrators were laid off, including the dean and assistant dean of development, about half of the 29 fulltime faculty accepted salary cuts, the board of trustees launched a fund-raising drive and students agreed to involve themselves in running their college. So far it has paid off in plans to cut student fees by 10 per cent next year — from $5,065 to $4,965 a year. But Goldenberg and others on the campus see far more important results and goals.

"I would have pushed for the reorganization even if we were $1 million in the black," says Goldenberg, a former assistant professor of psychology at Yale and Harvard who came to Franconia last fall. He says the aim is to involve students and faculty in running the college and providing a real "alternative education."

Franconia always has offered an alternative education — a claim criticized by some in the late 1960s as meaning student drug abuse and sexual freedom. It also meant no grades and wide flexibility in developing curriculum.

An alternative education is more than that, says Goldenberg. Among other things, it involves a re-education of faculty, staff and students, especially about class roles, he says.

"We're all socialized. If I become an academic, thank God, I'm not a truck driver. Even if it's not said, there's a real class distinction between the professor and the truck driver and the professor and the student. That kind of thinking is hard to break."

Goldenberg, 38, says his idea of education includes a feeling of equal ownership and control by the whole college — and eventually the community outside the campus.

He says that feeling must be based on a restructuring of the college to give reality — not just rhetoric — to ideas of democracy, openness and a realistic break down of traditional roles.

"In two or three years, people ought to be able to say to me, 'We like you. We'd like you to hang around, but we don't need a college president anymore,'" Goldenberg says.

PRESIDENTIAL DUTY: Franconia College President Ira Goldenberg does KP once a week as part of campus-wide reorganization and cost-cutting plan. Students and faculty of this Franconia, N.H., college also share kitchen jobs and other administrative custodial and academic work. (AP Wirephoto)

'Dual Objectives' Are Facing UAW

By OWEN ULLMANN
Associated Press Writer

DETROIT (AP) — The United Auto Workers will be casting one eye toward Washington and the other toward the bargaining table in its drive this year to get laid-off members back to work.

UAW President Leonard Woodcock is telling delegates attending a collective bargaining convention here that the union faces dual objectives in its efforts to increase employment opportunities for some 60,000 hourly auto workers still on layoff.

Contracts covering 850,000 auto and farm implement workers expire in September.

The union's top goal in summer negotiations with industry will be a reduction in working time, and its main political priority will be to push for a national policy of full employment, Woodcock says.

"This year in the United States...we do have twin tasks: the collective bargaining job and the political job," the union leader said Thursday in an opening address devoted as much to national policy as to the upcoming talks.

"We will get the job done satisfactorily in collective bargaining...and we will carry on the political task, working to get a viable Democratic candidate for president and liberal majorities in the Congress so that the U.S. can get turned around and once again move forward."

Some union sources say Woodcock appears more concerned with the upcoming national election than with the contract talks, and may seek a quick settlement with industry to marshall the 1.4-million member union's full resources behind the campaign.

Ask Them Yourself

Want to ask a famous person a question? Send the question on a postcard, to "Ask," Family Weekly, 641 Lexington Ave., New York, N.Y. 10022. We'll pay $5 for published questions. Sorry, we can't answer others.

FOR EDGAR BERGEN, ventriloquist

● Yes. A few years ago I was in a railway station in a tiny town. Along came two porters carrying a coffin. When they put it down, I rapped on the box, and asked, "Is everything all right in there?" The "corpse" replied: "Let me out, let me out." The porters ran like bolts of lightning. The train came, and a guy got off, looked straight at me and asked: "Where are the guys to load this stiff?" I didn't mention why they left, but I did help get the coffin on the train. I almost got a hernia doing it, too.

FOR COACH WOODY HAYES of Ohio State

Are you for or against post-season college football playoffs to establish a clear-cut champion?—David Miller, Austin, Tex.

● I'm against the idea. You'd be working these players to death, and they're still going to college. It would be asking too much of them to play that long a season and at the same time keep up with studies.

FOR OLIVIA NEWTON-JOHN

Is the story about your being thrown from a horse just a rumor? If not, will you keep riding?—L.R., River Edge, N.J.

● That accident was my first in all my years of riding. I was thrown Jan. 13 at a Malibu club. The horse slipped going up a mountain. That spill gave me cervical and lumbar strain and contusions of the back, but I was only in bed for five days, and I'm fine now. I've always loved riding and always will. I've been on horseback since I was old enough to walk.

FOR MICHAEL LANDON

With all the Scripture you quote on "Little House on the Prairie," have you ever had a personal experience with Jesus Christ?—Mrs. Greg Peters, Great Falls, Mont.

● I've discovered that I'm much more religious than I thought I was. I made the discovery when I started writing scripts for the show. In re-reading the scripts, I'm often amazed at the things I've written. As a youngster I never realized how important religion was to me.

FOR DR. MARGARET MEAD, anthropologist

Should housewives get credit towards social security?—Mrs. L. Mills, Hobart, Ind.

● Definitely. I'd also include women who help in agricultural work and other home industries.

FOR PHYLLIS GEORGE, sportscaster

What's more difficult for you—getting into or out of the athletes' locker rooms?—R.L. Holter, Bismarck, N.D.

● Since I have never been in the athletes' locker rooms, I would not know how difficult it would be to get out. However, I believe I could obtain a better interview after the athlete had showered and dressed and had time to evaluate the game or situation. I wouldn't want a man in my boudoir interviewing me while I was dressing, so why should I be in their locker room while they're dressing?

FOR DR. MARLIN PERKINS of TV's "Wild Kingdom"

Who would win in a fight between a lion and a bull?—Gilberto Vega, Monterrey, Mexico

● Animals don't fight for fun. If they attack each other, it is for a specific purpose. The only reason a lion would attack a bull is to eat him. Before the attack, the lion would have assessed the physical condition of the bull. If he was sickly or old, the lion would probably kill him without too much trouble; if the bull was in prime condition, the lion would most likely look around for easier prey.

FOR BILLIE JEAN KING

Is there any chance that you'll accept Bobby Riggs's challenge to play another match?—J.R.B., Amherst, N.Y.

● No. It doesn't mean that much to me to beat him. I wouldn't go through all that again. The match was not a stunt to me. I trained hard for it.

Is it true that you and your husband have separated since writing "Open Marriage"? If so, why?—Annie Jones, Olney Springs, Colo.

● It is definitely not true. My husband and I just celebrated our 30th wedding anniversary. It is unfortunate that some people like to spread rumors to allay their own fears about change. It takes love, courage and commitment to open up your marriage and grow. There are no rules in our books, only guidelines for achieving a dynamic relationship in which both partners can grow. It isn't easy, but it works.

FOR THE "ASK THEM YOURSELF" EDITOR

Is Greta Garbo still alive? Please write a few things about her.—Mrs. H. S. Heppler, Sacramento, Calif.

● Some 42 years after her first movie—she's still described as one of the world's most beautiful women. She never married. She likes Europe and goes there often. In France she supposedly sunbathes nude (at 72!) every afternoon at the home of a friend. Garbo is known for her solitary walks through the woods, her smoking (three packs a day) and her drinking (vodka). She diets and exercises and still uses very little makeup. At New York's Ritz Tower Hotel, her alias was Harriet Brown. Strangers who invade her privacy are rewarded with icy stares and cutting remarks, and friends who talk about her to the press never hear from Garbo again.

● I've discovered that I'm much more religious than I thought I was. I made the discovery when I started writing scripts for the show. In re-reading the scripts, I'm often amazed at the things I've written. As a youngster I never realized how important religion was to me.

FOR DR. MARGARET MEAD, anthropologist

● Definitely. I'd also include women who help in agricultural work and other home industries.

FOR PHYLLIS GEORGE, sportscaster

● Since I have never been in the athletes' locker rooms, I would not know how difficult it would be to get out. However, I believe I could obtain a better interview after the athlete had showered and dressed and had time to evaluate the game or situation. I wouldn't want a man in my boudoir interviewing me while I was dressing, so why should I be in their locker room while they're dressing?

Who would win in a fight between a lion and a bull?—Gilberto Vega, Monterrey, Mexico

● Animals don't fight for fun. If they attack each other, it is for a specific purpose. The only reason a lion would attack a bull is to eat him. Before the attack, the lion would have assessed the physical condition of the bull. If he was sickly or old, the lion would probably kill him without too much trouble; if the bull was in prime condition, the lion would most likely look around for easier prey.

FOR BILLIE JEAN KING

Is there any chance that you'll accept Bobby Riggs's challenge to play another match?—J.R.B., Amherst, N.Y.

● No. It doesn't mean that much to me to beat him. I wouldn't go through all that again. The match was not a stunt to me. I trained hard for it.

Is it true that you and your husband have separated since writing "Open Marriage"? If so, why?—Annie Jones, Olney Springs, Colo.

● It is definitely not true. My husband and I just celebrated our 30th wedding anniversary. It is unfortunate that some people like to spread rumors to allay their own fears about change. It takes love, courage and commitment to open up your marriage and grow. There are no rules in our books, only guidelines for achieving a dynamic relationship in which both partners can grow. It isn't easy, but it works.

FOR THE "ASK THEM YOURSELF" EDITOR

Is Greta Garbo still alive? Please write a few things about her.—Mrs. H. S. Heppler, Sacramento, Calif.

● Some 42 years after her first movie—she's still described as one of the world's most beautiful women. She never married. She likes Europe and goes there often. In France she supposedly sunbathes nude (at 72!) every afternoon at the home of a friend. Garbo is known for her solitary walks through the woods, her smoking (three packs a day) and her drinking (vodka). She diets and exercises and still uses very little makeup. At New York's Ritz Tower Hotel, her alias was Harriet Brown. Strangers who invade her privacy are rewarded with icy stares and cutting remarks, and friends who talk about her to the press never hear from Garbo again.

Report From Philip Morris

Filters Fall Short.

Tobacco gives taste to a cigarette. And the more tobacco taste that's filtered out in the form of tar, the less taste a cigarette will deliver.

That's the conclusion that led us to the business end of smoking. The tobacco end. And a remarkable new flavor discovery called 'Enriched Flavor.'

The new cigarette with 'Enriched Flavor' is MERIT.

MERIT and MERIT MENTHOL

Smokers Report MERIT Delivers More Taste

9 mg. tar MERIT was taste-tested against five current leading low tar cigarette brands ranging from 11 mg. to 15 mg. tar.

In similar tests against 11 mg. to 15 mg. menthol brands, 9 mg. tar MERIT MENTHOL performed strongly too, delivering as much—or more—taste than the higher tar brands tested.

MERIT. Unprecedented flavor at 9 mg. tar.

Rona Jaffe Visits Our April Visitor, The Youthful King of Sweden

Rona: "What would you do if you weren't King?"

King: "I have thought about that. I would like to be a farmer."

By Rona Jaffe

One of his students once asked the great acting teacher Stanislavski, "How do you play a king?"

"You don't have to do anything to play a king," Stanislavski replied. "The audience knows you're the king by the way the other actors behave."

There are only four kings left in Europe: Juan Carlos of Spain, Olav of Norway, Baudouin I of Belgium and Carl XVI Gustaf of Sweden. Royalty on the grand scale is almost extinct, clearly an endangered species. Viewed from afar, royalty is fun to watch. But if you ever meet a king on his own turf, in the Royal Palace, no matter what you thought before, it becomes quite awesome.

I know. I was there.

The King of Sweden, Carl XVI Gustaf, is a handsome 29-year-old bachelor, a perfectly nice ordinary young man who has the misfortune of being king. Two years ago, at 27, he succeeded his grandfather, the greatly beloved 90-year-old King Gustaf VI Adolf. Usually a king would be middle-aged, but Carl's father died in a plane crash when Carl was a baby. His grandfather was an intellectual, interested in literature and the arts, and a museum is filled with ancient Egyptian treasures he discovered on archaeological expeditions. The new young king, although carefully educated in the duties of his office, is not at all an intellectual. He likes hunting and fishing, skiing and sailing; and before he was king, he was seen every night in his favorite discotheque with friends. He still speeds around Stockholm in his fast little blue sports car, wearing jeans; and what he likes most of all is girls, and they like him.

Independent behavior that is viewed as enchanting in an old king is looked on as too impetuous and reckless in a young one. The late King Gustaf, a tall dignified man who retained his good sense of humor to the last, delighted in leading guided tours around the palace (if he didn't know what period a chair was from, he would make it up), and he accepted tips that the tourists gave him. He would take long walks alone through the streets of Stockholm, talking to the people, sometimes giving them the wrong directions by mistake. The people loved it all. But when Carl became King, his youth and good looks immediately made him the unwilling darling of the tabloids, a celebrity like our Sinatra or Teddy Kennedy. Starlets and actresses wrote stories about their romances (real or imaginary) with the new King. If he took off alone in his sports car and talked to the people, it was generally to girls, and there was gossip. At the 1972 Munich Olympics, he met a German commoner, Sylvia Sommerlaut, who was a guide there, and their long off-again on-again romance caused more talk. Soon the King's advisers became displeased with the King's reputation as a swinger, and the Swedish press was not allowed to interview him. The King himself was tired of being asked when he would get married and produce the necessary male heir.

But what else do you ask a king who is the monarch in a Social Democracy, a cradle-to-grave welfare state where there is neither poverty nor great wealth, where the elected Parliament has stripped the King of all his regal powers, reducing him to the role of a good-will ambassador? And what could the King say to the press? He is not allowed to express political views—the King must be above politics. He is concerned about ecology and environmental protection, he visits the factories, he has studied banking; but people are not very interested in what he thinks about industry or agriculture. You ask the Prime Minister about internal affairs. You ask the young King about love affairs.

The Swedish people like to humanize their Royal Family much the same way as we like to humanize our First Family. As one Swede put it: "We are a socialist country and our Royal Family is the poorest in Europe, and we like it that way."

A woman who is a close friend of the Royal Family described King Carl to me this way: "He's a very gentle boy and wants everyone to like him. He's very sweet, not selfish. His friends are not aristocrats, they're mostly from his boarding school. He would really like to be a sailor or a farmer, not a king. He's like an awkward teenager, he's never grown up. He didn't have much home life—no father, four older sisters bossing him around, a very beautiful and very autocratic German mother; and his grandfather away on archaeological digs."

Thursday, the day of our audience, was icy cold. Our footsteps rang on the stones of the palace courtyard like something from a Gothic novel as we walked to our meeting with the King. The Royal Palace of Stockholm is the oldest and largest castle in Europe in which anyone still lives. It is built of stone, with 700 rooms and is quite forbidding from the outside. The King's apartment consists of about 20 rooms, but that partly lighted area seemed tiny in comparison to the whole. There was a sentry outside, and two guards in the inner courtyard, looking cold. No one else. In Sweden in wintertime it gets pitch-dark at three o'clock in the afternoon. We were to have 20 minutes with the King as a group, and then each of us would have five minutes

My First Glimpse of the King—The Nobel Prize Ceremony

On April 1, King Carl is coming to America for a month, to travel around our country and see what it's like. The Swedish Government thought we in turn should get to know what he is like, and they invited three magazines to send representatives to Sweden beforehand to meet the King. FAMILY WEEKLY sent me.

We arrived in Stockholm on a Sunday, after a 10-hour flight in a jumbo jet filled with present and former Nobel Prize winners and their families. The Nobel Prize ceremonies and banquet were to be on Wednesday.

The Nobel Prize ceremony was held in a huge arena with rows of seats in tiers around a circular area where two thrones (one for the Queen of Denmark) had been placed. The men were in white tie and tails and medals, the women in formal evening dresses. The 5,000 people in the audience stood up as King Carl of Sweden came in. He looked very young and small and had rather sloppy posture. I liked him. Each award winner, after the speeches, was to walk to the King to receive his prize. Eugenio Montale, the Italian poet who wrote three books and won the Nobel Prize for Literature, is 79 years old and ill. When he rose and took two feeble steps, the young King walked quickly across the carpet to him, a gesture of respect so spontaneous that I could feel the waves of approval from the crowd. I liked him even more.

alone with him. It had seemed a very stingy amount of time to me, and yet I was beginning to become so intimidated that it seemed far more than enough, especially the time alone.

"I'm not scared of a king," I lied to the other two journalists. "After all, I'm an American."

It was decided that we should all go into the next room, where the King sat on a couch and we sat on chairs in a semicircle around him, and small glasses of dry sherry were served. PETE MARAVICH

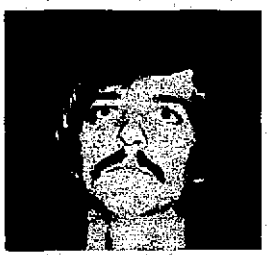
Is the "Jinx" Finally Over?



After five troubled years as a pro basketball player, "Pistol Pete" Maravich has found new success and personal happiness with the New Orleans Jazz. Back in Louisiana State University, Pete's unerring marksmanship and dazzling movements had overflow crowds oohing and ahing. He broke Oscar Robertson's all-time collegiate scoring record before graduating, and there was great fanfare when he signed with the Atlanta Hawks of the NBA. But the build-up was too great. Maravich had not learned to coordinate his movements with his fellow players. He also proved weak on defense. Some members of the Atlanta team resented his high salary and "showboating" style. When the Hawks failed to win, the fans began to boo Maravich. At the end of his first season, he commented, "After what I've been through, I feel like a 10-year veteran already." . . . "Pistol Pete's" difficulties continued through the next few years. He was stricken with mononucleosis; then with a strange facial paralysis, and finally with injuries to his Achilles tendon. He felt that Atlanta had become a "jinx" town and welcomed the trade to the new Jazz team. . . . The arrival of a new coach for the Jazz, Butch Van Breda Kolff, signaled a turn in Maravich's fortunes. Van Breda Kolff stressed team play and defense and was able to get Maravich to harmonize his unique style with his teammates. Now it all seems to be coming together. "Maravich is playing the best I've ever seen," says the Jazz coach. And Maravich says in turn, "Van Breda Kolff has been able to motivate me and the other players better than any other coach I've seen in the pros. I'm so happy now, it's really the happiest I've ever been." —By Barry Abramson

Can Too Many Vitamin Pills Do Harm?

If one vitamin pill is good, wouldn't two be better? Not necessarily. While vitamins and minerals usually do no harm if taken in somewhat greater than the recommended daily allowances, some of them can be harmful. Take vitamins A and D, for example. An excess of vitamin A can cause the very symptoms the vitamin is meant to prevent. Likewise, vitamin D, which makes it possible for the body to utilize calcium, can cause calcification of certain organs if taken in excess. (This is why the FDA has determined that no product containing more than 10,000 units of vitamin A or 400 units of vitamin D can be obtained without a prescription.) Overdoses of minerals can also be dangerous. You've probably heard TV commercials touting the benefits of iron. Well, iron is beneficial. It is necessary to prevent or fight anemia. But cases of iron poisoning have been reported. What it all boils down to is this: vitamins and iron supplements are generally safe and helpful. But do read the labels carefully for recommended doses. —By Erwin Di Cyan, Ph.D.

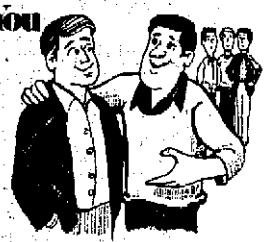
How Many True Friends Do You Have?



You may have plenty of acquaintances, but how many true friends do you have? Real Friends are the people who care about your well-being and who like you the way you are. You're lucky if you have a precious few of this kind of friend. Jess Lair, in his book "I Ain't Well—But I Sure Am Better" (Doubleday, $3.95), explains that most of us needlessly punish ourselves by spending too much of our time with those people who either don't matter to us or who actually rub us the wrong way. We feel we "ought" to like everyone and we "ought" to work at getting everyone to like us. Such thinking produces situations in which you are stunned when a "good friend" does some terrible thing to you. At such times, says Lair, you come to realize "there really wasn't a friendship there. Is there anything wrong in deliberately arranging your free time around real friends? No. Their companionship can be your surest emotional defense against the rebuffs, cold shoulders and disappointments of daily life. —By Shirley Sloan Fader

Do You Believe In Financial Voodoo?

Several years ago, a man who had lost his job staked all his savings on a stock "tip" from a casual acquaintance. Amazingly, the stock zoomed, and the man made a great deal of money. Instead of quitting while he was ahead, the man continued speculating, and soon he was down to his last few dollars. Still, he didn't worry. He confidently expected another market "tip." As financial counselors know, there are many people who firmly believe some miracle will always occur to bail them out of money troubles. Most of us are not unrealistic enough to expect magic; but a great many persons manage money on the theory that an extraordinary event, such as a winning lottery ticket, will occur. Another form of "expecting magic" is hoping that the sheer act of writing down numbers will produce a balanced budget. Experts say the person who expects magic is basically insecure.

Slimming Hints From People Who've "Been There"

At a Los Angeles dieting symposium, the most cheered suggestions from people who had lost weight and were keeping it down, were these: From a secretary: "At dinner, I always give myself a too-small portion to start, so I'll feel free to take a second helping. Then usually I don't take the second helping." . . . From a corporation executive: "I quit smoking. The smoke was irritating my ulcer and I was having to drink milk to alkalize my stomach acids—that was about 1,000 calories a day I could do without." . . . From a model: "I wear a narrow gold chain around my waist; if I gain a pound it bites into my skin and hurts." A businessman: "No more beer with TV. I drink a gallon or so of club soda spiked with lemon juice and a saccharine pill." Career woman: "When I want a hot fudge sundae, I just figure my priorities: The sundae or a full meal. Usually I end up choosing the full meal and promise myself the sundae next week."

Don't let your fingers or ears just because you don't want to spend $1,000 a carat (or more) for a diamond ring. Our Gemfires are so elegant only a diamond expert, or someone with a powerful magnifier can be really sure they aren't natural diamonds.

Gemfires are polished and faceted by master diamond cutters to bring out their full fire and brilliance. They are then set by master craftsmen, by hand, in expensive-looking, open-back mountings so the back of the stone is exposed for maximum reflection of light.

You don't have to be afraid that Gemfires will be phony-looking plastic or paste jewelry. They gleam like diamonds formed deep within the earth by tremendous heat and pressure. Yet they are free of the imperfections found in most natural diamonds. There are no cracks, no flaws, no spots of impurities to mar their sparkling beauty. We invite you to wear a Gemfire. If you, your family or your friends can tell the difference between it and a natural diamond return it to us within 30 days and we'll gladly send you your money back.

You're in good company when you wear Gemfires. Today, even millionaires wear simulated diamonds and keep their precious jewels hidden away in bank vaults to prevent them from being lost or stolen.

Gemfires make a lifetime gift — — and the gift of a lifetime.

How to Find Your Ring Size

1. Cut a strip of paper 3 inches long and 1/4 inch wide.

2. Wrap the strip around the finger that is to wear the ring. Then place a dot on the strip where it meets the end.

3. Place the dot on the strip of paper at "A" on the ring guide. The number at the end of the strip is your ring size.

The Jefferson Memorial, foreground, and Washington Monument stand as reminders of our national heritage and two of our greatest Presidents.

As our nation's 200th birthday party on July 4 nears, the focus for special exhibits will be on Philadelphia, Boston and Washington.

In addition, cities, towns and hamlets across the United States will be staging their own cultural and historical events, parades and projects so that the Bicentennial calendar will surely offer something—somewhere—for just about everyone.

But it is these three key cities that have something new to offer visitors on a large scale while still featuring their past and present historic attractions.

PHILADELPHIA's major Bicentennial exhibit will be the Living History Center, an $11.5 million project housed in a specially designed building adjacent to historic Independence Mall. The main attraction here will be a 45-minute historical film charting events since the signing of the Declaration of Independence. It will use a projection technique which creates the illusion that the viewer is taking part in the film's activities. (Tentative admission: adults, $3; children 12-18, $1.75; children 6-12, $1, and under 6, free.)

The center will also feature more than a dozen multimedia subject exhibits, including a referendum on major issues. In this exhibit, visitors will have an opportunity to "solve," by ballot, problems dealing with pollution, crime, excess taxation, eroding military strength and many other areas of concern. The center is scheduled to open in late April.

The Afro-American Historical and Cultural Museum (opening June 11) will highlight the history, culture and achievements of black people. There will be six major display areas, an auditorium for film, drama and lectures, a Black Hall of Achievements and a permanent archive and library.

And in and around the Independence National Historic Park, visitors will see the Liberty Bell in a new transparent home (you can still touch the crack), a reconstruction of buildings owned by America's beloved philosopher, Benjamin Franklin, and Graff House, the three-story brick house where the Declaration of Independence was drafted by Thomas Jefferson.

If all this history seems a bit confusing, then drop by the Visitors Center at Third and Chestnut and watch a free 28-minute film called "Independence," giving the background and events that led up to the Revolutionary era.

In BOSTON, you should go to the multimedia exhibits that transform history, with the help of new film-and-sound techniques, into entertaining, educational experiences. You will see the lifestyles, events and technological advances of the 18th, 19th and 20th centuries dramatized in three separate exhibits.

Start with "The Revolution" where you record on a ballot your reactions to the issues and events that confronted Colonial Bostonians. At the final tally, you learn whether you would have joined the Minute Men or fled to Canada or England. This exhibit is located in Faneuil Hall, in the midst of one of Boston's oldest and best-loved attractions—the Freedom Trail. (Admission: adults, $1.50; children, 75 cents.)

"Victorian Boston" celebrates the people, inventions and technological advances that changed the city between 1865 and 1900. Original photos and daguerreotypes, clothes and artifacts show how the rich, middle class, immigrants and factory workers fared at this time. There are also several participa-

As our nation's 200th birthday party on July 4 nears, the focus for special exhibits will be on Philadelphia, Boston and Washington.

In addition, cities, towns and hamlets across the United States will be staging their own cultural and historical events, parades and projects so that the Bicentennial calendar will surely offer something—somewhere—for just about everyone.

But it is these three key cities that have something new to offer visitors on a large scale while still featuring their past and present historic attractions.

PHILADELPHIA's major Bicentennial exhibit will be the Living History Center, an $11.5 million project housed in a specially designed building adjacent to historic Independence Mall. The main attraction here will be a 45-minute historical film charting events since the signing of the Declaration of Independence. It will use a projection technique which creates the illusion that the viewer is taking part in the film's activities. (Tentative admission: adults, $3; children 12-18, $1.75; children 6-12, $1, and under 6, free.)

The center will also feature more than a dozen multimedia subject exhibits, including a referendum on major issues. In this exhibit, visitors will have an opportunity to "solve," by ballot, problems dealing with pollution, crime, excess taxation, eroding military strength and many other areas of concern. The center is scheduled to open in late April.

The Afro-American Historical and Cultural Museum (opening June 11) will highlight the history, culture and achievements of black people. There will be six major display areas, an auditorium for film, drama and lectures, a Black Hall of Achievements and a permanent archive and library.

And in and around the Independence National Historic Park, visitors will see the Liberty Bell in a new transparent home (you can still touch the crack), a reconstruction of buildings owned by America's beloved philosopher, Benjamin Franklin, and Graff House, the three-story brick house where the Declaration of Independence was drafted by Thomas Jefferson.

If all this history seems a bit confusing, then drop by the Visitors Center at Third and Chestnut and watch a free 28-minute film called "Independence," giving the background and events that led up to the Revolutionary era.

In BOSTON, you should go to the multimedia exhibits that transform history, with the help of new film-and-sound techniques, into entertaining, educational experiences. You will see the lifestyles, events and technological advances of the 18th, 19th and 20th centuries dramatized in three separate exhibits.

Start with "The Revolution" where you record on a ballot your reactions to the issues and events that confronted Colonial Bostonians. At the final tally, you learn whether you would have joined the Minute Men or fled to Canada or England. This exhibit is located in Faneuil Hall, in the midst of one of Boston's oldest and best-loved attractions—the Freedom Trail. (Admission: adults, $1.50; children, 75 cents.)

"Victorian Boston" celebrates the people, inventions and technological advances that changed the city between 1865 and 1900. Original photos and daguerreotypes, clothes and artifacts show how the rich, middle class, immigrants and factory workers fared at this time. There are also several participa-

The United States Presidents Ingots

Only 25,000 collectors will ever own this strictly limited edition of major historical, educational, and artistic significance!

A BICENTENNIAL TRIBUTE TO 37 REMARKABLE MEN

What a dramatic and inspiring medallic series this is . . . conceived with deep respect for the remarkable leaders of America. And, with the Bicentennial fast approaching we are more aware of the great challenges facing our chief executive—The President of the United States of America. To honor this . . . the most powerful office on earth . . . The Washington D.C. Bicentennial Commission has authorized The Hamilton Mint to strike a unique Presidential Ingot for each of the thirty-seven men who have led this nation to greatness.

THE MINTING OF THE PRESIDENCY—A FINE ART TREASURY

A superb example of the engravers' art. The United States Presidents Ingots consists of thirty-seven gleaming, mirror-like ingots. These are to be issued to collectors at the rate of two per month. Each ingot of this significant Bicentennial collection contains 880 grains of the purest silver available—that of 999/1000ths purity. In 19 months, subscribers to The United States Presidents Ingots will have accumulated over 3 troy pounds of fine silver!

STUNNINGLY DESIGNED . . . METICULOUSLY CRAFTED

It is unlikely that you have ever witnessed pure silver ingots such as these before. Designed by master sculptor Alfred Brunetti, the surfaces glow with a duality of finished exquisite satin bas-relief sculpture is dramatically highlighted by the brilliance of mirror-like backgrounds. The illustration above can merely suggest the superlative majesty of these ingots.

PRESIDENTIAL REFERENCE VOLUME INCLUDED FREE

ISSUED IN STRICTLY LIMITED EDITION

Significantly, The United States Presidents Ingots bears the highly regarded endorsement of The Washington D.C. Bicentennial Commission, an independent organization established for the promotion of our nation's Bicentennial festivities. The Hamilton Mint will strike but 25,000 First Edition sets in .999 fine silver. Only one complete set will be minted for each subscriber and no more will ever be minted once the edition limit are reached, thus protecting the rarity of the edition.

YOUR PERSONAL SERIAL NUMBER

Before sending your first two United States Presidents Ingots, you will be assigned the lowest serial number available. As further protection of your investment, each ingot bears The Hamilton Mint Hallmark and is accompanied by a Certificate of Authenticity—your record of the precious metal content of the collection.

INVESTMENT POTENTIAL

This collection is certain to be treasured by knowledgeable collectors for its rarity and beauty, and you may acquire this series in precious metal at a time when prominent advisors are predicting a continued rise in the price of precious metals in the years ahead.

AMERICA'S "5" MOST POPULAR SHADE TREES

LESS THAN $2.00 each (in lots of 16)

PLUS OUR "FANTASTIC" .50¢ BONUS OFFER!

ALL SHADE TREES SHIPPED AT 5 TO 7 FEET

Sugar Maple (acer saccharum) The largest of all maples, and its beautiful array of yellow and orange hues make it a sight to remember due to the foliage thickness — A very hardy northern and southern tree and will grow up to 60 feet. (shipped at 5 to 7 feet).

E. White Birch (betula verrucosa) This beautiful tree has very delicate foliage with snowy white bark, and a compact form — It can be seen growing in all different climates and the multi-trunk (clump) effect can be obtained by planting two or more trees next to one another. It is aiso a rapid grower. (shipped at 5 to 7 feet).

Red Maple (acer rubrum) This is one of the most beautiful of all shade trees. Besides having brilliant scarlet red leaves in the fall of the year, it has another excellent trait —it is an extremely fast grower. It is very easily transplanted and many experts agree it will grow practically anywhere in the U.S.A. Grows to 60 feet. (shipped at 5 to 7 feet).

Weeping Willow (salix babylonica) This tree is the hardiest of all willows, and has clear golden yellow and green leaves, the leaves appear early in Spring and one of the last trees to lose its leaves. A "super fast" growing tree at the rate of 5 to 6 feet per year. An excellent buy. (shipped at 5 to 7 feet).

"3 WAY GUARANTEE"

1. All shade trees regardless of the number ordered will be 5 to 7 feet tall, and all bonus trees will be 4 to 6 feet. All Shipping Paid.
2. Trees advertised in your area will live in your area.
3. All trees are guaranteed to live and if by mere chance any fail to live they will be replaced free of charge for three years.

Tulip Tree (liriodendron tulipifera) This tree is a very large growing tree reaching heights of eighty feet or more. Its yellow-green leaves turn bright yellow in the fall and in the late Spring it has vivid orange and yellow tulip shaped flowers. Very hardy and fast growing and is a cousin to the magnolia. (shipped at 5 to 7 feet).

Invite This Chicken to Your Next Party!

This week, Food Editor Marilyn Hansen shares a "company" chicken recipe you can make the day before. Marilyn says, "You just can't beat chicken at a dinner party. Here's a scrumptious boned chicken dish that's appropriate for almost any occasion."

Savory Chicken Roulade surrounded by Broccoli.

Smart Cooking For Special Occasions

HOT CURRIED CHEESE DIP

1 pkg. (8 ozs.) cream cheese, softened
2 tablespoons milk
½ cup sour cream
1 jar (2½ ozs.) dried beef, chopped
2 tablespoons finely chopped onion
2 tablespoons finely chopped green pepper
¼ teaspoon ground black pepper
1½ teaspoons curry powder
⅓ cup chopped nuts (walnuts, pecans or peanuts)
Plain crackers

1. In medium bowl, blend together cream cheese and milk until smooth. Add sour cream. Mix well.
2. Add dried beef, onion, green pepper, black pepper and curry powder. Beat at low speed.
3. Spoon mixture into shallow (2-cup) baking dish. Sprinkle with chopped nuts.
4. Cover and refrigerate. Just before serving, uncover and heat in preheated 350° F. oven for 20 minutes.
5. Serve with crackers and vegetables. Makes about 2 cups

SAVORY CHICKEN ROULADE

¼ cup butter or margarine
½ cup finely chopped onion
½ cup finely chopped celery
1½ cups coarsely crumbled bacon-flavored crackers
1 jar (2 ozs.) diced pimientos, drained
¼ cup chopped parsley
1 egg, beaten
½ teaspoon poultry seasoning
¼ teaspoon ground black pepper
4 large chicken breasts, skinned, boned, split and pounded to ¼-inch thickness
All-purpose flour
¼ cup pure vegetable oil
1 can (10¾ ozs.) golden mushroom soup, undiluted
¼ cup sherry or milk

1. Heat butter in medium saucepan until hot but not smoking. Add onion and celery and sauté for 5 minutes, stirring.
2. Add cracker crumbs, pimientos, parsley, egg, poultry seasoning and black pepper. Mix.
3. Spoon stuffing onto centers of chicken pieces, leaving a ½-inch edge all around. Roll each from narrow end and fasten with wooden picks. Coat lightly with flour.
4. Heat oil in skillet and lightly brown chicken rolls in hot oil.
5. Place chicken rolls in shallow baking dish. Blend golden mushroom soup and sherry until smooth. Pour over chicken rolls. Cover with foil. Refrigerate if not baking immediately.
6. Bake, covered, in preheated 350° F. oven for 45 to 50 minutes.

Makes 4 large servings

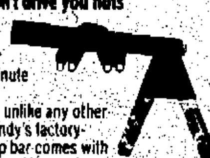
Bill and Peggy-Jo Kienast were skeptical.

Frankly, they doubted that any gym—even a Gym-Dandy—could withstand the awesome destructive force of 5 six-year-olds named Amy, Abigail, Sara, Gordon and Ted.

So, we took the Kienasts down to our factory to see for themselves what makes a Gym-Dandy the most kidproof gym in the world.

The bolts don't drive you nuts

We got Bill on our side right away with our patented 5 Minute Frame®.



Because unlike any other gym, Gym-Dandy's factory-assembled top bar comes with all crossarms and leg sockets pre-welded into place. Bill simply slid the legs into the sockets, locked them in—only one bolt per leg—and the Gym-Dandy frame was on its feet. In minutes.

What's more, those factory-welded sockets and crossarms can't work loose, the way ordinary nut-and-bolt assemblies can. So a Gym-Dandy not only goes up easier, it stays up longer.

Little things mean a lot

So we made sure the Kienasts noticed our unique Bodygard Slide.™ Its platform stays level because it's actually hung from the top bar and supported at 4 points—instead of just standing on legs that can sag or sink into the ground.

We showed how details like the extra-long nylon bearings make our Sky-Skooter® more durable and more fun. By eliminating metal-to-metal friction and letting the unit swing easier.

We asked Bill, who weighs about 170, to climb the ladder and bounce a few times to demonstrate the amazing strength of our Giant Footsteps.™

Making a Gym-Dandy isn't kid stuff

Finally we told the Kienasts a little about ourselves. How we began over 30 years ago, making a few gym sets by hand for our neighbors. How we built a business by taking kids' fun seriously. And how we still make gyms today as though they were going to be used by our neighbors' children.

By this time, the only Kienasts who weren't convinced were the quints themselves. But Bill Kienast fixed that: He put a Gym-Dandy in his backyard. After that, it was all child's play.

Are you still smoking?

In the years since the criticism against smoking first appeared, many people have given up cigarettes. But many more people haven't.

And that's who we'd like to talk to. That even larger group of people who are still smoking today.

If you're still a smoker, you've probably heard the charges leveled against 'tar' and nicotine. You may have become concerned. And chances are you even tried to do something about it. Like trying several of those empty-tasting low 'tar' and nicotine cigarettes.

If you're like a lot of other smokers, you probably went right back to your old brand, and concluded that a good-tasting low 'tar' and nicotine cigarette has never been invented.

Well, if that's the case, you haven't tried Vantage.

Vantage cuts down substantially on the 'tar' and nicotine you may have become concerned about. Without cutting out that satisfying tobacco flavor you've come to appreciate.

Now Vantage isn't the lowest 'tar' and nicotine cigarette you can smoke. But it may well be the lowest you'll enjoy.

To put it simply, Vantage still tastes like a cigarette.

So, if you still smoke, but would like to cut down on 'tar' and nicotine, Vantage is one cigarette you should seriously consider.

Star Chat

TV's Jimmie Walker:

The Restless Young Man Who Lives Inside "J. J."

By Peer J. Oppenheimer

Elizabeth Gee

"I was a newspaperboy in the South Bronx . . . Everybody should live there one time in his life. It makes you want to get out, so you work harder. You learn to roll with the punches."

Jimmie Walker made a surprisingly low-key entrance into crowded Scandia, one of Los Angeles' best restaurants, and headed for my table in his loose, disjointed walk. He was nattily attired in a flowered shirt with brown accents, jeans and matching suede jacket and cap. A chubby couple stopped him on the way and gushed, "You're that fella who plays 'J.J.' in 'Good Times' on TV! We enjoy you so much!" Jimmie grinned until half his face was just an assortment of teeth. Eventually, he pulled himself away, and soon I found myself face to face with "J.J." himself—the supporting actor who won FAMILY WEEKLY's 1975 Celebrity Poll going away!

FAMILY WEEKLY: How do you like being recognized wherever you go?

JIMMIE: I know it's tired and trite, but I hate my loss of privacy. And signing autographs bugs me. I don't need no ego thing. Some people do, I guess. I don't. I'm not into the celebrity bit. Like coming here: when I walked in that door, they looked at me like I was crazy, and right away they want to know, "Where's your tie?" My tie! Man, I'm used to McDonald's or Taco Bell. You know—grab a burger and split! Jeans 'n' T-shirts do me fine.

FW: I understand you do a lot more than the TV show.

JIMMIE: Yes— I write, and at least once a week I do a club show. I also made a movie and an album, "Dyn-o-mite!"

FW: Do you write your own material?

JIMMIE: Of course. I couldn't afford to do it any other way! I'm writing other scripts as well. I did one for "The Mary Tyler Moore Show" and a "Movie of the Week." Nobody's bought them yet, but I'm hopin'.

FW: How do you think of yourself—as a comedian, actor or writer?

JIMMIE: First as a comedian. Then, moving apart, is the writer. But I'm not an actor! I do the part of J.J. like I was in a nightclub. I react. That's not acting.

FW: Have you always wanted to be a comedian?

JIMMIE: I didn't want to be a comedian! At first I wanted to be a disk jockey until I found out I didn't have the talent for it. Then I wanted to be a network newscaster, but I didn't have the timing or the background to do that.

FW: So how did you end up a comedian?

JIMMIE: I was doing this paper for my oratory class at City College in New York, and I made up some things and attributed them to Dick Gregory, figuring if they didn't go over, he'd get the blame. But they liked the stuff. So I sat down and figured it out: if you're funny, you're funny whether it's for three or 300 or 3,000.

FW: Did you ever have to be funny for just three people?

JIMMIE: I did for Jack Paar—on my first interview! He said, "Everyone keeps telling us you're funny. All right, go ahead: be funny." When I finished, I had them lying on the floor. The next day he asked me if I was ready to go on national TV, and I said, "I've been ready for four years!"

FW: What was your first job?

JIMMIE: I was a newspaper delivery boy in the South Bronx. I'll tell you something: everybody should live there one time in his life. It makes you want to get out, so you work harder. You learn to roll with the punches. Rich kids don't have to. Look at Dino and Desi [Dino is the son of Dean Martin and Desi, the son of Lucille Ball and Desi Arnaz]: millionaires by the time they're 21, and they haven't anything they really want to do. They have a house, cars, chicks—what do they need? Nothing. No drive.

FW: How old are you?

JIMMIE: Old enough. (Editor's note: He's reported to be 26.)

FW: How do you feel about being in a successful TV series?

JIMMIE: It's advantageous to my career, makes people aware of me. Also, it gives me a lot of money.

FW: How do you get along with your co-stars?

FW: You seem to be quite an extrovert.

TV's Jimmie Walker:

The Restless Young Man Who Lives Inside "J. J."

Elizabeth Gee

"I was a newspaperboy in the South Bronx . . . Everybody should live there one time in his life. It makes you want to get out, so you work harder. You learn to roll with the punches."

Jimmie Walker made a surprisingly low-key entrance into crowded Scandia, one of Los Angeles' best restaurants, and headed for my table in his loose, disjointed walk. He was nattily attired in a flowered shirt with brown accents, jeans and matching suede jacket and cap. A chubby couple stopped him on the way and gushed, "You're that fella who plays 'J.J.' in 'Good Times' on TV! We enjoy you so much!" Jimmie grinned until half his face was just an assortment of teeth. Eventually, he pulled himself away, and soon I found myself face to face with "J.J." himself—the supporting actor who won FAMILY WEEKLY's 1975 Celebrity Poll going away!

FAMILY WEEKLY: How do you like being recognized wherever you go?

JIMMIE: I know it's tired and trite, but I hate my loss of privacy. And signing autographs bugs me. I don't need no ego thing. Some people do, I guess. I don't. I'm not into the celebrity bit. Like coming here: when I walked in that door, they looked at me like I was crazy, and right away they want to know, "Where's your tie?" My tie! Man, I'm used to McDonald's or Taco Bell. You know—grab a burger and split! Jeans 'n' T-shirts do me fine.

FW: I understand you do a lot more than the TV show.

JIMMIE: Yes— I write, and at least once a week I do a club show. I also made a movie and an album, "Dyn-o-mite!"

FW: Do you write your own material?

JIMMIE: Of course. I couldn't afford to do it any other way! I'm writing other scripts as well. I did one for "The Mary Tyler Moore Show" and a "Movie of the Week." Nobody's bought them yet, but I'm hopin'.

FW: How do you think of yourself—as a comedian, actor or writer?

JIMMIE: First as a comedian. Then, moving apart, is the writer. But I'm not an actor! I do the part of J.J. like I was in a nightclub. I react. That's not acting.

FW: Have you always wanted to be a comedian?

JIMMIE: I didn't want to be a comedian! At first I wanted to be a disk jockey until I found out I didn't have the talent for it. Then I wanted to be a network newscaster, but I didn't have the timing or the background to do that.

FW: So how did you end up a comedian?

JIMMIE: It's advantageous to my career, makes people aware of me. Also, it gives me a lot of money.

FW: You seem to be quite an extrovert.

Q: "Can you go out freely?"

A: "Oh yes."

Q: "What would you do if you weren't King?"

A: "I have thought about that. I would like to be a farmer."

Q: "Tell us about your planned visit to America."

A: "I'll be there a month, seeing the country, especially the Swedish people who have settled there in Minnesota and other states. They're excited that I'm coming—they send me letters inviting me to stay with them, or to visit their home or their church."

Finally, one of the journalists said: "Your Majesty, even though I am embarrassed to ask this, I must . . . . What do you eat for breakfast?"

The King looked completely taken aback, sure he was being put on. "Well, I—I don't know," he said. "Continental breakfast (rolls and coffee). I don't like a big English breakfast."

When it was my turn to meet the King alone, I was really nervous. I walked into the room, sat down on my chair, and said, "I must tell you I'm terrified. Is there anything you'd like to ask me?"

The King gave a flirtatious smile. "I'd better not," he said, "because it might be something rude." We both smiled at each other, and then he asked, "What kind of books do you write?"

I tried to describe my novels, which is difficult for any author to do. "Well, they're about modern life, changing values and morals, men and women, and love."

I asked him if he liked to read.

"Yes, but I don't read so much because I read late at night and I fall asleep over what I am reading."

"What do the young people of Sweden think of you?" I asked.

"I think they like me. When I go out they recognize me, and if they've had a few drinks, they come up to me on the street and bang me on the back and say: 'Hey, King, come along with us!' "

"The time is up," Mortenson said, looking at his watch.

"But I should add," the King went on, "that the Swedish people are very shy, and they have to have a drink before they can come up to me."

We all had our pictures taken in the other room, and the King seemed more relaxed, smiling and joking. We said goodbye to him then; and when we left, I looked back at that enormous stone palace and wondered if the King was lonely. I imagined him putting on blue jeans, playing some records, calling up some friends, maybe even jumping into his little blue sports car and speeding away if there were enough time before the banquet.

It didn't seem to be much fun to be King, at least not in 1976.

Have you ever been intimidated?

JIMMIE: Not intimidated, but I like to stay alone. I'm a loner.

FW: Have you ever thought of going back to finish college?

JIMMIE: Yeah, once, a long time ago. But I changed my mind. Decided to write and got into show business instead, and now look—I'm here in Scandia!

FW: How do you write—long hand, on a typewriter, or what?

JIMMIE: I think it! I just tell my secretary or rap into the tape recorder.

FW: How do you create your night club routines?

JIMMIE: I work with a tape recorder. I get out on stage and start rapping. The next night I use what was good the night before and rap some more. By the end of the week, if I'm lucky, I've got two or three minutes, and I put them into my act.

FW: Why do you keep doing one-night stands even when you're so busy?

JIMMIE: I like them! I like the energy of it! It's you! If you bomb, you bomb. I like getting out there and battling with the people. That's why I play a lot of colleges and universities. That's the arena. They're open to ideas.

FW: What do you want out of life?

JIMMIE: To be a headliner. Really draw people in. And write some good stuff.

FW: When you have time off and can do anything at all, what do you do?

JIMMIE: Lie in bed, sleep, watch TV. Gimme some orange juice and waffles, I can lie in bed two, three days.

FW: If you could start over again, what would you change?

JIMMIE: I'd try harder to think of a way not to be recognized. Unfortunately, I've got a face that there aren't too many like.

After that, just eat normally and continue exercises to feel and look better and younger.

Learn Nature's Weight Loss Secret Of Glandular Control

How to Command your Pituitary Gland to order up to 756 times its own weight in fat to leave your body every single day

©1975 C.P.C.

By Joan Woodward

Robert Ridgefield, discoverer of Nature's Weight Loss Secret, points to the gland that will make you thin. Your pituitary gland, weighing a mere 1/60th of an ounce, can command up to one pound of fat (756 x 1/60th of an ounce = one lb.) to leave your body every single day. Since all of us have a pituitary gland, everyone—5 lbs. or 105 lbs. overweight can learn nature's weight loss secret of glandular control. The article below will explain how you can reap the benefits of this amazing scientific breakthrough by losing as much as 14 lbs. in two weeks.

Use your head! Millions of overweight Americans could have slimmed down a long time ago by doing just that. For years, people with weight problems have desperately searched for ways to shed pounds. Ironically, even as they frantically searched, they were carrying the perfect weight loss secret right in their own head – their Pituitary Gland.

Allow me to explain. By learning Nature's Weight Loss Secret of Glandular Control, you can command your pituitary gland (nature's built-in fat evacuator) to order up to 1 pound of fat to leave your body every day. You'll continue to shed pounds until you reach your ideal weight – and then stay fat free forever. This weight loss secret works for everyone, whether 5 lbs. or 105 lbs. overweight.

But, best of all, you lose weight while eating the foods you love. In fact, you must eat to lose weight. That's the key to this weight loss secret.

As a reporter for the newsletter "Total Fitness Today", my job is to check out weight loss plans being developed across the country. Since I have a weight problem, I take a special interest in these assignments. When I heard about this revolutionary new weight loss secret, I decided to investigate.

I set up an appointment with Robert Ridgefield, the discoverer of Nature's Weight Loss Secret of Glandular Control. I started with tough questions.

HOW DOES THE SECRET WORK?

Q. How does the secret work?

A. The secret works by making food your ally instead of your enemy. There are two types of food in everyone's daily diet – 'triggers' and 'blockers'. By eating 'trigger' foods, you trigger or turn on your Pituitary Gland (nature's built-in fat evacuator). Once triggered, your Pituitary Gland secretes a fat evacuating, chemical fluid. This fluid is transported throughout your body and transforms your body from a fat producing machine to a fat evacuating system. Your Pituitary Gland will work safely and naturally to evacuate fat 24 hours a day – even while you sleep.

Q. If these 'trigger' foods are in everyone's diet, why isn't my Pituitary Gland evacuating fat?

A. Unfortunately, even if your diet consists of 95% 'trigger' foods, it only takes 5% 'blocker' foods to prevent your Pituitary Gland from evacuating fat.

Q. How can I trigger my Pituitary Gland?

A. Not by willpower, not by concentration, not with exercise, but by eating. Only by eating 'trigger' foods and avoiding 'blocker' foods can you trigger your Pituitary Gland to evacuate fat. Remember, the Weight Loss Secret is a nutrition plan, not a diet.

Q. What are these 'trigger' foods, and how much can I eat?

A. These 'trigger' foods are the every day foods you love: juicy sirloin steaks, hearty helpings of beef stroganoff, spicy ham, double cheeseburgers, meatloaf, barbecued chicken, omelets, vegetables like broccoli smothered with hollandaise sauce, cantaloupes, fruit cocktails – even desserts like strawberries with whipped cream, pumpkin pie, chocolate pudding, ice cream, and your favorite wines, liquors—even beer! You need not drastically alter your eating habits to get rid of the 'blocker' foods, because they don't make up that big a part of your diet.

WHY DOES THE SECRET WORK?

Q. You've told me how it works, but all weight loss methods look good on paper – they just don't work in real life. Why is this one different?

A. In order to understand why the secret works, you must first know why other methods fail. They fail for two reasons. First, other methods work against human nature, and therefore are doomed to failure from the start. People with weight problems obviously love to eat. Starvation is sheer torture. No one in their right mind is going to torture themselves for very long. Strenuous exercise is difficult, worklike, and boring. Diet pills leave you weak, nervous and prone to illness. Second, with most methods, the results, if any, come too slowly. So most people lose hope and quit.

Q. You're right about why they fail. I know, because I've tried them all, without success. But, why does glandular control work?

A. Again, two reasons. As I said, people are overweight because they love to eat. With Nature's Weight Loss Secret of Glandular Control, you must eat to lose weight. Therefore, overweight people will use it. It's as simple as that. The Weight Loss Secret has none of the drawbacks of other methods. There's no starvation, no willpower, no boring exercises, no health ruining diet pills, no weird fad dieting. It doesn't leave you weak and nervous. In fact, it makes you feel healthier and more vibrant than before.

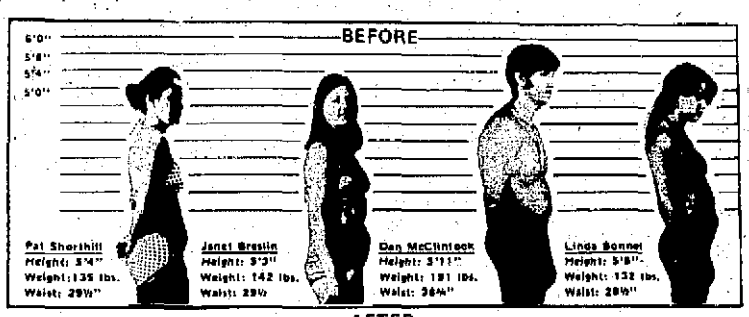
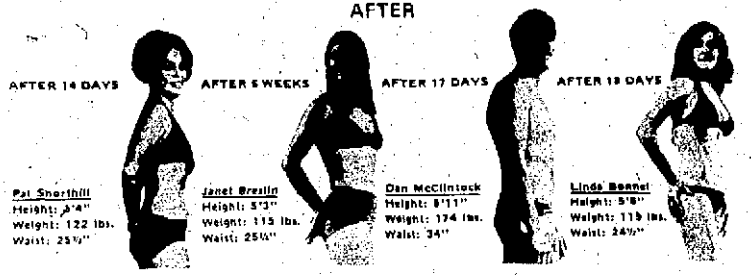
Q. You said there are two reasons why this secret works. What's the second reason?

A. Nature's Weight Loss Secret of Glandular Control always succeeds because it gives fast, steady and permanent results. You start losing weight the first day. You can lose up to 14 lbs. in two weeks. With these kind of results, rather than losing hope and quitting, you will be encouraged to continue and lose even more. You will reach your ideal weight and be fat free forever.





WHAT WILL THE SECRET DO FOR YOU?

By learning Nature's Weight Loss Secret of Glandular Control, you will:

- Lose all the weight you want, as much as a pound a day, while eating the food you love.
- Lose inches off your waist, hips, thighs, and banish ugly cellulite bumps.
- Never go hungry.
- Increase your energy and vitality.
- Look and feel younger.
- End your up–down roller coaster weight cycle by staying fat free forever.

After I lost my weight, my boss, Timothy Voros, the Chairman of the board of Consumer Publishing, decided to try the secret. He lost 22 lbs. in 22 days. He was so impressed, he grabbed up the exclusive world wide rights to this revolutionary new weight loss secret. He then commissioned Mr. Ridgefield to author the text and ordered a small press run to be printed. This book is not available in any bookstore anywhere in the world. But, you can learn the secret right now by ordering the book direct by mail.

"You can lose all the weight you want, quickly, and keep it off permanently while eating the foods you love."

Q. One last question. You call the Pituitary Gland nature's built-in fat evacuator. Why is that?

A. The Pituitary Gland was evolved by nature as a survival mechanism to keep man slim and fit. Just as your heart pumps blood, your lungs breathe the air, your Pituitary Gland evacuates fat. Because it's natural, it's 100% safe.

At the end of our conversation, I asked Mr. Ridgefield if I could talk with people who had successfully used the secret. He did better. He introduced me to four people who were going to start the weight loss secret the following Monday, and asked me if I would like to join them.

I took a before picture of Pat, Janet, Dan and Linda. I then followed their progress every day and had an after picture taken. As you can see from the photos, their results were amazing. But, they weren't the only ones to achieve results.

I lost 4 inches off my waist, 3 inches off my thighs and 14 lbs. in 14 days. My whole life has changed. My clothes fit great. I look and feel younger. I've found new self-confidence. But best of all, my love life has improved. The Weight Loss Secret can do the same thing for you.

HOW CAN YOU LEARN THE SECRET?

If you wish to learn Nature's Weight Loss Secret of Glandular Control, simply do this: Write "Weight Loss Secret" and your name and address on a piece of paper and send it along with $6.95 in cash, check or money order. (Make checks payable to Consumer Publishing.) If you have Master Charge, BankAmericard, or American Express, you may charge your purchase by sending the following information: A. name of card B. credit card number C. card expiration date.

Mail your order to: CONSUMER PUBLISHING, 401 Market Ave., N., Dept. C–52, Canton, Ohio 44702.

Mr. Voros is personally backing this book with a 100% no risk guarantee. After following the weight loss secret, you must lose all the weight you want, while eating the foods you love. You must feel healthier, happier and look 10 years younger. If this does not happen, or if you are dissatisfied in any way, just send your book back. You'll receive every penny of your money back – no questions asked.

Remember, only a small press run of Nature's Weight Loss Secret of Glandular Control has been printed. To make sure that you get your copy, why not order right now, while you're thinking about it. If you have any questions, feel free to call me. Joan Woodward, at (216) 455–1474.

Franz Furst

Pictures of Adolf Hitler in unguarded moments were rare; This is one of several recently found and made available to the press.

Few unposed pictures were ever taken of Adolf Hitler because Josef Goebbels, the propagandist who created the Führer myth, felt that Hitler should never look vulnerable unless he was being photographed kissing children (thousands of those shots were taken during his dictatorship). Hitler's vanity was such that no public photographs were to be taken when he was wearing his eyeglasses. Only his mistress Eva Braun was allowed to photograph him in relaxed moments. Never quite sure of his social position—his tastes in art and furniture ran to well-endowed nudes and heavy baroque—Hitler liked to think that he was a member of the upper class. Goebbels thought Hitler's middle-class values were his biggest asset, according to a new biography ("Goebbels," by Viktor Reimann): "Goebbels had in Hitler the ideal type to inspire a population because all characteristics of the masses combined in the Führer. He was moody, brutal, unpredictable, hysterical, cruel and barbaric. But he was also sentimental and capable of self-sacrifice, and therefore better than anyone else at seducing and intoxicating the crowd. He was part of them, he virtually merged with them physically; the masses could practically feel they were being saved. Many confessed to a feeling of paralysis in his presence."

"Now what was that problem again? If Buddy has 43 apples and Barbara has 52 . . ."

MELISSA MANCHESTER
For adults only

Melissa Manchester, 23-year-old singer-songwriter, on the lifelong struggle of the musical artist: "Contrary to public opinion, we're not one big happy family. The weird people can really get to you after a while. There are so many people who flock to this business because they think it will be one big party. Most of us started out with the same romantic notions. We wanted to do something special since the age of 5. We all performed for our families. Our egos are such that we were willing to go through the worst of times to get what we wanted, which we thought was the opposite of the 9-to-5, two-cars-in-every-garage existence. But then, even after you've 'made it' in this business, you continue to pay your dues. You still have no time to yourself, and your sense of privacy is lost forever. Becoming a celebrity doesn't really change you, only people's reactions to you. Watching those reactions has brought out my survival instincts—I worry about what I'll be left with when all the fuss is over." Melissa's latest record is "Better Days and Happy Endings."

PHIL JACKSON
Why athletes can't be "friends"

The gangly New York Knick, Phil Jackson, explains why competition on the court leaves no room for friendships off the court with teammates: "Bill Russell once stated that he never had a friend on the Celtics. That's the norm in the NBA. There's an air of competitiveness there which seems to permeate all personal dealings that players have with each other. They are competing against their teammates for playing time, publicity, money and sometimes favor with the coach. What usually develops is that each player forms his own private sphere of personal influence. I've never seen Walt Frazier and Earl Monroe together at the same social function, for instance. That doesn't mean they don't like each other: it's just the way it is and has always been. Ballplayers relate best on the basketball court. That's where they can get along without any kind of verbal communication. One of the joys of being an athlete is knowing someone quite well without having to sit down and talk." From "Maverick: More Than a Game," by Phil Jackson with Charles Rosen (Playboy Press, $9.95).

ARMOUR'S ARMOURY
By Richard Armour

GONE FOR BAD

I had a shock just a moment ago,
My heart, I was sure, was stopping.
I'd looked for my wife and called, but oh,
She'd gone. Said her note:
"Gone shopping."

It wasn't her being gone I feared.
I knew she'd be back in time.
It was that "Gone shopping" that stabbed and speared
And led me to write this rhyme.

"Gone shopping" is full of doom and distress,
Which is why I was almost crying.
I couldn't be sure, but I had to guess
What she really meant was
"I'm buying."

I was baby-sitting for a 3-year-old boy and asked him who his girlfriend was. He said it was the girl down the street and that he was going to marry her. "What if she won't marry you?" I asked. He stopped for a moment, then replied, "I won't tell her." —Maria Swalls Zeigler, Ill.

Will your health insurance pay when you DON'T go to the hospital?

Mutual of Omaha's new MONEY BACK health insurance can protect you three ways . . .

can pay you IN the hospital can pay you OUT of the hospital can refund ALL your premiums if you NEVER get sick or hurt

UP TO $1,200.00 A MONTH AS MUCH AS $40.00 A DAY disability income benefits can be provided when a covered sickness or accident keeps you from working.

What hospital insurance does for hospital bills, this Mutual of Omaha plan can do for your grocery, rent and clothing bills . . . important protection for working men and women. Other disability income coverages include Homemakers' plans for housewives.

Our figures show that you're seven times more likely to be laid up at home than in the hospital. That could leave an awful lot of bills unpaid if your health insurance covers you only in the hospital. Mutual of Omaha thinks you need protection at home, too . . . and does something about it.

With this plan, the family income can be protected during and after hospitalization . . . protected even if you never go to the hospital. And, in addition, if you never get sick, never get hurt, every cent you pay in premiums will be refunded when your policy matures at age 65.

Mutual of Omaha guarantees that you'll collect at least as much as you've paid in when you keep your policy in force to age 65. If you do receive benefits, and they total less than you've paid in at age 65, you then collect the difference. If you've never received benefits, you get a 100% refund . . . every penny you've paid in.

As a breadwinner, man or woman, married or single, you can select the amount you qualify for (from $100.00 to $1,200.00 a month . . . up to $40.00 a day) to help replace your paychecks when a covered sickness or accident keeps you from working. These monthly disability income benefits are payable over and above any benefits you receive for hospital and medical bills. They are yours to spend as you please for any purpose you choose . . . yours to use for every kind of bill.

THERE ARE SEVEN REASONS WHY YOU SHOULD CONSIDER THIS MUTUAL OF OMAHA PLAN

1. You may qualify for a plan that can provide up to $1,200.00 monthly income benefits (up to $40.00 a day) to spend as you see fit if you're sick or hurt and can't work, or refund all your premiums when your policy matures at age 65 if you stay well.

2. These disability income benefits are provided in and out of the hospital.

3. Your coverage becomes effective immediately for new sickness contracted or injury received after your policy is in force. Pre-existing conditions (old health problems) will not be covered for 12 months. This applies to such conditions shown on your application and not excluded from coverage.

4. Mental disorders are covered the same as any other sickness.

5. Your policy protects you as a passenger in any kind of aircraft—even a private plane.

6. Benefits are provided for disabilities incurred both on and off the job. They are available in addition to any Workmen's Compensation and Employer's Liability coverage.

7. You have this renewal agreement: no matter how often you may receive benefits, Mutual of Omaha guarantees to renew your policy as long as premiums are paid on time. Your premium can be changed only when changed for all like policies in your state.

Please note that the amount of the benefit, the premium, and the deductible period vary with the plan you qualify for. And that these disability income benefits are not payable for losses caused by war or military service; narcotics, unless prescribed by a physician; childbirth, pregnancy, or resulting complications. Coverage terminates at retirement or age 65, whichever comes first.
